U. S. Calls Russian "Blackmail" Charge "Fantastic"

Gromyko Raps United States Italian Policy

Denounces Charges In Czechoslovak Case

LAKE SUCCESS, March 23 (AP) — Russia charged today the United States is attempting to "blackmail" Italy and Czechoslovakia. The United States retorted such a charge is "fantastic" and unworthy of answer.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, told the United Nations Security Council that the United States is using "promises and threats, whip and cake" in the Italian campaign.

He declared that the United States has employed in Italy a "policy of rude pressure and blackmail." It was the first reference here to Italy since the Western Powers called for the return of Trieste to Italy.

Gromyko denounced all charges against Russia in the Czechoslovak case as being groundless. He said the Czechoslovak people would not yield to "blackmail" and "cheap propaganda" coming from the rostrum of the Security Council.

Austin Answer Gromyko

Warren R. Austin, chief United States delegate, promptly answered Gromyko's hour-long blast against the European policies of the United States, Britain and France.

Austin attacked what he called these "fantastic stories about the United States."

The American delegate said that it has always been obvious that such stories are the "propaganda of the arbitrary rulers of the Russian people."

Gromyko and Austin clashed on the second day of debate in the Security Council on charges brought by Chile that Russia engineered the February Communist coup in Czechoslovakia.

Gromyko attacked the "venal rulers" of Chile who he said acted at the behest of "financial and industrial kings from Wall Street."

He declared the Chilean complaint, which formally put before the council the charges made earlier by Dr. Jan Papanek, of Czechoslovakia, was absurd.

Questions "Left Up In Air"

Austin answered quickly that a host of questions had been left up in the air after Gromyko spoke.

Gromyko charged that the United States and what he called its "junior partner, Great Britain" were raising "such a howl" over the events in Czechoslovakia because their own attempts to control the Prague government had been frustrated.

He said that "every cowboy" in the United States could tell about the United States policy in Italy; that "every doorman in a New York hotel" knew that the United States had brought about the reorganization of the French government without French people being consulted.

Austin replied that it is a tribute to the United States system that doormen and cowboys "and taxi drivers in Washington" are in a position to know what goes on in the United States.

British Military Police Reinforce Border In Trieste

ROME, March 23 (AP) — British military police reinforced the border in Trieste Free State tonight as a precautionary measure.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman in Rome said Italy would reject Yugoslavia's second offer to barter her claims to Trieste for Italian Gorizia.

Maj. Gen. Terence S. Airey, chief civil officer of the allied Military Government in Trieste, said fresh detachments had been moved into the border area dividing Trieste territory between Yugoslavia and British-American occupation zones "in case there are repetitions of the September 15 incidents."

Italian Policeman Shot

He referred to the attempt of a Yugoslav detachment to move into the British-American zone in the main part of Trieste when the territory became a free state last year. The detachment was stopped by American soldiers who refused to let them pass.

The border was reinforced after an Italian civil policeman was wounded last night by a Yugoslav patrol which opened fire during a dispute as to where the boundary lay.

Explaining the action in sending up new detachments of guards, Airey said "we are on the alert but I do not expect any attempt."

Clay To Stay As U.S. Governor In Germany

White House Bares Reversal Of Policy

WASHINGTON, March 23 (AP) — President Truman tossed overboard today administration plans for a civilian governor over the American occupation zone in Germany. The White House announced that Gen. Lucius D. Clay would remain as military governor.

This reversal of policy evidently was decided upon by the President and his diplomatic and military advisers as one more step in his "stop Communism" effort.

Germany is a key position in the conflict between East and West and any change of administration there in the near future, some officials said, might have had the effect of weakening the American position in Europe due to the uncertainty and confusion which could result from a shakeup at the top.

Gen. Clay had indicated several months ago his desire to resign this year as American governor in Germany but as result of today's announcement there was speculation that he would stay on indefinitely. The Army Department said he has never filed any formal request for retirement.

The White House announcement came suddenly and without forewarning. In this respect it was comparable to last Friday's American move in the United Nations Security Council to have the plan for partition of Palestine suspended and also to the announcement on Saturday of the Western Power proposal to restore Trieste to Italy.

The White House gave newsmen a brief statement recalling that on January 27 the Army announced that the State Department would take over responsibility for governing the German occupation zone on July 1. The announcement then declared:

"Following a review of the present situation, it has been decided that it would be inadvisable to make any changes in our present administrative arrangements for Germany.. This decision will not have any adverse effect on progress toward developing German responsibility for self-government and administrative initiative.

"Gen. Clay remains as military governor and as commander-in-chief of the United States forces in Europe."

The White House did not detail what was meant by "a review of the present situation." But several factors bearing upon the American policies toward Germany appeared clear.

One of these is the situation in Berlin as the result of the Soviet withdrawal on Saturday from the Allied Control Council. This has thrown into a state of uncertainty the future of four-power governing machinery in the defeated enemy country.

Another factor is that as tensions mount between Russia and the Western Powers military factors have become uppermost in almost all American policy decisions.

Jewish Palestine Regime To Begin Operating May 16

JERUSALEM, March 23 (AP)—Representatives of Palestine's 600,000 Jews announced tonight a provisional Jewish government would begin operation in the Holy Land May 16, a day after the British yield their mandate.

In a joint meeting of the Jewish Agency and Jewish National Council in Tel Aviv the Jews rejected any plan for a Holy Land trusteeship, as suggested by the United States to the United Nations.

Jewish-Arab warfare continued, with a bitter battle raging tonight in the Montefiore district of Jerusalem, a heavily-fortified Jewish area. An Arab-driven truck exploded in the district, demolishing between 30 and 40 houses, an official statement said. A British soldier was killed in the gun battle that followed.

Senate Approves U.S. Military Aid For Greeks, Turks

"Omnibus" Measure Debated In House

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—The Senate shouted approval today of a $274,000,000 military aid program to bolster Greece and Turkey against Communism.

The voice vote came as the House began debate on a $6,205,000,000 two-continent foreign aid bill, with a supporter and an opponent both labelling it a "war measure."

Greek-turkish aid, to continue the present $400,000,000 program, was approved after only a few hours debate in the Senate, which already has passed a $5,300,000,000 European recovery bill.

Pepper Opposes Greek Aid

Sen. Pepper (D-Fla) was almost alone in opposing aid to Greece and Turkey. He said the chances for war are "about 99 out of 100" unless this country makes a "final effort" toward agreement with Russia.

The hotly-debated House bill includes ERP, Greek-Turkish aid, military and economic help for the Chinese government in its war against Communist forces, and $60,000,000 for the United Nations Children's fund.

Congress' Republican leaders said prospects were brighter for agreement between both houses, perhaps next week, on all aspects of the foreign aid program.

Senate Approves ERP Bill

The Senate already has approved a separate ERP bill but early indications pointed to somewhat stronger House opposition to the program, designed to help Europe become self-supporting and strong enough to resist Communist inroads.

State Department officials are counting on the aid program to help sway Italian voters away from the Communist Party, which is making an all-out effort to increase its strength or even take control as a result of the election.

Education Bill Advances

WASHINGTON, March 23 (AP)—The Senate today overrode objections raised by Sen. McGrath (D-RI) and voted 53 to 21 to start debate tomorrow on a bill to provide the states $300,000,000 in federal aid for education.

TRUMAN ASKED TO HALT SHIPMENT OF POTENTIAL WAR GOODS TO RUSSIA

WASHINGTON, March 23 (INS) — A group of influential senators demanded today that President Truman act to halt shipments of potential war gods to Russia, and Sen. Ferguson (R) Mich., revealed that such shipments are under congressional investigation.

Ferguson said it is still too early to give details of the probe, but added that the Senate War Investigating Committee he heads will uncover full information concerning United States exports to Russia and its satellites.

Sens. Wherry (R) Neb., Bricker (R) Ohio, and Martin (R) Pa., who urged the presidential move, said they favored congressional action to stop such exports if Mr. Truman fails to take effective steps.

Young Wife Of Minister Is Raped, Beaten To Death

WELLS, Nev., March 23 (AP) — Aroused Nevada law officers sent out planes today in the search for a sex-mad itinerant who raped and mutilated the young pregnant wife of a Presbyterian minister, then killed her with a rolling pin.

Mrs. Billee Rahe Morning, 22-year-old mother, died yesterday in her home in this little Eastern Nevada town after a beating so severe it broke the rolling pin.

Medical examiners found teeth marks on the body. Mrs. Morning's hands and legs were tied to a bed. A towel was twisted around her throat, a sheet around her head. She was five months pregnant.

Constable Homer Murphy said Rev. Richard Morning, 27, made the horrifying discovery when he came home after preaching at a night service in a nearby town. The couple's eight-month-old son was beside his mother, unharmed.

Sheriff C. L. Smith, of Elko County, calling the slaying "the most horrible crime I have ever come across," issued an all-points bulletin for a man about 20 with pock-marked face and speaking with a broken accent.

Investigators said this apparently is what happened:

The itinerant, similar in description to a man who had been begging money in Wells and Elko, appeared at a neighbor's house about 4:30 p. m. yesterday. He asked and was told where the Mornings lived. He did not go there immediately.

The man was next seen in a downtown tavern. He tried, unsuccessfully to cash a check which bore the minister's name. Mrs. Ola Daymonego, a tavern employe, overheard him say "I guess I'll go get Mrs. Morning to cash the check." How he got the check was not cleared up.

SURVIVED FIRE—Three-year-old George Meldrum plays outdoors unmindful of the tragic blaze which took the lives of his parents and two sisters. A neighbor rescued George after a kerosene stove had exploded in the three-room upstairs apartment occupied by the family at Port Huron, Mich.

House Gets Set To Send Tax-Cut Bill To Truman

Martin Predicts 3 To 1 Approval

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—The House got set today to pass the $4,800,000,000 income tax cut bill along to President Truman tomorrow.

The Rules Committee decreed only one hour of debate before the vote. The committee took that course after some Democrats had served notice they would block an effort to rush the bill to President Truman today.

Speaker Martin (R-Mass) predicted the House will approve the Senate's version of the bill by more than a 3-to-1 margin.

"The tax cut is certain," he said.

He added that if the President vetoes the bill, as is widely expected, the veto will be overridden.

Brief Flare Of Opposition

Chairman Leo Allen (R-Ill) told the Rules Committee:

"I hope the President is as eager to sign this bill giving American taxpayers $4,800,000,000 as he is to sign the Marshall Plan to give other nations $6,200,000,000,000."

The measure would give tax relief to all 52,000,000 income tax payers now on the rolls. For 7,400,000 of them, the relief would be 100 per cent. Increased personal exemptions would take them off the rolls.

There was one brief flare of diehard Democratic opposition to the bill on the House floor. Rep. Monroney (D-Okla) shouted:

"At this moment when democracy is in great peril we are asked to reduce taxes. Before the year is out Congress will draft the sons of the mothers of this country. We had better draft the dollars now and keep taxes where they are."

Rich Replies To Monroney

Replying to Monroney, Rep. Rich (R-Pa) said:

"The gentleman from Oklahoma wants to tax and tax the people of America and spend and spend all over the world. I think we've got to take care of America first and let other countries look out for

British Airman Reports Flying 10.5 Miles High

HATFIELD, England, March 23 (AP)—Test Pilot John Cunningham said he flew almost 10½ miles above the earth today.

Climbing out of his jet propelled De Havilland Vampire fighter, Cunningham said he was certain he had broken the world altitude record of 56,017 feet set in 1938 by Italian Pilot Mario Pezzi.

Whether he succeeded will not be known until Thursday or Friday when the Royal Aeronautical Society completes a check of sealed instruments installed in the plane.

"Mass Of Bones" Found At York, Pa.

YORK, Pa., March 23 (AP) — A "mass of bones" described as human provided police today with a new mystery.

Detective Carl Hartman, of the state police, said the bones were found in a bale of scrap paper in the mill of the Schmidt and Ault Paper Company here.

He said that Dr. Lewis C. Pusch, pathologist at the York Hospital, identified them as human bones after an examination.

The new development confronted officials as they still sought to unravel the mystery of finding of a woman's forearm and hand in a wooded section along the Susquehanna River near Airville on March 13.

Hartman said that Horace Keesey, secretary of the paper mill company, reported an employe on the night shift broke a big bale of scrap paper and a cardboard carton fell out.

Upon opening the carton, Hartman said "a whole mass of bones fell out." They were placed in a box and removed first to the state police barracks and then to the hospital for examination.

Hartman said the bones consisted of both legs up to the hip, and both arms and hands. Missing were the skull, vertebra, ribs and pelvis.

Hartman said the paper mill officials reported the bale of paper was not of local origin, but that its shipping point could be traced. Charles E. Emenheiser, Red Lion, the mill employe, Hartman said, described the bones as having been "neatly packed into the box."

The same dog which found the woman's arm along the river, Hartman said, showed up with another piece of bone with some flesh attached last Friday. He said the state police laboratory at Harrisburg found that bone human but there was nothing to indicate any connection with the woman's arm.

Slander Drive Aimed At USSR, Envoy Asserts

Panyushkin Declares Russia Wants Peace

NEW YORK, March 23 (AP) — Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin charged tonight that a "monstrous" slander campaign is being waged against Russia—a nation that "has always stood and stands now for peace and international co-operation."

In his first major speech in this country, the youthful envoy charged that Winston Churchill and American forces of "international reaction" are trying to stir up enmity against the Soviet Union.

"They will never succeed," he declared.

Panyushkin said the phrase "iron curtain" was "two little catch-words put into circulation by the light hand of Goebbels and later picked up by Churchill."

He said, however, in an address at a dinner meeting of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship:

Defends Czech Coup

"It is not the Soviet Union, but certain circles from the camp of international reaction, which are well known to all of us, which have lowered this curtain in order to conceal beyond it the truth about the Soviet Union and about countries of Eastern Europe."

Eleven times in the 1,600-word speech Panyushkin said Russia wants to live at peace with the United States and all other countries.

Panyushkin said any "desire for freedom" on the part of Russia's neighbors, or "any intention on their part of taking the road of democratic reforms," is being "distorted" by propaganda into "an act of 'aggression' by the Soviet Union."

He defended the recent coup in Czechoslovakia as reflecting "the will of the Czechoslovak people for freedom, independence and democracy." And he suggested that this was none of the Western Powers' business.

It was carried out, Panyushkin said, "in full accordance with the constitution of the Czechoslovak republic" and it constitutes "an internal affair of the Czechoslovak people themselves."

Moscow Atmosphere "Peaceful"

The envoy said the visitor to Moscow today "would immediately feel the atmosphere of peaceful creative work."

"Neither in the newspapers nor in the magazines would you see any headlines threatening war or calling to a war mobilization," he said.

After Russia's present "demobilization" is completed, Panyushkin said, the Red Army will be made up solely of men born in 1926 and 1927.

VIRGINIA COMMUNITIES ALERTED AS TORNADO HITS NORTH CAROLINA

CHARLOTTE, N. C., March 23 (AP)—A tornado swept across North Carolina early tonight, striking first in Mecklenburg County near the South Carolina line.

In less than three hours it had swirled across the state past Greensboro and headed toward the Virginia border in the vicinity of Danville.

Reports indicated little damage was done as the twister struck first a few miles west of Charlotte, dipped again near Concord, and then sped toward Greensboro.

The disturbance was reported first by an Eastern Air Lines plane winging into Charlotte from Washington. A second plane spotted it 12 miles further northward and communities in its path were alerted to prepare for the cyclonic winds.

SIX BODIES ARE FOUND IN ARMY C-47 WRECKAGE

WOODLAND, Wash., March 23 (AP)—Search headquarters here of the Washington state patrol announced tonight six bodies were found in the wreckage of an Air Force C-47 transport that crashed Sunday and that there was no trace of other survivors.

Two crew members, who had crawled from the wreckage and through the snow covered wilderness for assistance, are in the Barnes General Hospital, Vancouver, Wash.

The later report by the Washington police revised an earlier one in which the patrol announced two men are alive at the wreckage on Davis Peak and six dead. The peak is about 10 miles airline northeast of here.

The Army had listed eight men aboard the transport that left Fairfield-Suisun air field in California for Portland.

In the hospital are Maj. John B. Harding, Portland, the pilot, and a passenger, Pfc. John M. Belmonte, East Boston, Mass.

Harding and Belmont crawled through the deep snow 2½ miles, then came across a logger's cabin, where they spent the night. Today they heard loggers in the distance. They shouted and Jack Carl, a logger, broke through the snow with a tractor to reach them.

Western Powers Seek Showdown On German Rule

Demand Date Be Set For Council Meeting

BERLIN, March 23 (AP) — The United States, France and Britain asked today for a showdown on whether the Soviet Union wants to maintain four-power rule over Germany.

This came in a demand upon Soviet Marshal Vassily Sokolovsy to set a date for the next meeting of the Allied Control Council before taking up work of lesser four-power committees.

Late today the Russians partially ended their boycott of four-power government by calling for a meeting of subcommittees on currency reform and currency printing for later in the week. It was the first such action by the Russians since they walked out of a control council meeting Saturday.

Clay Announces Boycott

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the American military governor, declared his own boycott however, by informing Sokolovsy that the Americans would not attend any subcommittee meetings until a date is set for another council meeting. Sokolovsy is current council chairman under the rotation method.

Britain and France both announced they would support Clay in his demand.

The Russians had previously cancelled seven meetings scheduled for today in Allied Control Council agencies, and a top American official said:

"We are tired of being pushed around. The Soviets think they can cancel meetings on subjects they don't want to discuss and call meetings on subjects they want to discuss."

4-Power Machinery Up In Air

The official said the United States was making the demand upon Sokolovsy to determine whether the Russians intend to continue four-power negotiations or just call certain committee meetings that suit their own propaganda purposes.

The official said Sokolovsy's action in abruptly adjourning Saturday's council meeting without setting a new date—as is customary—left the entire four-power machinery up in the air.

Only Small Arms Will Be Allowed Japanese

WASHINGTON, March 23. (AP)—The 11-nation Far Eastern Commission today ordered Japan stripped of all arms except the rifles, pistols and other weapons carried by civil police and shotguns used by hunters.

The commission published a sweeping policy decision which ordered also that as long as Japan remains under Allied control she may not manufacture airplanes of any kind.

The decision, sent to Gen. Douglas MacArthur in the form of a directive, includes major measures to keep Japan disarmed which MacArthur as Supreme Allied Commander already has put into effect.

Labor Law Is Set In Motion By President

Board Of Inquiry Is Ordered Set Up

WASHINGTON, March 23 (AP) — President Truman set the Taft-Hartley labor law in motion late today to try to stop the nine-day-old coal strike.

He ordered a board of inquiry to bring him within 13 days the facts of the miners' pension dispute between John L. Lewis and the operators.

When this is done, the government can ask the federal court to issue an injunction to halt the walkout. This carries with it a threat of contempt of court penalties—jail or fines—if it is ignored.

Mr. Truman acted six hours after Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, scorned a government plan to settle his quarrel with the soft coal operators.

Federal Conciliator Cyrus S. Ching went immediately to the White House to announce failure in his efforts to make peace.

Mr. Truman set up a three-man board. He expects to appoint the members tomorrow. Their job will be to tell him the situation; not to make recommendations. They must report April 5 or before.

It was the third board of inquiry Mr. Truman has named under the act. The others are in the meat packing strike and a contract dispute in a laboratory at the Oak Ridge atomic energy center.

No Appeal To Miners Planned

In those two cases, Mr. Truman asked both sides to continue negotiations and remain on the job under existing conditions.

He made no such request in the coal strike. His secretary, Charles G. Ross, told reporters no such appeal to the miners "is now in contemplation."

He said he had read that "Mr. Lewis had made the positive statement that negotiations had broken off."

Mr. Truman, in accordance with language of the Taft-Hartley Act, said the strike if continued "will imperil the national health and safety."

Hardly had Mr. Truman issued his order than he drew sharp criticism from John D. Battle, executive secretary of the National Coal Association. Battle objected to allowing the board until April 5 to report.

"It should require only a matter of hours," Battle complained in a statement. He said the facts are well known in the case and that "there is absolutely no justification" for bringing on a shortage of coal.

"The railroads are now curtailing services; thousands of their employes are already out of work. Power plants must soon reduce the amount of electricity that can be furnished. Some steel plants are banking their blast furnaces.

"Unjustifiable Strike"

"All this is happening while John L. Lewis and his union indulge in an unlawful and unjustifiable strike."

Ching's settlement plan, which Lewis spurned, called for a fact-finding board to investigate the dispute over payment of miners' pensions and recommend action. But first Lewis would have had to send his 400,000 men back to work. Three of his associates waved it aside as "grotesque' and Lewis didn't bother to sign their reply to Ching.

The government announced another cut in railroad coal use unless the mines reopen.

"Leak" Profitable To Speculators, Congress Is Told

WASHINGTON, March 23 (AP) — A "leak" occurred more than six months ago in highly-secret government information affecting commodity prices, Congress learned today.

Simultaneously, Rep. August H. Andresen (R-Minn), declared that certain unidentified persons "made tremendous sums of money from the leak."

He added:

"We will show who they were later."

Andresen is chairman of a House committee which is investigating speculation on the nation's food markets. It is making a particular effort to find out whether any government officials profited from "inside" information.

Over heated protests by Rep. Carroll (D-Colo), who said the committee should withhold judgement, Andresen commented:

"It looks to me as though they (the government) have lost all control over leaks."

George A. Parks, chief of the statistics branch of the Department of Agriculture's Oils and Fats Division, told the committee the leak occurred a few days before the Agriculture Department announced last September 10 that export quotas of fats and oils would be sharply increased for the last quarter of 1947. Lard exports, for example, were boosted from 35,000,000 pounds to 75,000,000 pounds, and the price of lard quickly rose by six to eight cents a pound.

Youth Believes UMT, Draft Unnecessary For Security

WASHINGTON, March 23 (AP) — A 17-year-old high school science student told senators today they ought to be able to meet defense problems without "forcing all American boys to go through the Army system."

Richard L. Van Nort, slender but confident teen-ager from Haddonfield, N. J. told the Senate Armed Services Committee that it should keep an "open mind" on both universal military training and a temporary draft.

"I hope you won't forget that the statistics you are dealing with have a lot of flesh and blood in back of them," he said.

Van Nort testified as a member of the Philadelphia Christian Youth Council.

Robert Tesdell, of Chicago, testified that 10,000,000 young church people are opposed to both UMT and the peacetime draft.

Tesdell, 29, appeared for the United Christian Youth Movement. He said this included 40 Protestant denominations and such groups as the Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A. and other youth organizations.

Van Nort said young men his age favor an adequate defense but believe it can be had "without uprooting millions of boys." He suggested that voluntary enlistments might do the job if some things about military life were "straightened out."

Three farm organizations went on record as opposing both the draft and UMT—unless the nation faces a war crisis.

And if such a crisis exists, then the country should be told, and not only the draft and UMT, but industrial production of war supplies should be pushed, one group said.

Representatives of the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange and the National Farmers Union testified today before the Senate Armed Services Committee which is holding hearings on the proposed legislation.

U. S. Calls Russian "Blackmail" Charge "Fantastic"

Gromyko Raps United States Italian Policy

Denounces Charges In Czechoslovak Case

LAKE SUCCESS, March 23 (AP) — Russia charged today the United States is attempting to "blackmail" Italy and Czechoslovakia. The United States retorted such a charge is "fantastic" and unworthy of answer.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, told the United Nations Security Council that the United States is using "promises and threats, whip and cake" in the Italian campaign.

He declared that the United States has employed in Italy a "policy of rude pressure and blackmail." It was the first reference here to Italy since the Western Powers called for the return of Trieste to Italy.

Gromyko denounced all charges against Russia in the Czechoslovak case as being groundless. He said the Czechoslovak people would not yield to "blackmail" and "cheap propaganda" coming from the rostrum of the Security Council.

Austin Answer Gromyko

Warren R. Austin, chief United States delegate, promptly answered Gromyko's hour-long blast against the European policies of the United States, Britain and France.

Austin attacked what he called these "fantastic stories about the United States."

The American delegate said that it has always been obvious that such stories are the "propaganda of the arbitrary rulers of the Russian people."

Gromyko and Austin clashed on the second day of debate in the Security Council on charges brought by Chile that Russia engineered the February Communist coup in Czechoslovakia.

Gromyko attacked the "venal rulers" of Chile who he said acted at the behest of "financial and industrial kings from Wall Street."

He declared the Chilean complaint, which formally put before the council the charges made earlier by Dr. Jan Papanek, of Czechoslovakia, was absurd.

Questions "Left Up In Air"

Austin answered quickly that a host of questions had been left up in the air after Gromyko spoke.

Gromyko charged that the United States and what he called its "junior partner, Great Britain" were raising "such a howl" over the events in Czechoslovakia because their own attempts to control the Prague government had been frustrated.

British Military Police Reinforce Border In Trieste

ROME, March 23 (AP) — British military police reinforced the border in Trieste Free State tonight as a precautionary measure.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman in Rome said Italy would reject Yugoslavia's second offer to barter her claims to Trieste for Italian Gorizia.

Maj. Gen. Terence S. Airey, chief civil officer of the allied Military Government in Trieste, said fresh detachments had been moved into the border area dividing Trieste territory between Yugoslavia and British-American occupation zones "in case there are repetitions of the September 15 incidents."

Italian Policeman Shot

He referred to the attempt of a Yugoslav detachment to move into the British-American zone in the main part of Trieste when the territory became a free state last year. The detachment was stopped by American soldiers who refused to let them pass.

The border was reinforced after an Italian civil policeman was wounded last night by a Yugoslav patrol which opened fire during a dispute as to where the boundary lay.

Explaining the action in sending up new detachments of guards, Airey said "we are on the alert but I do not expect any attempt."

The Foreign Ministry spokesman, in dealing with Yugoslavia's offer, said: "It is clear that Italy cannot accept the separation of a part of Italian flesh bartered for another part of Italian flesh."

Clay To Stay As U.S. Governor In Germany

White House Bares Reversal Of Policy

WASHINGTON, March 23 (AP) — President Truman tossed overboard today administration plans for a civilian governor over the American occupation zone in Germany. The White House announced that Gen. Lucius D. Clay would remain as military governor.

This reversal of policy evidently was decided upon by the President and his diplomatic and military advisers as one more step in his "stop Communism" effort.

Germany is a key position in the conflict between East and West and any change of administration there in the near future, some officials said, might have had the effect of weakening the American position in Europe due to the uncertainty and confusion which could result from a shakeup at the top.

Gen. Clay had indicated several months ago his desire to resign this year as American governor in Germany but as result of today's announcement there was speculation that he would stay on indefinitely. The Army Department said he has never filed any formal request for retirement.

The White House announcement came suddenly and without forewarning. In this respect it was comparable to last Friday's American move in the United Nations Security Council to have the plan for partition of Palestine suspended and also to the announcement on Saturday of the Western Power proposal to restore Trieste to Italy.

The White House gave newsmen a brief statement recalling that on January 27 the Army announced that the State Department would take over responsibility for governing the German occupation zone on July 1. The announcement then declared:

"Following a review of the present situation, it has been decided that it would be inadvisable to make any changes in our present administrative arrangements for Germany.. This decision will not have any adverse effect on progress toward developing German responsibility for self-government and administrative initiative.

"Gen. Clay remains as military governor and as commander-in-chief of the United States forces in Europe."

The White House did not detail what was meant by "a review of the present situation." But several factors bearing upon the American policies toward Germany appeared clear.

One of these is the situation in Berlin as the result of the Soviet withdrawal on Saturday from the Allied Control Council. This has thrown into a state of uncertainty the future of four-power governing machinery in the defeated enemy country.

Another factor is that as tensions mount between Russia and the Western Powers military factors have become uppermost in almost all American policy decisions.

Jewish Palestine Regime To Begin Operating May 16

JERUSALEM, March 23 (AP)— Representatives of Palestine's 600,000 Jews announced tonight a provisional Jewish government would begin operation in the Holy Land May 16, a day after the British yield their mandate.

In a joint meeting of the Jewish Agency and Jewish National Council in Tel Aviv the Jews rejected any plan for a Holy Land trusteeship, as suggested by the United States to the United Nations.

Jewish-Arab warfare continued, with a bitter battle raging tonight in the Montefiore district of Jerusalem, a heavily-fortified Jewish area. An Arab-driven truck exploded in the district, demolishing between 30 and 40 houses, an official statement said. A British soldier was killed in the gun battle that followed.

Senate Approves U.S. Military Aid For Greeks, Turks

"Omnibus" Measure Debated In House

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)— The Senate shouted approval today of a $274,000,000 military aid program to bolster Greece and Turkey against Communism.

The voice vote came as the House began debate on a $6,205,000,000 two-continent foreign aid bill, with a supporter and an opponent both labelling it a "war measure."

Greek-turkish aid, to continue the present $400,000,000 program, was approved after only a few hours debate in the Senate, which already has passed a $5,300,000,000 European recovery bill.

Pepper Opposes Greek Aid

Sen. Pepper (D-Fla) was almost alone in opposing aid to Greece and Turkey. He said the chances for war are "about 99 out of 100" unless this country makes a "final effort" toward agreement with Russia.

The hotly-debated House bill includes ERP, Greek-Turkish aid, military and economic help for the Chinese government in its war against Communist forces, and $60,000,000 for the United Nations Children's fund.

Congress' Republican leaders said prospects were brighter for agreement between both houses, perhaps next week, on all aspects of the foreign aid program.

Senate Approves ERP Bill

The Senate already has approved a separate ERP bill but early indications pointed to somewhat stronger House opposition to the program, designed to help Europe become self-supporting and strong enough to resist Communist inroads.

State Department officials are counting on the aid program to help sway Italian voters away from the Communist Party, which is making an all-out effort to increase its strength or even take control as a result of the election.

Education Bill Advances

WASHINGTON, March 23 (AP)— The Senate today overrode objections raised by Sen. McGrath (D-RI) and voted 53 to 21 to start debate tomorrow on a bill to provide the states $300,000,000 in federal aid for education.

TRUMAN ASKED TO HALT SHIPMENT OF POTENTIAL WAR GOODS TO RUSSIA

WASHINGTON, March 23 (INS) — A group of influential senators demanded today that President Truman act to halt shipments of potential war gods to Russia, and Sen. Ferguson (R) Mich., revealed that such shipments are under congressional investigation.

Ferguson said it is still too early to give details of the probe, but added that the Senate War Investigating Committee he heads will uncover full information concerning United States exports to Russia and its satellites.

Sens. Wherry (R) Neb., Bricker (R) Ohio, and Martin (R) Pa., who urged the presidential move, said they favored congressional action to stop such exports if Mr. Truman fails to take effective steps.

Young Wife Of Minister Is Raped, Beaten To Death

WELLS, Nev., March 23 (AP) — Aroused Nevada law officers sent out planes today in the search for a sex-mad itinerant who raped and mutilated the young pregnant wife of a Presbyterian minister, then killed her with a rolling pin.

Mrs. Billee Rahe Morning, 22-year-old mother, died yesterday in her home in this little Eastern Nevada town after a beating so severe it broke the rolling pin.

Medical examiners found teeth marks on the body. Mrs. Morning's hands and legs were tied to a bed. A towel was twisted around her throat, a sheet around her head. She was five months pregnant.

Constable Homer Murphy said Rev. Richard Morning, 27, made the horrifying discovery when he came home after preaching at a night service in a nearby town. The couple's eight-month-old son was beside his mother, unharmed.

Sheriff C. L. Smith, of Elko County, calling the slaying "the most horrible crime I have ever come across," issued an all-points bulletin for a man about 20 with pock-marked face and speaking with a broken accent.

Investigators said this apparently is what happened:

The itinerant, similar in description to a man who had been begging money in Wells and Elko, appeared at a neighbor's house about 4:30 p. m. yesterday. He asked and was told where the Mornings lived. He did not go there immediately.

The man was next seen in a downtown tavern. He tried, unsuccessfully to cash a check which bore the minister's name. Mrs. Ola Daymonego, a tavern employe, overheard him say "I guess I'll go get Mrs. Morning to cash the check." How he got the check was not cleared up.

SURVIVED FIRE—Three-year-old George Meldrum plays outdoors unmindful of the tragic blaze which took the lives of his parents and two sisters. A neighbor rescued George after a kerosene stove had exploded in the three-room upstairs apartment occupied by the family at Port Huron, Mich.

House Gets Set To Send Tax-Cut Bill To Truman

Martin Predicts 3 To 1 Approval

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)— The House got set today to pass the $4,800,000,000 income tax cut bill along to President Truman tomorrow.

The Rules Committee decreed only one hour of debate before the vote. The committee took that course after some Democrats had served notice they would block an effort to rush the bill to President Truman today.

Speaker Martin (R-Mass) predicted the House will approve the Senate's version of the bill by more than a 3-to-1 margin.

"The tax cut is certain," he said.

He added that if the President vetoes the bill, as is widely expected, the veto will be overridden.

Brief Flare Of Opposition

Chairman Leo Allen (R-Ill) told the Rules Committee:

"I hope the President is as eager to sign this bill giving American taxpayers $4,800,000,000 as he is to sign the Marshall Plan to give other nations $6,200,000,000,000."

The measure would give tax relief to all 52,000,000 income tax payers now on the rolls. For 7,400,000 of them, the relief would be 100 per cent. Increased personal exemptions would take them off the rolls.

There was one brief flare of die-hard Democratic opposition to the bill on the House floor. Rep. Monroney (D-Okla) shouted:

"At this moment when democracy is in great peril we are asked to reduce taxes. Before the year is out Congress will draft the sons of the mothers of this country. We had better draft the dollars now and keep taxes where they are."

Rich Replies To Monroney

Replying to Monroney, Rep. Rich (R-Pa) said:

"The gentleman from Oklahoma wants to tax and tax the people of America and spend and spend all over the world. I think we've got to take care of America first and let other countries look out for

British Airman Reports Flying 10.5 Miles High

HATFIELD, England, March 23 (AP) — Test Pilot John Cunningham said he flew almost 10½ miles above the earth today.

Climbing out of his jet propelled De Havilland Vampire fighter, Cunningham said he was certain he had broken the world altitude record of 56,017 feet set in 1938 by Italian Pilot Mario Pezzi.

Whether he succeeded will not be known until Thursday or Friday when the Royal Aeronautical Society completes a check of sealed instruments installed in the plane.

"Mass Of Bones" Found At York, Pa.

YORK, Pa., March 23 (AP) — A "mass of bones" described as human provided police today with a new mystery.

Detective Carl Hartman, of the state police, said the bones were found in a bale of scrap paper in the mill of the Schmidt and Ault Paper Company here.

He said that Dr. Lewis C. Pusch, pathologist at the York Hospital, identified them as human bones after an examination.

The new development confronted officials as they still sought to unravel the mystery of finding of a woman's forearm and hand in a wooded section along the Susquehanna River near Airville on March 13.

Hartman said that Horace Keesey, secretary of the paper mill company, reported an employe on the night shift broke a big bale of scrap paper and a cardboard carton fell out.

Upon opening the carton, Hartman said "a whole mass of bones fell out." They were placed in a box and removed first to the state police barracks and then to the hospital for examination.

Hartman said the bones consisted of both legs up to the hip, and both arms and hands. Missing were the skull, vertebra, ribs and pelvis.

Hartman said the paper mill officials reported the bale of paper was not of local origin, but that its shipping point could be traced. Charles E. Emenheiser, Red Lion, the mill employe, Hartman said, described the bones as having been "neatly packed into the box."

The same dog which found the woman's arm along the river, Hartman said, showed up with another piece of bone with some flesh attached last Friday. He said the state police laboratory at Harrisburg found that bone human but there was nothing to indicate any connection with the woman's arm.

Slander Drive Aimed At USSR, Envoy Asserts

Panyushkin Declares Russia Wants Peace

NEW YORK, March 23 (AP) — Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin charged tonight that a "monstrous" slander campaign is being waged against Russia—a nation that "has always stood and stands now for peace and international co-operation."

In his first major speech in this country, the youthful envoy charged that Winston Churchill and American forces of "international reaction" are trying to stir up enmity against the Soviet Union.

"They will never succeed," he declared.

Panyushkin said the phrase "iron curtain" was "two little catch-words put into circulation by the light hand of Goebbels and later picked up by Churchill."

He said, however, in an address at a dinner meeting of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship:

Defends Czech Coup

"It is not the Soviet Union, but certain circles from the camp of international reaction, which are well known to all of us, which have lowered this curtain in order to conceal beyond it the truth about the Soviet Union and about countries of Eastern Europe."

Eleven times in the 1,600-word speech Panyushkin said Russia wants to live at peace with the United States and all other countries.

Panyushkin said any "desire for freedom" on the part of Russia's neighbors, or "any intention on their part of taking the road of democratic reforms," is being "distorted" by propaganda into "an act of 'aggression' by the Soviet Union."

He defended the recent coup in Czechoslovakia as reflecting "the will of the Czechoslovak people for freedom, independence and democracy." And he suggested that this was none of the Western Powers' business.

It was carried out, Panyushkin said, "in full accordance with the constitution of the Czechoslovak republic" and it constitutes "an internal affair of the Czechoslovak people themselves."

Moscow Atmosphere "Peaceful"

The envoy said the visitor to Moscow today "would immediately feel the atmosphere of peaceful creative work."

"Neither in the newspapers nor in the magazines would you see any headlines threatening war or calling to a war mobilization," he said.

After Russia's present "demobilization" is completed, Panyushkin said, the Red Army will be made up solely of men born in 1926 and 1927.

VIRGINIA COMMUNITIES ALERTED AS TORNADO HITS NORTH CAROLINA

CHARLOTTE, N. C., March 23 (AP)—A tornado swept across North Carolina early tonight, striking first in Mecklenburg County near the South Carolina line.

In less than three hours it had swirled across the state past Greensboro and headed toward the Virginia border in the vicinity of Danville.

Reports indicated little damage was done as the twister struck first a few miles west of Charlotte, dipped again near Concord, and then sped toward Greensboro.

The disturbance was reported first by an Eastern Air Lines plane winging into Charlotte from Washington. A second plane spotted it 12 miles further northward and communities in its path were alerted to prepare for the cyclonic winds.

SIX BODIES ARE FOUND IN ARMY C-47 WRECKAGE

WOODLAND, Wash., March 23 (AP)—Search headquarters here of the Washington state patrol announced tonight six bodies were found in the wreckage of an Air Force C-47 transport that crashed Sunday and that there was no trace of other survivors.

Two crew members, who had crawled from the wreckage and through the snow covered wilderness for assistance, are in the Barnes General Hospital, Vancouver, Wash.

The later report by the Washington police revised an earlier one in which the patrol announced two men are alive at the wreckage on Davis Peak and six dead. The peak is about 10 miles airline northeast of here.

The Army had listed eight men aboard the transport that left Fairfield-Suisun air field in California for Portland.

In the hospital are Maj. John B. Harding, Portland, the pilot, and a passenger, Pfc. John M. Belmonte, East Boston, Mass.

Harding and Belmont crawled through the deep snow 2½ miles, then came across a logger's cabin, where they spent the night. Today they heard loggers in the distance. They shouted and Jack Carl, a logger, broke through the snow with a tractor to reach them.

Western Powers Seek Showdown On German Rule

Demand Date Be Set For Council Meeting

BERLIN, March 23 (AP) — The United States, France and Britain asked today for a showdown on whether the Soviet Union wants to maintain four-power rule over Germany.

This came in a demand upon Soviet Marshal Vassily Sokolovsy to set a date for the next meeting of the Allied Control Council before taking up work of lesser four-power committees.

Late today the Russians partially ended their boycott of four-power government by calling for a meeting of subcommittees on currency reform and currency printing for later in the week. It was the first such action by the Russians since they walked out of a control council meeting Saturday.

Clay Announces Boycott

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the American military governor, declared his own boycott however, by informing Sokolovsy that the Americans would not attend any subcommittee meetings until a date is set for another council meeting. Sokolovsy is current council chairman under the rotation method.

Britain and France both announced they would support Clay in his demand.

The Russians had previously cancelled seven meetings scheduled for today in Allied Control Council agencies, and a top American official said:

"We are tired of being pushed around. The Soviets think they can cancel meetings on subjects they don't want to discuss and call meetings on subjects they want to discuss."

4-Power Machinery Up In Air

The official said the United States was making the demand upon Sokolovsy to determine whether the Russians intend to continue four-power negotiations or just call certain committee meetings that suit their own propaganda purposes.

The official said Sokolovsy's action in abruptly adjourning Saturday's council meeting without setting a new date—as is customary—left the entire four-power machinery up in the air.

Only Small Arms Will Be Allowed Japanese

WASHINGTON, March 23. (AP)— The 11-nation Far Eastern Commission today ordered Japan stripped of all arms except the rifles, pistols and other weapons carried by civil police and shotguns used by hunters.

The commission published a sweeping policy decision which ordered also that as long as Japan remains under Allied control she may not manufacture airplanes of any kind.

The decision, sent to Gen. Douglas MacArthur in the form of a directive, includes major measures to keep Japan disarmed which MacArthur as Supreme Allied Commander already has put into effect.

Labor Law Is Set In Motion By President

Board Of Inquiry Is Ordered Set Up

WASHINGTON, March 23 (AP) — President Truman set the Taft-Hartley labor law in motion late today to try to stop the nine-day-old coal strike.

He ordered a board of inquiry to bring him within 13 days the facts of the miners' pension dispute between John L. Lewis and the operators.

When this is done, the government can ask the federal court to issue an injunction to halt the walkout. This carries with it a threat of contempt of court penalties—jail or fines—if it is ignored.

Mr. Truman acted six hours after Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, scorned a government plan to settle his quarrel with the soft coal operators.

Federal Conciliator Cyrus S. Ching went immediately to the White House to announce failure in his efforts to make peace.

Mr. Truman set up a three-man board. He expects to appoint the members tomorrow. Their job will be to tell him the situation; not to make recommendations. They must report April 5 or before.

It was the third board of inquiry Mr. Truman has named under the act. The others are in the meat packing strike and a contract dispute in a laboratory at the Oak Ridge atomic energy center.

No Appeal To Miners Planned

In those two cases, Mr. Truman asked both sides to continue negotiations and remain on the job under existing conditions.

He made no such request in the coal strike. His secretary, Charles G. Ross, told reporters no such appeal to the miners "is now in contemplation."

He said he had read that "Mr. Lewis had made the positive statement that negotiations had broken off."

Mr. Truman, in accordance with language of the Taft-Hartley Act, said the strike if continued "will imperil the national health and safety."

Hardly had Mr. Truman issued his order than he drew sharp criticism from John D. Battle, executive secretary of the National Coal Association. Battle objected to allowing the board until April 5 to report.

"It should require only a matter of hours," Battle complained in a statement. He said the facts are well known in the case and that "there is absolutely no justification" for bringing on a shortage of coal.

Battle drew this picture:

"The railroads are now curtailing services; thousands of their employes are already out of work. Power plants must soon reduce the amount of electricity that can be furnished. Some steel plants are banking their blast furnaces.

"Unjustifiable Strike"

"All this is happening while John L. Lewis and his union indulge in an unlawful and unjustifiable strike."

Ching's settlement plan, which Lewis spurned, called for a fact-finding board to investigate the dispute over payment of miners' pensions and recommend action. But first Lewis would have had to send his 400,000 men back to work. Three of his associates waved it aside as "grotesque' and Lewis didn't bother to sign their reply to Ching.

The government announced another cut in railroad coal use unless the mines reopen.

"Leak" Profitable To Speculators, Congress Is Told

WASHINGTON, March 23 (AP) — A "leak" occurred more than six months ago in highly-secret government information affecting commodity prices, Congress learned today.

Simultaneously, Rep. August H. Andresen (R-Minn), declared that certain unidentified persons "made tremendous sums of money from the leak."

He added:

"We will show who they were later."

Andresen is chairman of a House committee which is investigating speculation on the nation's food markets. It is making a particular effort to find out whether any government officials profited from "inside" information.

Over heated protests by Rep. Carroll (D-Colo), who said the committee should withhold judgement, Andresen commented:

"It looks to me as though they (the government) have lost all control over leaks."

George A. Parks, chief of the statistics branch of the Department of Agriculture's Oils and Fats Division, told the committee the leak occurred a few days before the Agriculture Department announced last September 10 that export quotas of fats and oils would be sharply increased for the last quarter of 1947. Lard exports, for example, were boosted from 35,000,000 pounds to 75,000,000 pounds, and the price of lard quickly rose by six to eight cents a pound.

Youth Believes UMT, Draft Unnecessary For Security

WASHINGTON, March 23 (AP) — A 17-year-old high school science student told senators today they ought to be able to meet defense problems without "forcing all American boys to go through the Army system."

Richard L. Van Nort, slender but confident teen-ager from Haddonfield, N. J. told the Senate Armed Services Committee that it should keep an "open mind" on both universal military training and a temporary draft.

"I hope you won't forget that the statistics you are dealing with have a lot of flesh and blood in back of them," he said.

Van Nort testified as a member of the Philadelphia Christian Youth Council.

Robert Tesdell, of Chicago, testified that 10,000,000 young church people are opposed to both UMT and the peacetime draft.

Tesdell, 29, appeared for the United Christian Youth Movement. He said this included 40 Protestant denominations and such groups as the Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A. and other youth organizations.

Van Nort said young men his age favor an adequate defense but believe it can be had "without uprooting millions of boys." He suggested that voluntary enlistments might do the job if some things about military life were "straightened out."

Three farm organizations went on record as opposing both the draft and UMT—unless the nation faces a war crisis.

And if such a crisis exists, then the country should be told, and not only the draft and UMT, but industrial production of war supplies should be pushed, one group said.

Representatives of the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange and the National Farmers Union testified today before the Senate Armed Services Committee which is holding hearings on the proposed legislation.

Rent Legislation Agreement Near

WASHINGTON, March 23 (INS) — Senate and House conferees said tonight that they expect to reach agreement tomorrow on the 1948 rent control extension act. They indicated that the final version will include federal control over local rent board actions.

This would leave the bill in the approximate form that it passed the Senate, and would discard the House proposal to let home-town boards make final decisions on rent increases or complete decontrol.

The Senate version provides that a federal administrator could "veto" the recommendations of local boards.

Day-long meetings today failed to produce the final agreement which had been expected, but Sen. Tobey (R) N. H., said the final details will be settled "within an hour or so" tomorrow.

He promised that the bill will be completed by midnight tomorrow, and that it can be voted on Thursday. This would allow time for final enactment before rent controls expire at the end of this month.

Agreement was reached today to extend the controls until March 31, 1949, as provided in the House bill, rather than one month later as stipulated by the Senate.

Senate conferees said they had no intention of accepting the House provision for "local autonomy" for rent boards. Since agreement was expected, reporters were allowed to draw the inference that the House members were preparing to back down.

Labor Law

The new order would bring a 25 per cent reduction in freight movement by coal-burning locomotives on the basis of locomotive miles. It would apply to all commodities but coal itself.

J. Monroe Johnson, director of transportation, said the order would be issued this weekend unless the miners return. He already has made a 25 per cent cut in passenger traffic hauled by coal. Steel output also has dropped since the miners walked out.

The Association of American Railroads said reports indicate the railroads as a whole have a 24-day supply of coal as of yesterday. Some companies have more than this, some less.

The Association said the 25 per cent reduction in coal-burning passenger service largely affected local service.

The situation was being watched closely by a special congressional "watchdog" committee of Congress, set up to keep an eye on operations of the Taft-Hartley law.

Sen. Ball (R-Minn), committee chairman, said it planned to "stay out of the picture," but he noted it could recommend legislation to end the strike, or hold a public hearing.

Lewis, in effect, threw the ball to President Truman when he turned down the conciliation move which the operators had "reluctantly" agreed to accept. The last time Mr. Truman intervened in a coal dispute it cost the union $700,000 fine and Lewis a personal $10,000 fine.

Cafe Strike Settled

WASHINGTON, March 23 (AP)—Settlement of the 11-week-old CIO strike at 42 government building cafeterias was announced today by the Federal Works Agency.

DEWEY URGES "TOUGH" AID PROGRAM, STRONGER PROPAGANDA OFFENSIVE

ALBANY, N. Y., March 23. (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey called today for a 'hard-boiled" United States aid program to halt the spread of Russian Communism and urged an "accelerated" diplomatic and propaganda offensive.

Dewey, a Republican presidential contender, criticized the Truman administration's handling of the international crisis as "vacillatin_ and inadequate."

The Governor, who promised to discuss the issue "in full" in the "next two months," said at a news conference::

"The influence of the United States has so far not been used to strengthen and preserve the forces for peace.

"I'm perfectly convinced that we can only preserve the peace through strength and that war is the last failure of bankrupt diplomacy."

Dewey replied "no" when asked if he considered the nation on the verge of war or bankrupt diplomacy.

Sailor Who Threatened To Shoot Judge Is Held

BALTIMORE, March 23 (AP)—A 26-year-old seaman was held under $10,000 bail today on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice by threatening to get a gun and shoot Federal Judge William C. Coleman.

The seaman, Vincent Gilhuly, will be given a psychiatric examination.

United States Attorney Bernard J. Flynn told Commissioner Ernest Volkart was reported to have told a tavernkeeper he was going to get a gun to "get even with Judge Coleman."

A police guard was posted last night around Judge Coleman's home.

$200,000 Suit Against Actress, Studio Dismissed

LOS ANGELES, March 23 (AP)—A $200,000 suit against Joan Crawford and Warner Brothers Studio, resulting from the actress' visit to a sanitarium to gather material for a film with a psychiatric theme, has been settled out of court.

Attorneys Albert Pearlson said today that a settlement "satisfactory to all parties" has been reached but he declined to give any details. A notice of dismissal of the suit was filed.

Mrs. Pauline McKay and her husband, Charles, an advertising man, sued the actress, the film company, the Pasadena Sanitarium, Dr. George N. Thompson and others. The suit alleged that Mrs. McKay's right of privacy was invaded when Miss Crawford and others from the studio went to the sanitarium on June 25, 1946, to witness electric shock treatments of patients.

Miss Crawford later said she visited the sanitarium but denied that she witnessed any treatment of Mrs. McKay.

Baltimore Judge Decides Hypnotism Has Cleared Vet's Mind Of Delusion

BALTIMORE, March 23 (AP) — A judge today decided Wilbur Shattuck is cured. Hypnotism has cleared his mind of the delusion that he still is fighting Japs in Bougainville jungles.

Judge Joseph Sherbow absolved the 32-year-old war veteran of a charge that he stole a radio from his boss last fall.

Shattuck first came before Judge Sherbow in December.

Dr. Jacob H. Conn, member of the court's psychiatric staff, explained Shattuck's mind hadn't been able to throw off the horrors of warfare in the Southwest Pacific. There were lapses when he still was fighting.

Dr. Conn said that was what Shattuck was doing when he backed up a truck to his employer's electrical shop and took a radio. He thought he was getting ammunition for his squad. The radio was about the size of a mortar ammunition case.

The psychiatrist said he was convinced of this by Shattuck's reactions while hypnotized and under the influence of a truth serum.

He slapped at imaginary flies and mosquitos, sweated, stumbled over jungle vines when he was under these spells. He described the death of the mortar squad and blamed himself for not getting up the ammunition.

Judge Sherbow held the charge in abeyance and ordered Shattuck to a veterans' hospital for treatment under Dr. Conn.

10 Charged With Breaking U. S. White Slavery Law

BALTIMORE, March 23—(AP)—Three women and seven men were charged today with breaking the federal white slavery law by importing prostitutes into Hagerstown, Md.

A federal grand jury handed down eight indictments accusing the defendants with "transporting or causing to be transported" women across state lines for immoral purposes.

All 10 were nabbed last December in an FBI raid which agents reported smashed a four-state ring.

Women were taken to Hagerstown from Lynchburg, Va., Muncie, Ind., and Harrisburg, Pa., the indictments said.

Victims of the illicit traffic—who in some instances, according to government prosecutors, earned $300 a week in Hagerstown without getting a penny themselves—were not accused.

Fire In Old Peoples' Home Fatal To Five

OMAHA, March 23 (AP) — Fire which broke out in an old peoples' home here early today killed five people and left seven injured, three critically.

Fire Chief Ben Meister and Ed Hayduk, arson squad head, said there were indications that two or three separate blazes were involved. They said the cause of the fire was being investigated.

Some of the elderly people in the two-story frame structure escaped by kicking out windows and dropping to the ground. Neighbors helped carry some of the residents to nearby homes for care.

Clearing Skies Cheer Flood Area Residents

CHICAGO, March 23. (AP)—Clearing skies and a forecast of warm sunshine tomorrow offered some relief today to flood-weary communities in the East and Midwest.

Light rains tonight were forecast for some sections of Pennsylvania but the Weather Bureau said the rainfall would be insufficient to aggravate the flood situation there.

Quincy, Ill., center of the Midwest flood area, had a negligible amount of precipitation today and the danger of a major flood along the Mississippi appeared to have passed.

Support For MacArthur Will Be Sought In Md.

BALTIMORE, March 23 (AP) — Maryland supporters of Gen. Douglas MacArthur for the presidency announced today they plan to try to elect Republican state convention delegates informally pledged to him.

The delegates, to be chosen in the May 3 primary, in turn will select Maryland's delegation to the National Republican convention.

Veteran Maryland political observers said this is the first time in their memory that such a project has been considered.

President Truman on two separate occasions last year used his veto to kill Republican sponsored tax-reduction bills.

Chairman Taft (Ohio), of the Republican Senate Policy Committee, told reporters that Mr. Truman probably wil lsend Congress a message urging expenditure of $2,000,000,000 to $3,000,000,000 additional for military preparedness in line with the stop-Communism policy. Nevertheless Taft expressed confidence that the Senate would override a veto.

Rent Legislation Agreement Near

WASHINGTON, March 23 (INS) — Senate and House conferees said tonight that they expect to reach agreement tomorrow on the 1948 rent control extension act. They indicated that the final version will include federal control over local rent board actions.

This would leave the bill in the approximate form that it passed the Senate, and would discard the House proposal to let home-town boards make final decisions on rent increases or complete decontrol.

The Senate version provides that a federal administrator could "veto" the recommendations of local boards.

Day-long meetings today failed to produce the final agreement which had been expected, but Sen. Tobey (R) N. H., said the final details will be settled "within an hour or so" tomorrow.

He promised that the bill will be completed by midnight tomorrow, and that it can be voted on Thursday. This would allow time for final enactment before rent controls expire at the end of this month.

Agreement was reached today to extend the controls until March 31, 1949, as provided in the House bill, rather than one month later as stipulated by the Senate.

Senate conferees said they had no intention of accepting the House provision for "local autonomy" for rent boards. Since agreement was expected, reporters were allowed to draw the inference that the House members were preparing to back down.

Labor Law

The new order would bring a 25 per cent reduction in freight movement by coal-burning locomotives on the basis of locomotive miles. It would apply to all commodities but coal itself.

J. Monroe Johnson, director of transportation, said the order would be issued this weekend unless the miners return. He already has made a 25 per cent cut in passenger traffic hauled by coal. Steel output also has dropped since the miners walked out.

The Association of American Railroads said reports indicate the railroads as a whole have a 24-day supply of coal as of yesterday. Some companies have more than this, some less.

The Association said the 25 per cent reduction in coal-burning passenger service largely affected local service.

The situation was being watched closely by a special congressional "watchdog" committee of Congress, set up to keep an eye on operations of the Taft-Hartley law.

Sen. Ball (R-Minn), committee chairman, said it planned to "stay out of the picture," but he noted it could recommend legislation to end the strike, or hold a public hearing.

Lewis, in effect, threw the ball to President Truman when he turned down the conciliation move which the operators had "reluctantly" agreed to accept. The last time Mr. Truman intervened in a coal dispute it cost the union $700,000 fine and Lewis a personal $10,000 fine.

Cafe Strike Settled

WASHINGTON, March 23 (AP)—Settlement of the 11-week-old CIO strike at 42 government building cafeterias was announced today by the Federal Works Agency.

DEWEY URGES "TOUGH" AID PROGRAM, STRONGER PROPAGANDA OFFENSIVE

ALBANY, N. Y., March 23. (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey called today for a 'hard-boiled" United States aid program to halt the spread of Russian Communism and urged an "accelerated" diplomatic and propaganda offensive.

Dewey, a Republican presidential contender, criticized the Truman administration's handling of the international crisis as "vacillatin_ and inadequate."

The Governor, who promised to discuss the issue "in full" in the "next two months," said at a news conference::

"The influence of the United States has so far not been used to strengthen and preserve the forces for peace.

"I'm perfectly convinced that we can only preserve the peace through strength and that war is the last failure of bankrupt diplomacy."

Dewey replied "no" when asked if he considered the nation on the verge of war or bankrupt diplomacy.

Sailor Who Threatened To Shoot Judge Is Held

BALTIMORE, March 23 (AP)—A 26-year-old seaman was held under $10,000 bail today on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice by threatening to get a gun and shoot Federal Judge William C. Coleman.

The seaman, Vincent Gilhuly, will be given a psychiatric examination.

United States Attorney Bernard J. Flynn told Commissioner Ernest Volkart was reported to have told a tavernkeeper he was going to get a gun to "get even with Judge Coleman."

A police guard was posted last night around Judge Coleman's home.

$200,000 Suit Against Actress, Studio Dismissed

LOS ANGELES, March 23 (AP)—A $200,000 suit against Joan Crawford and Warner Brothers Studio, resulting from the actress' visit to a sanitarium to gather material for a film with a psychiatric theme, has been settled out of court.

Attorneys Albert Pearlson said today that a settlement "satisfactory to all parties" has been reached but he declined to give any details. A notice of dismissal of the suit was filed.

Mrs. Pauline McKay and her husband, Charles, an advertising man, sued the actress, the film company, the Pasadena Sanitarium, Dr. George N. Thompson and others. The suit alleged that Mrs. McKay's right of privacy was invaded when Miss Crawford and others from the studio went to the sanitarium on June 25, 1946, to witness electric shock treatments of patients.

Miss Crawford later said she visited the sanitarium but denied that she witnessed any treatment of Mrs. McKay.

Baltimore Judge Decides Hypnotism Has Cleared Vet's Mind Of Delusion

BALTIMORE, March 23 (AP) — A judge today decided Wilbur Shattuck is cured. Hypnotism has cleared his mind of the delusion that he still is fighting Japs in Bougainville jungles.

Judge Joseph Sherbow absolved the 32-year-old war veteran of a charge that he stole a radio from his boss last fall.

Shattuck first came before Judge Sherbow in December.

Dr. Jacob H. Conn, member of the court's psychiatric staff, explained Shattuck's mind hadn't been able to throw off the horrors of warfare in the Southwest Pacific. There were lapses when he still was fighting.

Dr. Conn said that was what Shattuck was doing when he backed up a truck to his employer's electrical shop and took a radio. He thought he was getting ammunition for his squad. The radio was about the size of a mortar ammunition case.

The psychiatrist said he was convinced of this by Shattuck's reactions while hypnotized and under the influence of a truth serum.

He slapped at imaginary flies and mosquitos, sweated, stumbled over jungle vines when he was under these spells. He described the death of the mortar squad and blamed himself for not getting up the ammunition.

Judge Sherbow held the charge in abeyance and ordered Shattuck to a veterans' hospital for treatment under Dr. Conn.

10 Charged With Breaking U. S. White Slavery Law

BALTIMORE, March 23—(AP)—Three women and seven men were charged today with breaking the federal white slavery law by importing prostitutes into Hagerstown, Md.

A federal grand jury handed down eight indictments accusing the defendants with "transporting or causing to be transported" women across state lines for immoral purposes.

All 10 were nabbed last December in an FBI raid which agents reported smashed a four-state ring.

Women were taken to Hagerstown from Lynchburg, Va., Muncie, Ind., and Harrisburg, Pa., the indictments said.

Victims of the illicit traffic—who in some instances, according to government prosecutors, earned $300 a week in Hagerstown without getting a penny themselves—were not accused.

Fire In Old Peoples' Home Fatal To Five

OMAHA, March 23 (AP) — Fire which broke out in an old peoples' home here early today killed five people and left seven injured, three critically.

Fire Chief Ben Meister and Ed Hayduk, arson squad head, said there were indications that two or three separate blazes were involved. They said the cause of the fire was being investigated.

Some of the elderly people in the two-story frame structure escaped by kicking out windows and dropping to the ground. Neighbors helped carry some of the residents to nearby homes for care.

Clearing Skies Cheer Flood Area Residents

CHICAGO, March 23. (AP)—Clearing skies and a forecast of warm sunshine tomorrow offered some relief today to flood-weary communities in the East and Midwest.

Light rains tonight were forecast for some sections of Pennsylvania but the Weather Bureau said the rainfall would be insufficient to aggravate the flood situation there.

Quincy, Ill., center of the Midwest flood area, had a negligible amount of precipitation today and the danger of a major flood along the Mississippi appeared to have passed.

Support For MacArthur Will Be Sought In Md.

BALTIMORE, March 23 (AP) — Maryland supporters of Gen. Douglas MacArthur for the presidency announced today they plan to try to elect Republican state convention delegates informally pledged to him.

The delegates, to be chosen in the May 3 primary, in turn will select Maryland's delegation to the National Republican convention.

Veteran Maryland political observers said this is the first time in their memory that such a project has been considered.

President Truman on two separate occasions last year used his veto to kill Republican sponsored tax-reduction bills.

Chairman Taft (Ohio), of the Republican Senate Policy Committee, told reporters that Mr. Truman probably wil lsend Congress a message urging expenditure of $2,000,000,000 to $3,000,000,000 additional for military preparedness in line with the stop-Communism policy. Nevertheless Taft expressed confidence that the Senate would override a veto.

Intimate Books

Intimate books, like intimate friends, are a selection of a lifetime. I would not be happy without many friends and many books, but the intimate ones of each boil down to but a precious little handful.

I have a library of some 5,000 books, or more, but I have a little group I have placed within bookends that occupy hardly more than a foot of space—and to them I go, again and again, for inspiration and hope, and renewed faith. Some of these have been long out of print, and have been small volumes picked up, here and there, over the years.

Here is the list, sixteen in all: Margaret Ogilvy, by J. M. Barrie, the story of his mother; A Way of Life, by Dr. Osler; On Some of Life's Ideals, by William James; Dr. Samuel Johnson's Prayers; The Roadmender, by Michael Fairless; The Private Papers of Henry Ryecroft, and By The Ionian Sea, by George Gissing; Amiel's Journals; Dreamthorp, by Alexander Smith; Courage (an Address) by J. M. Barrie; Lincoln's Gettysburg Address; Mother and Son, by Robert Norwood; The Pocket R. L. S. (Stevenson); Truth and Beauty, by Thomas Burke (a brief anthology); and Wild Apples, by Henry D. Thoreau.

Our taste in books is intimate and personal, as it is in the selection of our friends. It is inspiring, however, to make a small selection of those books that stimulate the mind, and warm the heart, and to have them near at hand when most in need of them. I once visited a friend who had a great library of thousands of books, and we spent a most happy evening over them, but as I was about to leave I asked him what ones he loved the most—and he named but two! Those two are in my list above—The Roadmender and The Private Papers of Henry Ryecroft.

Our intimate friends may be scattered, but our intimate books may be kept ever near to us, or carried with us. They are our silent friends. Never too far away. Never shall I tire to write—

"Of books and quiet life; . . . and so I say through love of them all told,
These are my books."

America Should Be Told About Yalta Parley

If the world situation today is "very, very serious," as Secretary Marshall says, and as President Truman implied in his message to Congress Wednesday, and if the United States is close to war, as former Secretary of State Byrnes evidently thinks, it is high time that the Administration told Congress and the American people about any secret agreements made with Russia at Yalta.

There is a widespread feeling today, among those who fear Soviet expansion as well as among Stalin's apologists, that in dominating Czechoslovakia and campaigning against Finland, Russia is only "consolidating" a position accorded her by Roosevelt and Churchill at the Yalta conference. Wet, more than three years after the event, the public still does not know all that happened at Yalta.

The three-power communique, issued in February, 1945, told nothing except some of the plans for dealing with postwar Germany. It has been assumed that Russia was granted a "sphere of influence" roughly embracing everything east of the Elbe-Adriatic line. It is assumed that Czechoslovakia was included but not Norway. Yet there is no published official record of the conference to prove or disprove these assumptions.

The difficulty is that the more important conversations at Yalta were held by Roosevelt, Stalin and Churchill, with only interpreters present and apparently with no record kept. Roosevelt is dead and cannot say what was agreed upon. Churchill can say, but has remained silent to date. Stalin, too, has kept quiet, though his controlled press assumes that every extension of the Iron Curtain is right, proper and even legal. Surely one would suppose that if Roosevelt "awarded" Czechoslovakia to Russia the Kremlin would be justifying its claim now by quoting chapter and verse from Yalta.

Perhaps Roosevelt agreed that Czechoslovakia should be oriented toward Moscow in foreign policy but should remain free and independent in domestic affairs. But if that is true, the Communist coup at Prague can hardlly be called a "consolidation" of the Soviet position.

The blunt truth is that the American people and their Congress do not know what happened at Yalta. If President Truman and Secretary Marshall know, it is their duty in this tense hour to tell the country. If they do not know, because of incomplete record kept, there should be no apologies for or resignation to whatever Russia wants to do in an assumed sphere of influence.

The American people cannot be held responsible for rumors or suspicions about a set of personal and private agreements made by a President who was gravely ill at the time.

Meat consumption in the United States is declining, possibly because sandwich slicing has been perfected to a fine art.

Backward Nations Must Be Helped To Grow Food

Although there is a common belief that world hunger is attributable to the fact that food production is far below the prewar volume, this is not the case. World food production is only seven per cent below prewar figures.

In many important categories, such as wheat and coarse grains, food has almost regained prewar production, and better crops are expected this year. But the world has gained 10 per cent in population since the war began despite the staggering loss of life during the conflict. This gain is what is pinching the supply of eatables.

It is now clear that merely regaining prewar production of food will not be sufficient. Food production should be stepped up at least 10 per cent. A 25 per cent hike would not create surpluses. Before the war many people did not have enough to eat.

How is this increase in food production to be attained? The United States is one of the few countries that has succeeded in increasing their crops. That is because better methods of cultivation and management of the soil have been adopted. But in this country soil resources are pictured as deteriorating.

The best world program, when the political situation has settled down, will be to teach backward countries how to get the most out of their land. They lack modern machinery and the know-how of fertilization and conservation methods. River valleys must be controlled to prevent floods and provide irrigation. Millions of acres must be restored to production through reclamation projects.

The objection that this would cancel some of America's export markets is hardly revelant. America is gaining population and will require more food, too. And if this sphere is ever to be converted into a peaceful world, starvation must be eliminated. Hunger breeds war.

Doctor's say there is no immunity from the common cold. Nor immunity from friendly advice as to cures.

Another Spring Has Made Its Debut

Spring tells the world: "Wake up!" Poets are stirred to voice the same idea, in a general way, though not so effectively. Spring, which arrived about noon on Saturday, does something for practically everyone—as it was intended to do. It is Nature's promissory note.

Spring on the land is the beautiful stage setting for the action of human aspirations in steady conflict with earthly vicissitude. Life is a play that must go to its inevitable climax of eternal destiny.

Spring may mean less to the young and well and untroubled than to the ill, the aging and harried, as spectators of its unfolding pageant. The strongest impression of spring is its invariable recurrence, its perhaps delayed but never-failing certainty. It is the triumphant overtone of human existence.

The phrase "hope springs eternal" tells the story, for spring and hope are one. It may be true that "where there's life, there's hope;" but it is more largely true that where there's hope, there is life.

Two political parties this year may spend $50,000,000. Speech during a campaign is no longer free.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Precautions In Poor Circulation

Poor circulation resulting from diabetes, hardening of the arteries, or Buerger's disease is more likely to manifest itself in the lower than the upper extremities. The condition is not always troublesome but symptoms frequently make their appearance after injury, infection, or some foolish misdemeanor. This is particularly true of those who develop ulcers, gangrene, and other distressing lesions.

In other words, when the blood supply is inadequate, mishaps of all types must be avoided as they can precipitate unpleasant complications. This means that the feet should be handled "with kid gloves." In walking, care ought to be taken not to stub a toe; when standing in a street car or bus, if possible the individual must guard against having his feet stepped on by parking at a safe distance from other passengers. The working man who lifts heavy objects should be equally cautious.

Another valuable preventive measure is the use of well fitted shoes and hose. This will minimize not only corns, calluses, and pressure points but trauma. Furthermore, heavy socks keep the parts warm.

Cleanliness cannot be overemphasized. Many minor abrasions and scratches would never have become infected had the feet been washed daily. When bathing or soaking the extremities, the water should not be too hot because heat increases local metabolism. This in turn calls for more blood but since the arteries are narrowed and cannot deliver the necessary quota, tissue damage ensues. Moreover, it is a good rule to keep the skin soft with olive oil, cocoa butter, or cold cream to discourage cracking and callus formation.

Ringworm is also partial to the victim of poor circulation and unless this infection is controlled, it often proves annoying. But strong remedies may be dangerous for tissues with a sluggish blood supply. Should they burn the area, painful lesions are produced and healing is slow. Hence only bland ointments or solutions are advised. Soaking the feet in a dilute potassium permanganate preparation is ideal in the circumstances.

The care of the nails must not be taken too lightly. The elderly man or woman with a slight tremor often cuts the skin while pedicuring which invites infection that is not easy to heal. Removing the cuticle with various acids may have a disastrous result and therefore, is forbidden. Regular visits to a skilled chiropodist are preferred.

The physician has many medicines and gadgets for improving the circulation. Tobacco decreases the blood flow but unless the individual uses discretion in smoking, the effect of these remedies may be nullified.

Painful Spot

E. A. writes: What would cause a burning sensation in the region of the left shoulder blade?

Reply

This symptom usually follows a disturbance in the muscle or fibrous tissue in this area. If associated with other manifestations such as cough, weight loss, etc., a chest X-ray is in order.

Skin Disorders

H. T. writes: Are lupus vulgaris and psoriasis the same?

Reply

No. In lupus the lesions are usually confined to the nose and upper cheeks whereas in psoriasis the elbows, knees, scalp, and back are preferred. The causative factors are entirely different.

Unusual

C. B. writes: Can a grownup develop chorea?

Reply

Yes, in rare instances. The disease is more common in children because the cause (rheumatic fever) is more common in youngsters.

Eye Rolling

A. N. writes: What is nystagmus?

Reply

In this disturbance, the eyes roll up and down, around, or from side to side. Sometimes no cause can be found; in others, an ear or nerve disorder is responsible.

DILATED VEIN

Mrs. K. writes: I have an enlarged vein in my right breast. I am 44 years old. Should I see a doctor about this?

Reply

Yes. The chances are that this disorder does not represent a serious condition such as malignancy, but a thorough examination is necessary to make certain.

IMBIBES AIR

O.C.H. writes: What kind of person is an air swallower?

Reply

One who makes a habit of gulping the atmosphere. The usual sequence of events is first to swallow air and then belch. The individual is aware of the latter but not the former and cannot be convinced until he is placed in front of the fluoroscope, where the phenomenon can be demonstrated.

DEPENDS UPON CAUSE

H.D.F. writes: What is the remedy for high metabolism in a thin person?

Reply

First the reason for the condition must be discovered. For example, if tests show that overactivity of the thyroid gland is responsible, the use of propylthiouracil or surgical removal of the structure may be indicated.

HORATIUS GUARDS THE BRIDGE

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Munitions Board Ignores Alcohol Shortage; No Unemployment Worries For Truman; Key Materials Need Controls; Coal Negotiators Hard-Headed

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, March 23—While the brass hats demand the drafting of men for the Army, they continue to let the big distillers pour out more and more whisky, despite the fact that the nation's industrial alcohol reserve remains dangerously low.

Industrial alcohol was one of the most strategic materials of the late war, being used in producing synthetic rubber, chemicals, insecticides, TNT and munitions. In fact, industrial alcohol was considered so essential that more than 200,000,000 gallons were stockpiled in the year 1943 alone.

Today, however, only about 21,000,000 gallons of industrial alcohol are stockpiled—enough to last 10 short days if war should break.

While the big distillers are ignoring Truman's plea for voluntary rationing by adding to the already groaning supplies of whisky in warehouses, the Army and Navy Munitions Board is doing absolutely nothing about stockpiling industrial alcohol for defense.

Real fact is that we face a worse industrial alcohol shortage, in event of an emergency, than before the last war—because at that time we had a big grain surplus. Now we have virtually no grain surplus, with foreign aid taking about all we can spare.

Meanwhile, the brass hat-controlled munitions board hasn't even bothered to put industrial alcohol on its list of "strategic and critical materials."

Truman Gets Job Offer

President Truman has already been offered another job—if the voters retire him in November. The job was offered him by William McKinley Floyd of Unalaska, Alaska, who is national commander of the regular veterans association, a small organization with about 85,000 members in the United States and its territories.

Floyd informed Truman that he was retiring as national commander and then had nerve enough to add:

"I'm out after a good successor and am sure you can be elected if I place your name in the nominations. The political fates are sometimes unkind and if you should be out of a job in November, this would be a good place for you to land.

"The position has security—it's steady," continued the regular veterans chief. "I've held it for five years. Who knows, it might turn into a lifetime job for you."

Truman looked a little flabbergasted. Then he grinned.

"Thanks very much," he chuckled, "but I'll have to refuse the nomination. I'm going to be very busy on other matters."

Airplanes Need Materials Control

President Truman has just received a blunt warning from William M. Allen, president of the Boeing Aircraft Company, that the government must reinstitute allocations of key materials, such as aluminum, if the U.S.A. is to build airplanes for future emergencies.

Allen, who was accompanied to the White House by Sen. Warren Magnuson of Washington, told Truman that his company now is producing a super successor to the B-29, known as the B-50, at the rate of seven planes a month. The new planes can outstrip both the 3,200-mile range of the B-29 and its 350-mile-an-hour speed. Boeing is also testing a new jet bomber of revolutionary speed and range. But, Allen told the President:

"We can't begin turning out these new planes in any quantity unless there are allocations of the materials needed to produce them, so we can plan our production schedules at least six months ahead. We can gear up our production of B-50's right now to 40 a month, but not without material allocations."

Truman replied that he was pleased to learn of the new revolutionary planes, but sidestepped a commitment on controlling strategic materials. Instead, he reminded his callers that the B-50 pointed up the need for universal military training and selective service.

"I realize the importance of air power," the President declared, "but that alone is not the answer. We must have an integrated and well-rounded system of all three services--land, sea, and air. We still can't do without ground troops. To show you what I mean, that new B-50 you are making probably will require triple the ground crew of the B-29."

Hard-Headed Coal Negotiators

Here's the inside story of what happened when hard-working federal conciliator Cyrus Ching met with John L. Lewis and Ezra Van Horn, spokesman for the coal operators, in an effort to settle the growing coal strike last week.

John L. Lewis not only stubbornly refused to back down on his demands for pensions for coal miners, but even declined to consider a compromise proposal.

Lewis told Ching that his demand for a $100-a-month retirement pension for all United Mine Workers union members who are 60 years old and have worked 20 years in the mines still stands, despite operator protests that only actual employees in coal mines should be eligible for pensions.

Under Lewis's plan, former miners who quit work five or ten years ago or longer would be eligible for pensions, provided they still carried a UMW card. This would make William Green, now head of the AFL, and Phil Murray, head of the CIO, eligible for pensions, though they haven't mined coal for years.

When Ching asked Lewis if he would be willing to have further discussions with Van Horn in an effort to work out their differences, the mine labor chief flatly declared: "No."

"Further meetings would be a "waste of time" and "serve no good purpose," Lewis declared.

However, conciliator Ching found the coal operators' spokesmen equally determined to give no ground. Meeting later with Van Horn, Ching was told that further meetings between the operators and Lewis would be useless.

Ching then asked Van Horn if he would offer a compromise plan to Lewis's pension demands. Van Horn replied that no compromise was possible as long as Lewis stood on his arbitrary demands. He did promise, however, that the operators might have something to offer in the way of compromise in about a week, when a study of the pension question, now being made for the operators by a Philadelphia firm, is completed.

In other words, Van Horn informed Ching that it would be at least another week before the operators will be ready to start negotiating with Lewis.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

New York, Mar. 23—(INS)-The passing show:

For an accurate thermometer reading on the state of the so-called cold war, cock an eye at the air force.

A year ago it was beating the publicity tom-toms for the 6-engined B-36, the 8-jet B-35 flying wing and the bell rocket-ship, the XS-1. The publicity handouts were wondrous and complete, with art.

Last August it reluctantly asked all foreign observers to leave the Muroc Training Base. A proposed trans-continental flight of the flying wing was called off. Then reporters were told, with some reluctance, that Muroc was no longer open to them.

Just before last Christmas an aviation trade journal named "Aviation Week" broke the story that the XS-1 had broken through the sound barrier several times, piloted by Capt. Charles Yaeger of the air force and by NACA test pilots Howard Lilly and Herb Hoover.

Instead of huzzahs, heralding the dawn of a new age of flight, an effort was made to stop the issue of the magazine and the air force turned the case over to the department of Justice for possible action. Mr. Clark's office is still looking into what, all of a sudden, became a serious security break, though, as yet, we have no official press censorship.

One prominent scientist close to the core of U. S. secret weapon-making in World War II is said to have screamed when the news of the XS-1's performance leaked out. He cried that we had thus lost the advantage of at least a year in our still-unstated arms race with Russia.

Was reading the paper the other night, I was, and my wife's name popped out as if catapulated at my kisser. Seems the inoffensive lady had been nominated for vice president of the United States on a fourth party ticket headed by Louis Bromfield, the famous politico-novelist.

Well, sir, didn't like the idea at all, I didn't, particularly with our hovel in need of a good spring cleaning. But the more I thought of it, the more attractive became the prospect of becoming known as the second man of the land,which would place me on the left of the first lady, Mrs. Bromfield, at state dinners.

Bromfield didn't look too healthy to me the last time I looked at him through the personal fog I carry with me. And you know what the presidency does to a man. I don't wish him any hard luck, if we make the grade, but the pressure of foreign and domestic events, plus maybe a triple mickey, might put the old lady in the top spot.

The porch ought to be finished by the time we make it, after a decent period of mourning for President Bromfield. The salary is right, too, $75,000 plus $25,000 a year expenses. That would just be a beginner, of course. We could fix up the kids in some good spots, and I'd have the "My Day" column to write.

Not long ago, amid thumping breast-beating, Hollywood swore that it was opposed to all film-matters reflecting on the integrity of the U. S. and its people. In even louder tones it eschewed all connection with Hollywood personnel whose hue ranged from pale pink to red politically.

So the coveted Oscard were handed out the other night. One went to a fine young lady named Loretta Young, and it couldn't happen to a nicer gal. But Miss Young won her statue for her role in a movie named "The Farmer's Daughter"—part of which revolved in the premise that the American voter is such a stupid jerk that he'll cheer for a political speech delivered completely in double-talk, and vote for the deliverer of same.

Ronald Coleman won his Oscar for his performance in "A Double Life," written by those darlings of the letter-head "Fronts," Garson Kanin and Ruth Gordon.

Our official refusal to permit Czechoslovokia to buy Constellations and DC-6's recall the first DC-4 built in this country was sold to the Japanese not long before World War II. Seems we couldn't see our way clear to buy it . . . Though we bought billions of dollars worth of them later.

It was shipped to Japan by boat, broken down into many parts, but the Japs couldn't put it together. So they hired a number of men from the Douglas plant to come to Tokyo and hook up the monster, and then, with an oriental quirk that still confounds the men, the Japs made them do their asembling behind screns, with holes just large enough for them to reach their arms through and a tiny slit through which to look at what they were doing.

Congress Reflects Popular Desire In Reducing Taxes

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Congress, reflecting a popular desire, has brushed aside all partisanship and prepared the way for a reduction in taxes on individual incomes effective this year.

Whether President Truman vetoes or does not veto the bill, there are more than two-thirds of each House who will vote to enact it.

The steady, persistent pressure for tax reduction does not emanate from any one class of individuals. It is a pent-up demand for relief from wartime tax rates. Citizens are quite willing to bear high taxes as a sacrifice for war objectives, but in peacetime high tax rates become a form of punishment for thrift and talent and creative ability.

The need for tax reduction has been apparent ever since the war ended. Congress now is acting on the assumption that war is not near. If war comes, tax rates will be lifted higher overnight.

Cushion Against Depression

The principal argument for tax reduction is the need to protect the nation against depression. The present-day economy is imperilled by the fact that individuals do not have enough money after meeting expenses to invest in securities. Unless risk capital is available from private sources, the government must furnish it. This leads to state socialism and the destruction of individual liberties, including the stifling of the private initiative which has built America.

The radicals, of course, fight every form of tax reduction that can strengthen the present thrift system because they want to demolish it and substitute state capitalism. It is precisely this trend which the CIO and other radical organizations have favored, little realizing that to destroy the private saving and private capital system is to bring the chaos from which communism or fascism usually rise.

President Truman may surprise the country by signing the new tax bill. Certainly he would put a lot of Democrats out on a limb by asking them to sustain a veto and then go before the country against candidates who favor tax reduction.

When such a large number of Democrats favor a bill, it is politically unwise for the President, as party leader, to go contrary to their wishes.

But the two-third votes are there in both Houses for enactment over the veto, and preparations are now in the works at the treasury to handle the tax reduction program.

If, in the next two or three weeks, the international situation should show signs of growing grave, it may be that enough Democrats might change their minds and vote to sustain a veto, but the growing belief now is that the crisis in world affairs will not materially change to an acute stage in the near future.

Lost Revenue Questionable

The estimates, incidentally, that have been made as to the amounts of revenue which will be lost on account of downward changes in tax rates are by no means infallible. The experience of the country with decreased tax rates is that they stimulate business activity to such an extent that corporate receipts and miscellaneous revenue show a marked improvement. It would not be surprising if, instead of the estimated loss of $4,800,000,000 in revenue, the treasury may actually lose less than half that amount. If so, the way will be opened to further tax reduction.

By no stretch of the imagination, to be sure, can the bill just passed by the Senate be called a normal or moderate tax-rate measure. It provides for a reduction, but the rates still will remain far above what they were in 1939.

So far as political benefit from the latest reduction in taxes is concerned, so many Democrats have supported the measure as to make it virtually a bi-partisan affair.

Palestine and Trieste

BECAUSE WE have lived in crises and fear for nearly two decades, we lack the stability to appraise historic values. Cowardice is not caution; it is lack of character; it is egotism degenerated to egocentricity.

It is cowardice rather than principle that controls policy in this country now. It is not the caution of statesmanship in the face of great events; it is the petty fear of those who dare not meet oblivion. It is not national; it is personal.

Let us analyze Palestine and Trieste as examples of the pursuit of opportunity rather than adherence to principle.

The Palestine problem arises out of the Balfour Declaration in 1917. Therefore, there has been ample time to formulate a policy which is based either upon high principle, self-interest, or a combination of both. Up to 1945, the United States ostensibly supported the general purposes of the Balfour Declaration, which recognized the establishment "in Palestine of a national home." The British in 1939 offered, in a White Paper, a solution to that problem which actually was as good, if not superior, to the Partition Plan of the United Nations. This 1939 plan was rejected by American Zionists who led in opposition to Dr. Chaim Weizmann, who, as world head of the Zionists, was willing to accept it.

The then President of the United States, who exerted an unparalled influence over American Jewry, played a double-game, supporting both the Jewish and British positions with such skill as only he could display.

Subsequently war came and went. The Arabs were generally pro-Nazi, but the British, viewing the complicated problems of their waning empire, courted them. Mr. Roosevelt then supported both the Jews and the Arabs so ingeniously that he kept, for himself, the support of the American Jews on election day, while he assisted the Arabs to recreate a universal state, financed by American money and credits.

Harry Truman inherited this situation and viewed it strictly in terms of an American election issue. He wanted to preserve the economic advantages of our association with the Arab universal state, whereas George Marshall wanted to maintain rigidly the diplomatic and military alliance with Great Britain which is the basis of his policy. But they did not wish to antagonize the Jewish vote in big cities.

The Partition Plan was put over by the United States on the assumption that it would assist Truman to be re-elected. As soon as Harry Truman's calculators were assured that not only would he not carry New York State, but that Henry Wallace would probably get more votes in New York City than Truman, the President and his amazing Secretary of State decided to kill Partition, which they have done—killing the last vestige of UN authority along with it.

Their only excuse for killing Partition is that they cannot put it over, largely because they fear an international force lest the Russians demand representation on it equal to that of the United States. Were such a force composed of Citizens of countries other than the United States and Russia, it would undoubtedly include soldiers from Behind-the-Iron-Curtain countries. Having no desire to face that issue, they junk the Charter of the United Nations. Is this the time and the way to abandone it?

Again, Trieste was an Italian city with a mixed population including Yugoslavs. It should have remained Italian, but to placate Stalin and Tito, we endangered the national existence of Italy, threatened the peace of the Mediterranean and imperiled France by making Trieste a "free territory" under a Governor-General appointed by the United Nations.

The "free territory" is now junked and the Italians, on the eve of an election, are encouraged to believe that Trieste will be returned to them. This is, of course, an election bribe and may be wonderful policy.

Manchuria and Ethiopia killed the League of Nations. Palestine and Trieste can kill the United Nations just as effectively. Is that the way the Administration in Washington wants it? If so, why not simply withdraw from UN and say that it was all a mistake? That would make more sense than the immature, opportunistic conduct of the past six months.

The west coast's first big auto plant opened in Van Nuys, California, recently. This is a big step forward in the auto industry but what California really needs is a pedestrian plant.

It won't be long before the cars outnumber the pedestrians and it won't be a sport any more.

Of course, the new plant will make special models for California drivers. The fenders will be already smashed.

The cars will have four speeds in California. First, second, third . . . and sidewalk.

It will be a little unusual seeing the new cars roll off the assembly line with dark glasses on the headlights.

But they're putting sun tan oil in the engine.

The plant is also putting in a new feature for the chamber of commerce . . . convertible license plates. Whenever it rains they flip over to the side marked "Florida."

My brother is working at the auto plant . . . He fills all the tires by letting the air out of his head.

I say Vera Vague browsing around the plant . . . She was looking for some spare parts. I went on a tour of the plant and I was a little embarrassed on the way out . . . The guard took one look at my nose and yelled, "Hey Joe . . . Count the radiator caps."

America Should Be Told About Yalta Parley

If the world situation today is "very, very serious," as Secretary Marshall says, and as President Truman implied in his message to Congress Wednesday, and if the United States is close to war, as former Secretary of State Byrnes evidently thinks, it is high time that the Administration told Congress and the American people about any secret agreements made with Russia at Yalta.

There is a widespread feeling today, among those who fear Soviet expansion as well as among Stalin's apologists, that in dominating Czechoslovakia and campaigning against Finland, Russia is only "consolidating" a position accorded her by Roosevelt and Churchill at the Yalta conference. Wet, more than three years after the event, the public still does not know all that happened at Yalta.

The three-power communique, issued in February, 1945, told nothing except some of the plans for dealing with postwar Germany. It has been assumed that Russia was granted a "sphere of influence" roughly embracing everything east of the Elbe-Adriatic line. It is assumed that Czechoslovakia was included but not Norway. Yet there is no published official record of the conference to prove or disprove these assumptions.

The difficulty is that the more important conversations at Yalta were held by Roosevelt, Stalin and Churchill, with only interpreters present and apparently with no record kept. Roosevelt is dead and cannot say what was agreed upon. Churchill can say, but has remained silent to date. Stalin, too, has kept quiet, though his controlled press assumes that every extension of the Iron Curtain is right, proper and even legal. Surely one would suppose that if Roosevelt "awarded" Czechoslovakia to Russia the Kremlin would be justifying its claim now by quoting chapter and verse from Yalta.

Perhaps Roosevelt agreed that Czechoslovakia should be oriented toward Moscow in foreign policy but should remain free and independent in domestic affairs. But if that is true, the Communist coup at Prague can hardlly be called a "consolidation" of the Soviet position.

The blunt truth is that the American people and their Congress do not know what happened at Yalta. If President Truman and Secretary Marshall know, it is their duty in this tense hour to tell the country. If they do not know, because of incomplete record kept, there should be no apologies for or resignation to whatever Russia wants to do in an assumed sphere of influence.

The American people cannot be held responsible for rumors or suspicions about a set of personal and private agreements made by a President who was gravely ill at the time.

Meat consumption in the United States is declining, possibly because sandwich slicing has been perfected to a fine art.

Backward Nations Must Be Helped To Grow Food

Although there is a common belief that world hunger is attributable to the fact that food production is far below the prewar volume, this is not the case. World food production is only seven per cent below prewar figures.

In many important categories, such as wheat and coarse grains, food has almost regained prewar production, and better crops are expected this year. But the world has gained 10 per cent in population since the war began despite the staggering loss of life during the conflict. This gain is what is pinching the supply of eatables.

It is now clear that merely regaining prewar production of food will not be sufficient. Food production should be stepped up at least 10 per cent. A 25 per cent hike would not create surpluses. Before the war many people did not have enough to eat.

How is this increase in food production to be attained? The United States is one of the few countries that has succeeded in increasing their crops. That is because better methods of cultivation and management of the soil have been adopted. But in this country soil resources are pictured as deteriorating.

The best world program, when the political situation has settled down, will be to teach backward countries how to get the most out of their land. They lack modern machinery and the know-how of fertilization and conservation methods. River valleys must be controlled to prevent floods and provide irrigation. Millions of acres must be restored to production through reclamation projects.

The objection that this would cancel some of America's export markets is hardly revelant. America is gaining population and will require more food, too. And if this sphere is ever to be converted into a peaceful world, starvation must be eliminated. Hunger breeds war.

Doctor's say there is no immunity from the common cold. Nor immunity from friendly advice as to cures.

Another Spring Has Made Its Debut

Spring tells the world: "Wake up!" Poets are stirred to voice the same idea, in a general way, though not so effectively. Spring, which arrived about noon on Saturday, does something for practically everyone—as it was intended to do. It is Nature's promissory note.

Spring on the land is the beautiful stage setting for the action of human aspirations in steady conflict with earthly vicissitude. Life is a play that must go to its inevitable climax of eternal destiny.

Spring may mean less to the young and well and untroubled than to the ill, the aging and harried, as spectators of its unfolding pageant. The strongest impression of spring is its invariable recurrence, its perhaps delayed but never-failing certainty. It is the triumphant overtone of human existence.

The phrase "hope springs eternal" tells the story, for spring and hope are one. It may be true that "where there's life, there's hope;" but it is more largely true that where there's hope, there is life.

Two political parties this year may spend $50,000,000. Speech during a campaign is no longer free.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Precautions In Poor Circulation

Poor circulation resulting from diabetes, hardening of the arteries, or Buerger's disease is more likely to manifest itself in the lower than the upper extremities. The condition is not always troublesome but symptoms frequently make their appearance after injury, infection, or some foolish misdemeanor. This is particularly true of those who develop ulcers, gangrene, and other distressing lesions.

In other words, when the blood supply is inadequate, mishaps of all types must be avoided as they can precipitate unpleasant complications. This means that the feet should be handled "with kid gloves." In walking, care ought to be taken not to stub a toe; when standing in a street car or bus, if possible the individual must guard against having his feet stepped on by parking at a safe distance from other passengers. The working man who lifts heavy objects should be equally cautious.

Another valuable preventive measure is the use of well fitted shoes and hose. This will minimize not only corns, calluses, and pressure points but trauma. Furthermore, heavy socks keep the parts warm.

Cleanliness cannot be overemphasized. Many minor abrasions and scratches would never have become infected had the feet been washed daily. When bathing or soaking the extremities, the water should not be too hot because heat increases local metabolism. This in turn calls for more blood but since the arteries are narrowed and cannot deliver the necessary quota, tissue damage ensues. Moreover, it is a good rule to keep the skin soft with olive oil, cocoa butter, or cold cream to discourage cracking and callus formation.

Ringworm is also partial to the victim of poor circulation and unless this infection is controlled, it often proves annoying. But strong remedies may be dangerous for tissues with a sluggish blood supply. Should they burn the area, painful lesions are produced and healing is slow. Hence only bland ointments or solutions are advised. Soaking the feet in a dilute potassium permanganate preparation is ideal in the circumstances.

The care of the nails must not be taken too lightly. The elderly man or woman with a slight tremor often cuts the skin while pedicuring which invites infection that is not easy to heal. Removing the cuticle with various acids may have a disastrous result and therefore, is forbidden. Regular visits to a skilled chiropodist are preferred.

The physician has many medicines and gadgets for improving the circulation. Tobacco decreases the blood flow but unless the individual uses discretion in smoking, the effect of these remedies may be nullified.

Painful Spot

E. A. writes: What would cause a burning sensation in the region of the left shoulder blade?

Reply

This symptom usually follows a disturbance in the muscle or fibrous tissue in this area. If associated with other manifestations such as cough, weight loss, etc., a chest X-ray is in order.

Skin Disorders

H. T. writes: Are lupus vulgaris and psoriasis the same?

Reply

No. In lupus the lesions are usually confined to the nose and upper cheeks whereas in psoriasis the elbows, knees, scalp, and back are preferred. The causative factors are entirely different.

Unusual

C. B. writes: Can a grownup develop chorea?

Reply

Yes, in rare instances. The disease is more common in children because the cause (rheumatic fever) is more common in youngsters.

Eye Rolling

A. N. writes: What is nystagmus?

Reply

In this disturbance, the eyes roll up and down, around, or from side to side. Sometimes no cause can be found; in others, an ear or nerve disorder is responsible.

DILATED VEIN

Mrs. K. writes: I have an enlarged vein in my right breast. I am 44 years old. Should I see a doctor about this?

Reply

Yes. The chances are that this disorder does not represent a serious condition such as malignancy, but a thorough examination is necessary to make certain.

IMBIBES AIR

O.C.H. writes: What kind of person is an air swallower?

Reply

One who makes a habit of gulping the atmosphere. The usual sequence of events is first to swallow air and then belch. The individual is aware of the latter but not the former and cannot be convinced until he is placed in front of the fluoroscope, where the phenomenon can be demonstrated.

DEPENDS UPON CAUSE

H.D.F. writes: What is the remedy for high metabolism in a thin person?

Reply

First the reason for the condition must be discovered. For example, if tests show that overactivity of the thyroid gland is responsible, the use of propylthiouracil or surgical removal of the structure may be indicated.

Munitions Board Ignores Alcohol Shortage; No Unemployment Worries For Truman; Key Materials Need Controls; Coal Negotiators Hard-Headed

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, March 23—While the brass hats demand the drafting of men for the Army, they continue to let the big distillers pour out more and more whisky, despite the fact that the nation's industrial alcohol reserve remains dangerously low.

Industrial alcohol was one of the most strategic materials of the late war, being used in producing synthetic rubber, chemicals, insecticides, TNT and munitions. In fact, industrial alcohol was considered so essential that more than 200,000,000 gallons were stockpiled in the year 1943 alone.

Today, however, only about 21,000,000 gallons of industrial alcohol are stockpiled—enough to last 10 short days if war should break.

While the big distillers are ignoring Truman's plea for voluntary rationing by adding to the already groaning supplies of whisky in warehouses, the Army and Navy Munitions Board is doing absolutely nothing about stockpiling industrial alcohol for defense.

Real fact is that we face a worse industrial alcohol shortage, in event of an emergency, than before the last war—because at that time we had a big grain surplus. Now we have virtually no grain surplus, with foreign aid taking about all we can spare.

Meanwhile, the brass hat-controlled munitions board hasn't even bothered to put industrial alcohol on its list of "strategic and critical materials."

Truman Gets Job Offer

President Truman has already been offered another job—if the voters retire him in November. The job was offered him by William McKinley Floyd of Unalaska, Alaska, who is national commander of the regular veterans association, a small organization with about 85,000 members in the United States and its territories.

Floyd informed Truman that he was retiring as national commander and then had nerve enough to add:

"I'm out after a good successor and am sure you can be elected if I place your name in the nominations. The political fates are sometimes unkind and if you should be out of a job in November, this would be a good place for you to land.

"The position has security—it's steady," continued the regular veterans chief. "I've held it for five years. Who knows, it might turn into a lifetime job for you."

Truman looked a little flabbergasted. Then he grinned. "Thanks very much," he chuckled, "but I'll have to refuse the nomination. I'm going to be very busy on other matters."

Airplanes Need Materials Control

President Truman has just received a blunt warning from William M. Allen, president of the Boeing Aircraft Company, that the government must reinstitute allocations of key materials, such as aluminum, if the U.S.A. is to build airplanes for future emergencies.

Allen, who was accompanied to the White House by Sen. Warren Magnuson of Washington, told Truman that his company now is producing a super successor to the B-29, known as the B-50, at the rate of seven planes a month. The new planes can outstrip both the 3,200-mile range of the B-29 and its 350-mile-an-hour speed. Boeing is also testing a new jet bomber of revolutionary speed and range. But, Allen told the President:

"We can't begin turning out these new planes in any quantity unless there are allocations of the materials needed to produce them, so we can plan our production schedules at least six months ahead. We can gear up our production of B-50's right now to 40 a month, but not without material allocations."

Truman replied that he was pleased to learn of the new revolutionary planes, but sidestepped a commitment on controlling strategic materials. Instead, he reminded his callers that the B-50 pointed up the need for universal military training and selective service.

"I realize the importance of air power," the President declared, "but that alone is not the answer. We must have an integrated and well-rounded system of all three services--land, sea, and air. We still can't do without ground troops. To show you what I mean, that new B-50 you are making probably will require triple the ground crew of the B-29."

Hard-Headed Coal Negotiators

Here's the inside story of what happened when hard-working federal conciliator Cyrus Ching met with John L. Lewis and Ezra Van Horn, spokesman for the coal operators, in an effort to settle the growing coal strike last week.

John L. Lewis not only stubbornly refused to back down on his demands for pensions for coal miners, but even declined to consider a compromise proposal.

Lewis told Ching that his demand for a $100-a-month retirement pension for all United Mine Workers union members who are 60 years old and have worked 20 years in the mines still stands, despite operator protests that only actual employees in coal mines should be eligible for pensions.

Under Lewis's plan, former miners who quit work five or ten years ago or longer would be eligible for pensions, provided they still carried a UMW card. This would make William Green, now head of the AFL, and Phil Murray, head of the CIO, eligible for pensions, though they haven't mined coal for years.

When Ching asked Lewis if he would be willing to have further discussions with Van Horn in an effort to work out their differences, the mine labor chief flatly declared: "No."

"Further meetings would be a "waste of time" and "serve no good purpose," Lewis declared.

However, conciliator Ching found the coal operators' spokesmen equally determined to give no ground. Meeting later with Van Horn, Ching was told that further meetings between the operators and Lewis would be useless.

Ching then asked Van Horn if he would offer a compromise plan to Lewis's pension demands. Van Horn replied that no compromise was possible as long as Lewis stood on his arbitrary demands. He did promise, however, that the operators might have something to offer in the way of compromise in about a week, when a study of the pension question, now being made for the operators by a Philadelphia firm, is completed.

In other words, Van Horn informed Ching that it would be at least another week before the operators will be ready to start negotiating with Lewis.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

New York, Mar. 23—(INS)-The passing show:

For an accurate thermometer reading on the state of the so-called cold war, cock an eye at the air force.

A year ago it was beating the publicity tom-toms for the 6-engined B-36, the 8-jet B-35 flying wing and the bell rocket-ship, the XS-1. The publicity handouts were wondrous and complete, with art.

Last August it reluctantly asked all foreign observers to leave the Muroc Training Base. A proposed trans-continental flight of the flying wing was called off. Then reporters were told, with some reluctance, that Muroc was no longer open to them.

Just before last Christmas an aviation trade journal named "Aviation Week" broke the story that the XS-1 had broken through the sound barrier several times, piloted by Capt. Charles Yaeger of the air force and by NACA test pilots Howard Lilly and Herb Hoover.

Instead of huzzahs, heralding the dawn of a new age of flight, an effort was made to stop the issue of the magazine and the air force turned the case over to the department of Justice for possible action. Mr. Clark's office is still looking into what, all of a sudden, became a serious security break, though, as yet, we have no official press censorship.

One prominent scientist close to the core of U. S. secret weapon-making in World War II is said to have screamed when the news of the XS-1's performance leaked out. He cried that we had thus lost the advantage of at least a year in our still-unstated arms race with Russia.

Was reading the paper the other night, I was, and my wife's name popped out as if catapulated at my kisser. Seems the inoffensive lady had been nominated for vice president of the United States on a fourth party ticket headed by Louis Bromfield, the famous politico-novelist.

Well, sir, didn't like the idea at all, I didn't, particularly with our hovel in need of a good spring cleaning. But the more I thought of it, the more attractive became the prospect of becoming known as the second man of the land,which would place me on the left of the first lady, Mrs. Bromfield, at state dinners.

Bromfield didn't look too healthy to me the last time I looked at him through the personal fog I carry with me. And you know what the presidency does to a man. I don't wish him any hard luck, if we make the grade, but the pressure of foreign and domestic events, plus maybe a triple mickey, might put the old lady in the top spot.

The porch ought to be finished by the time we make it, after a decent period of mourning for President Bromfield. The salary is right, too, $75,000 plus $25,000 a year expenses. That would just be a beginner, of course. We could fix up the kids in some good spots, and I'd have the "My Day" column to write.

Not long ago, amid thumping breast-beating, Hollywood swore that it was opposed to all film-matters reflecting on the integrity of the U. S. and its people. In even louder tones it eschewed all connection with Hollywood personnel whose hue ranged from pale pink to red politically.

So the coveted Oscard were handed out the other night. One went to a fine young lady named Loretta Young, and it couldn't happen to a nicer gal. But Miss Young won her statue for her role in a movie named "The Farmer's Daughter"—part of which revolved in the premise that the American voter is such a stupid jerk that he'll cheer for a political speech delivered completely in double-talk, and vote for the deliverer of same.

Ronald Coleman won his Oscar for his performance in "A Double Life," written by those darlings of the letter-head "Fronts," Garson Kanin and Ruth Gordon.

Our official refusal to permit Czechoslovokia to buy Constellations and DC-6's recall the first DC-4 built in this country was sold to the Japanese not long before World War II. Seems we couldn't see our way clear to buy it . . . Though we bought billions of dollars worth of them later.

It was shipped to Japan by boat, broken down into many parts, but the Japs couldn't put it together. So they hired a number of men from the Douglas plant to come to Tokyo and hook up the monster, and then, with an oriental quirk that still confounds the men, the Japs made them do their asembling behind screns, with holes just large enough for them to reach their arms through and a tiny slit through which to look at what they were doing.

Congress Reflects Popular Desire In Reducing Taxes

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Congress, reflecting a popular desire, has brushed aside all partisanship and prepared the way for a reduction in taxes on individual incomes effective this year.

Whether President Truman vetoes or does not veto the bill, there are more than two-thirds of each House who will vote to enact it.

The steady, persistent pressure for tax reduction does not emanate from any one class of individuals. It is a pent-up demand for relief from wartime tax rates. Citizens are quite willing to bear high taxes as a sacrifice for war objectives, but in peacetime high tax rates become a form of punishment for thrift and talent and creative ability.

The need for tax reduction has been apparent ever since the war ended. Congress now is acting on the assumption that war is not near. If war comes, tax rates will be lifted higher overnight.

Cushion Against Depression

The principal argument for tax reduction is the need to protect the nation against depression. The present-day economy is imperilled by the fact that individuals do not have enough money after meeting expenses to invest in securities. Unless risk capital is available from private sources, the government must furnish it. This leads to state socialism and the destruction of individual liberties, including the stifling of the private initiative which has built America.

The radicals, of course, fight every form of tax reduction that can strengthen the present thrift system because they want to demolish it and substitute state capitalism. It is precisely this trend which the CIO and other radical organizations have favored, little realizing that to destroy the private saving and private capital system is to bring the chaos from which communism or fascism usually rise.

President Truman may surprise the country by signing the new tax bill. Certainly he would put a lot of Democrats out on a limb by asking them to sustain a veto and then go before the country against candidates who favor tax reduction.

When such a large number of Democrats favor a bill, it is politically unwise for the President, as party leader, to go contrary to their wishes.

But the two-third votes are there in both Houses for enactment over the veto, and preparations are now in the works at the treasury to handle the tax reduction program.

If, in the next two or three weeks, the international situation should show signs of growing grave, it may be that enough Democrats might change their minds and vote to sustain a veto, but the growing belief now is that the crisis in world affairs will not materially change to an acute stage in the near future.

Lost Revenue Questionable

The estimates, incidentally, that have been made as to the amounts of revenue which will be lost on account of downward changes in tax rates are by no means infallible. The experience of the country with decreased tax rates is that they stimulate business activity to such an extent that corporate receipts and miscellaneous revenue show a marked improvement. It would not be surprising if, instead of the estimated loss of $4,800,000,000 in revenue, the treasury may actually lose less than half that amount. If so, the way will be opened to further tax reduction.

By no stretch of the imagination, to be sure, can the bill just passed by the Senate be called a normal or moderate tax-rate measure. It provides for a reduction, but the rates still will remain far above what they were in 1939.

So far as political benefit from the latest reduction in taxes is concerned, so many Democrats have supported the measure as to make it virtually a bi-partisan affair.

These Days

Palestine and Trieste

BECAUSE WE have lived in crises and fear for nearly two decades, we lack the stability to appraise historic values. Cowardice is not caution; it is lack of character; it is egotism degenerated to egocentricity.

It is cowardice rather than principle that controls policy in this country now. It is not the caution of statesmanship in the face of great events; it is the petty fear of those who dare not meet oblivion. It is not national; it is personal.

Let us analyze Palestine and Trieste as examples of the pursuit of opportunity rather than adherence to principle.

The Palestine problem arises out of the Balfour Declaration in 1917. Therefore, there has been ample time to formulate a policy which is based either upon high principle, self-interest, or a combination of both. Up to 1945, the United States ostensibly supported the general purposes of the Balfour Declaration, which recognized the establishment "in Palestine of a national home." The British in 1939 offered, in a White Paper, a solution to that problem which actually was as good, if not superior, to the Partition Plan of the United Nations. This 1939 plan was rejected by American Zionists who led in opposition to Dr. Chaim Weizmann, who, as world head of the Zionists, was willing to accept it.

The then President of the United States, who exerted an unparalled influence over American Jewry, played a double-game, supporting both the Jewish and British positions with such skill as only he could display.

Subsequently war came and went. The Arabs were generally pro-Nazi, but the British, viewing the complicated problems of their waning empire, courted them. Mr. Roosevelt then supported both the Jews and the Arabs so ingeniously that he kept, for himself, the support of the American Jews on election day, while he assisted the Arabs to recreate a universal state, financed by American money and credits.

Harry Truman inherited this situation and viewed it strictly in terms of an American election issue. He wanted to preserve the economic advantages of our association with the Arab universal state, whereas George Marshall wanted to maintain rigidly the diplomatic and military alliance with Great Britain which is the basis of his policy. But they did not wish to antagonize the Jewish vote in big cities.

The Partition Plan was put over by the United States on the assumption that it would assist Truman to be re-elected. As soon as Harry Truman's calculators were assured that not only would he not carry New York State, but that Henry Wallace would probably get more votes in New York City than Truman, the President and his amazing Secretary of State decided to kill Partition, which they have done—killing the last vestige of UN authority along with it.

Their only excuse for killing Partition is that they cannot put it over, largely because they fear an international force lest the Russians demand representation on it equal to that of the United States. Were such a force composed of Citizens of countries other than the United States and Russia, it would undoubtedly include soldiers from Behind-the-Iron-Curtain countries. Having no desire to face that issue, they junk the Charter of the United Nations. Is this the time and the way to abandone it?

Again, Trieste was an Italian city with a mixed population including Yugoslavs. It should have remained Italian, but to placate Stalin and Tito, we endangered the national existence of Italy, threatened the peace of the Mediterranean and imperiled France by making Trieste a "free territory" under a Governor-General appointed by the United Nations.

The "free territory" is now junked and the Italians, on the eve of an election, are encouraged to believe that Trieste will be returned to them. This is, of course, an election bribe and may be wonderful policy.

Manchuria and Ethiopia killed the League of Nations. Palestine and Trieste can kill the United Nations just as effectively. Is that the way the Administration in Washington wants it? If so, why not simply withdraw from UN and say that it was all a mistake? That would make more sense than the immature, opportunistic conduct of the past six months.

The west coast's first big auto plant opened in Van Nuys, California, recently. This is a big step forward in the auto industry but what California really needs is a pedestrian plant.

It won't be long before the cars outnumber the pedestrians and it won't be a sport any more.

Of course, the new plant will make special models for California drivers. The fenders will be already smashed.

The cars will have four speeds in California. First, second, third . . . and sidewalk.

It will be a little unusual seeing the new cars roll off the assembly line with dark glasses on the headlights.

But they're putting sun tan oil in the engine.

The plant is also putting in a new feature for the chamber of commerce . . . convertible license plates. Whenever it rains they flip over to the side marked "Florida."

My brother is working at the auto plant . . . He fills all the tires by letting the air out of his head.

I say Vera Vague browsing around the plant . . . She was looking for some spare parts. I went on a tour of the plant and I was a little embarrassed on the way out . . . The guard took one look at my nose and yelled, "Hey Joe . . . Count the radiator caps."

Kelly Schedules Sharp Production Cut Next Week

Production at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant here will be cut from 85 to 90 per cent next week as a result of a sharp slump in sales and in order to make certain mechanical changes at the plant.

The production schedule calls only for a very limited number of passenger tires amounting from 10 to 15 per cent of normal schedules.

The week's curtailment of operations will affect from 1,600 to 1,700 workers, between 80 and 90 per cent of the employes, a plant spokesman said.

He added the move is not a furlough, but more like calling "time out" for a week in order to avoid building up too much inventory stock and to enable the plant to make the mechanical changes at a time when heavy production is not needed.

Present plans call for the company to resume its current four days a week schedule the following week, but the final decision on the work schedule for that period will be based on sales in the next 10 days.

It would have been necessary to cut production partially or totally in making the necessary plant changes, some of which were installed on a temporary basis when the plant was being reconverted to peacetime operations.

Some of the mechanical changes will require all of next week to complete, the spokesman said.

Cane and beet sugar of equal degree of refinement give equal results in canning. The quantity of sugar called for in recipes is liked by the average person, but it can and should be adjusted to suit the taste of those for whom the fruit is canned.

Fort Hill Championship Team Honored At Dinner

Recognition Is Also Paid Coach

Mr. and Mrs. Simeon T. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hilton, Miss Marilyn Ashbaugh and Miss Alberta Ford entertained in honor of the Fort Hill High School Boys state championship basketball team with a spaghetti dinner last night at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Other guests were Coach John J. Cavanaugh and Mrs. Cavanaugh, Robert Bigler, assistant coach, and Mrs. Bigler and Victor D. Heisey, principal, and Mrs. Heisey.

Verbal recognition was paid to the fact that Coach Cavanaugh, who is rounding out his 20th year as coach, had a championship team his first and 20th years here. He has had several other championship teams while here. A few remarks were made by Coach Cavanaugh, Wilford Dean, and Clinton "Buddy" Cage, co-captains; and Mrs. Heisey, who praised the boys and coach.

Tricks of magic by Oscar Parrish featured the evening's entertainment.

The city trophy centered the dinner table and from it were extended red ribbons to each place card, a five-inches tall replica of basketball players in the Fort Hill red and white uniform.

Emery Bus Lines Intra-State Fares To Be Increased

Change Effective On April 1, Emery Says

A tariff filed by Emery Motor Coach Lines with the Maryland Public Service Commission provides that effective April 1, Maryland intra-state fares will be increased at the rate of 10 per cent for one way and round trip fares and for 20 per cent increase in commuter rates, the company announced last night.

R. L. Emery, president, said the 10 per cent increase will end in the nearest five or zero and that similar adjustments will be made in the 20 per cent rates.

He said the present fares have been inexistence on the line for the past 12 years. The increase, he added, still does not offset the increase in operating costs.

The application filed in February has been approved by the commission, he explained. The firm said there were no written protests to the new rate schedule.

The only noted increase in the fares which become effective April 1, is in the 35 cent fare which, when boosted five cents to 40 cents requires the payment of six cents in federal transportation tax for a total of 46 cents.

The 58 cent rate from Cumberland to McCoole, to be increased to 63 cents, involves no increase in the federal tax.

For commuters, a 10-ride ticket from here to North Branch which now costs $1.35 will be increased to $1.60, a 25-cent boost.

The adjustment in fares to five and zero will not give the company an overall 10 and 20 per cent boost, but will average from 7½ to 9 per cent, the firm said.

A 12 cents an hour increase granted to drivers becomes effective March 31 and amounts to more than a 10 per cent boost in salary, the firm added.

Baltimore Firm

Beall High School, a five foot sidewalk will be laid, and the 44-foot width will again be paved for the intersection.

Between these two points the road will be graded for 44 feet, but will be paved with concrete 28 feet wide. In the center of this 28 foot paved roadway will be a four-foot hot-mix blacktop dividing line, leaving 12 feet of concrete on each side.

On ascending grades, the pavement will be widened to provide a third lane for slow moving traffic, Chaires explained.

The engineer said the low bidder on the job has the reputation of being a big and fast operator. The firm is well equipped and once the contract is let, Chaires predicted work will start in a matter of a few days. The contract calls for completion in a total of 210 working days, he said.

Scouts Promoted

monies will be conducted by Bernard Beck, Scoutmaster of Troop 8, and Faye Gum, assistant Scoutmaster of Troop 15.

Bucy said that all troops and Scouters in the Cumberland District of the Potomac Council are welcome to attend.

Emery Bus Lines Intra-State Fares To Be Increased

Change Effective On April 1, Emery Says

A tariff filed by Emery Motor Coach Lines with the Maryland Public Service Commission provides that effective April 1, Maryland intra-state fares will be increased at the rate of 10 per cent for one way and round trip fares and for 20 per cent increase in commuter rates, the company announced last night.

R. L. Emery, president, said the 10 per cent increase will end in the nearest five or zero and that similar adjustments will be made in the 20 per cent rates.

He said the present fares have been inexistence on the line for the past 12 years. The increase, he added, still does not offset the increase in operating costs.

The application filed in February has been approved by the commission, he explained. The firm said there were no written protests to the new rate schedule.

The only noted increase in the fares which become effective April 1, is in the 35 cent fare which, when boosted five cents to 40 cents requires the payment of six cents in federal transportation tax for a total of 46 cents.

The 58 cent rate from Cumberland to McCoole, to be increased to 63 cents, involves no increase in the federal tax.

For commuters, a 10-ride ticket from here to North Branch which now costs $1.35 will be increased to $1.60, a 25-cent boost.

The adjustment in fares to five and zero will not give the company an overall 10 and 20 per cent boost, but will average from 7½ to 9 per cent, the firm said.

A 12 cents an hour increase granted to drivers becomes effective March 31 and amounts to more than a 10 per cent boost in salary, the firm added.

Beall High School, a five foot sidewalk will be laid, and the 44-foot width will again be paved for the intersection.

Between these two points the road will be graded for 44 feet, but will be paved with concrete 28 feet wide. In the center of this 28 foot paved roadway will be a four-foot hot-mix blacktop dividing line, leaving 12 feet of concrete on each side.

On ascending grades, the pavement will be widened to provide a third lane for slow moving traffic, Chaires explained.

The engineer said the low bidder on the job has the reputation of being a big and fast operator. The firm is well equipped and once the contract is let, Chaires predicted work will start in a matter of a few days. The contract calls for completion in a total of 210 working days, he said.

Adventists Begin Ingathering Drive

A goal of $850 has been set for the Seventh Day Adventist Church of Cumberland in the annual ingathering drive for mission and welfare work.

Elder R. W. Logan, pastor of the local congregation, said a goal of $2,500,000 has been set for North America as compared to $2, 287,587 last year. This year will mark the 40th year of the plan which has contributed $42,000,000 to world projects of the church.

The Seventh Day Adventists' relief organization reports shipments of more than 1,000 tons of clothing overseas and has expended $2,500,000 for food for the starving of Europe and the Orient. The church's rehabilitation fund has made possible the rebuilding of three hospitals, a publishing house, a college, intermediate school and scores of churches in China; launched eight missions in the South Seas, a hospital and publishing house in the Philippines, hospital in Burma and scores of other projects since the war.

Jobless Paid Half Million In 1947

According to an announcement by Governor William Preston Lane yesterday, jobless benefits totaling $562,061 and averaging $17.83 per check were paid in 1947 by the Unemployment Compensation Division.

The report shows 9,637 initial claims filed here in 1946, while last year the number was 5,217.

Benefits paid under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act in Cumberland totaled $1,006,509 as compared to $1,486,481 in 1946. The number of payments dropped from 76,673 to 50,747.

In the Employment Service Division, 4,766 applications for jobs were received here with 3,214 of that number being hired. Job openings totaled 3,693.

The average check of $17.83 in 1947 was $1.10 less than in 1946. This condition was largely attributed to the fact that while payments were less, the period of payment was longer.

Veteran John Robinson Re-Enlists In Navy

A Navy veteran of 18 months' service, John Burton Robinson, Jr., South Spruce Street, has re-enlisted in the Navy for three years as a seaman first class.

In making the announcement, Chief Torpedoman's Mate Edgar L. Schrader also revealed that the local Naval Enlistment station exceeded its assigned quota for the month of February.

Federal Survey Team Expected Here April 1

Engineers Confer On Flood Project

A federal survey team is expected to come here April 1 to make preliminary surveys for the $12,500,000 Cumberland-Ridgeley flood control project, Col. Donald G. White, district engineer, said yesterday.

Army engineers from the North Atlantic Division and Washington District met with city officials of Cumberland and Ridgeley at City Hall to determine real estate and engineering policies preliminary to the start of work on the project.

A Senate bill allocating $500,000 to Cumberland for the start of flood work is expected to be reported out favorably in two or three weeks, Col. White said.

He told local representatives that a map of the first conduit area, of which there are four, should be completed by May 1 and the remainder by January 1. The four conduits, to be located on Franklin, Wineow, Knox and Pear Streets, constitute the first year's work of the project.

Several figures, ranging from $15,000 to $25,000, were proposed as the amount to be put up by the city for the first phase of the work, but no definite figure was set pending Congressional approval of the $500,000 allocation.

The city's share would come either from current funds or a bond issue. Cumberland has authorization for bond issues totaling $1,500,000 for flood work, and the county $1,000,000.

Local conferences were suggested by Donald V. C. Birrell, chief of the flod control and power division, to determine what means will be employed to relocate water and sewer lines, gas connections and utilities, as well as railroad rights of way which will be affected.

Jack C. Burdette, Baltimore, chief of the real estate division, said the city must have a map of property lines delineating certain areas as part of the process of acquiring necessary land.

Burdette emphasized acquisition of land as the first consideration, in a discussion with City Attorney Thomas B. Finan on methods of obtaining title and ownership. The former said he understood 400 ownerships are involved and that approximately 75 families stand to be displaced.

Llewellyn Walker, of the real estate division, said it is essential that mapping and survey work be completed before a good value estimate can be made. He asked that local appraisers give their estimates in bulk before a government appraiser is sent into the field.

Mayor Thomas S. Post called the meeting to order. In addition to Mayor Post and Councilmen William V. Keegan, Clifton E. Fuller, William J. Edwards and Myers G. Light, Mayor Frank Magruder, Ridgeley, and a delegation from that town; Fred T. Small, of the Celanese Corporation of America plant; William H. Buchholtz, Cumberland city councilman-elect, City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer, City Attorney Finan and United States Commissioner James Alfred Avirett participated in the discussion. Harold W. Smith secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, also attended.

Others here from the North Atlantic Division were Charles B. Chase, of the real estate division; and Joseph M. Kennedy, of the engineering division.

Washington District representatives also included Byron Bird, chief of the engineering division; and Frank P. Shore, assistant chief of flood control and power division.

Ex-GI Is Advised To Stop Living In Past And Bring Himself Up To Date

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

When you say a person is "behind the times," you generally mean that person has old-fashioned ideas.

But there is another way of being behind the times and that is to live in the past, which is a very poor idea.

Living behind the times, I am afraid, is what an ex-GI is doing who writes me the following letter:

"When I was in France with the armed forces, I met a number of French girls. There was one in whom I was really interested and I went steady with her as long as I was in Paris—nearly a year. I promised to marry her, but was talked out of it by my detachment officer who told me I would be sorry if I married a foreigner. I even saw our Army chaplain, and he told me that he thought I would be wiser to marry an American girl.

"Since I've been home, I have gone with several girls but my French girl was nicer than them all. She was twenty-three when I knew her and now would be twenty-five, I was thirty-eight and now forty.

"I never wrote to her and she never wrote to me. It's over two years now but I would love to get in touch with her again. I don't know her street address, only her name and the town she comes from."

Now whether this man wants me to tell him whether or not I think it would be a good idea for him to try and revive this old romance, or whether he just wants me to suggest how he can find out a more detailed address to which he can write, he does not make clear. If it is the latter he wants, all I can say is that he might try the information that he has and simply address his letter to the girl and the town she was living in when he last saw her.

But if he wants my opinion on the advisability of sending such a letter, I would say that he had better let things alone. Two years of complete silence make a wide gap between any two people, particularly when it is a case of a war romance. It is hardly likely that a girl who was fifteen years younger than this man has been devoting as much time to tender memories of him as he has to his memories of her. He still carries her picture, he says, but I doubt very much if she does the same with any picture she may have had of him. The chances are that she has long since forgotten him and found somebody else to fill his place.

In any event, I would vote with the detachment officer and the Army chaplain in this matter, feeling that there are far too many possible complications in the situation to make the chances of a happy marriage very great.

My advice to the writer of this letter, who signs himself "Teddie," is to stop living in the past and bring himself up-to-date in Time. Even though he says he doesn't believe he'll ever find an American girl he will like as well as his French sweetheart, I am quite sure he would get over this idea if he would concentrate on the present instead of dwelling on what has gone by.

Trail's End Of Glory

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March—There is a story marching the rounds of Florida today that is beyond all telling. Its setting is deep in tragedy, but its outline is as brilliant as any rim of stars.

Babe Ruth

It is the story of Babe Ruth, suffering beyond all comprehension, yet valiantly retracing his path of nearly 30 years ago for the good of baseball, for the good of all kids, and for the good of suffering humanity in general—whatever the cause may be.

It is the story of a man who is much greater nearing the trail's end of glory than he ever was hitting his 714 home runs, and giving a vast nation the greatest thrills that sport has ever known.

Babe Ruth has been my friend for over 30 years . . . a great guy, set in mammoth proportions of build, heart and appetite, especially when he was starring from 1914 through 1935 in the box, in the field and above all, at bat.

Broken, but not beaten, a relic of the king that was, he is an even greater man today. His head may be bloody—but it remains unbowed.

I have watched his drawn face, where anyone could see his inward suffering, as he autographed baseballs and score cards.

Here, in the way of gold and glory, here in the way of continued thrills, is the greatest man sport has ever known. Jack Dempsey? One of the tops. Bobby Jones, Ty Cobb, Tommy Hitchcock, Red Grange, Earl Sande?—all great. But the Babe stood alone. He held the throne room and he wore the purple toga because he appealed to more millions, especially to more kids, than all the others put together.

He was Babe Ruth. Recently I've sat and watched him suffer through ball games. His face is drawn. His old bold voice is gone. Physically you wouldn't know him. But the old spirit of sport's all-time top man still carries him along, almost jauntily at times.

The sheer courage of this man is appalling. It more than matches the power and the skill of his home-run days. For here was something I had never seen before—the story of a great star remarching his old paths in agony, with his aching head still held high among the stars.

Looking Back

As I recall the shifts and drifts of time, it was back in 1919, just 29 years ago, that I traveled north from Florida with the Giants and the Red Sox.

The Babe had just been launched as a home-run hitter. He had been one of the greatest left-handed pitchers of all time, with an average that still keeps its place around the top. But this was the year that Ed Barrow had picked for Babe's debut among the sluggers.

Back in 1919, the Babe was about as robust as two atomic bombs. He was a young man of mighty appetites and unrestrained desires that were beyond all curbing. He was something the world of sport had never seen nor known before. He was something the millions took to their hearts.

Big, rough, gentle, tough, powerful, kindly, generous, natural, profane, he caught the fancy of a world. The United States, Japan, India, England, France, Germany—Oriental and Occidental all knew about Babe Ruth.

Now once again, through Florida's heat, the Babe makes his way. . . St. Petersburg, Tampa, Miami, Clearwater, Sarastoa, Bradenton, West Palm Beach, Orlando. I don't believe anyone knows the suffering he has beaten off as he holds his head in two weary hands and bravely waits for the next ordeal.

It would have been so easy—so simple for the Babe to say "I'm sick and need a rest." For the Babe is sick and he needs a rest. But Ruth won't take a rest. No one today can keep him from visiting a sick kid or a broken or a blind human being. He seems to feel they belong to him—and he belongs to them.

He is taking an incredible physical beating for what the Babe believes to be the general good of the human race. This is true. How many have we like that today in public life, in public office? Just give me one name. Just one.

The Babe knows the "paths of glory lead but to the grave." He has no worry about a grave. His only thought has been that he will travel the few remaining miles for the betterment of the kids, the cripples, the heart-weary and the underprivileged, those who might need help and inspiration, as he once needed such help so badly.

It might be discovered some day that big, rowdy, rough Babe is a much bigger man than a great pitcher or the game's greatest homerun hitter.

If you had only followed him in the gray twilight of his career through Florida, you might have agreed with me that possibly the Babe has done more good in this country today than any dozen men you might mention. Or you might make that ten dozen, starting from the top.

There can never be another Babe Ruth. He sits in the twilight of the gods. . .a human being, far above anyone we have in public life today.

Amvets Upset Keyser Moose In "Y" Senior Final, 52-44

Ridgeley, Rainbow, Legion Quints Win

By JOHN L. BORCHERT

Forward Tommy Geatz and Guard Donald "Lefty" Lee sparked a 12 point rally midway in the final period to give the Cumberland Amvets an upset 52 to 44 victory over the Keyser Moose in the final contest on a four game championship card of the YMCA-Jaycee Third Annual Invitational Basketball Tournament last night at the "Y" gymnasium.

The triumph gave the Amvets the Senior Division title and closed the six day tourney. The game was never tied but the score changed hands eight times, the last being when Geatz tossed in a set from the right corner to shove the Amvets into a 39-38 lead, following Jim Clevenger's one-hander which had sent Keyser in front to open the last stanza.

Moose Led 22-21

The Amvets jumped off to a 7-1 lead and held the upper hand, 11-6, at the quarter. The Moose, with sensational foul shooting, fought back to move ahead on Clevenger's one-hander at 18-17 with 2:10 left in the half. Jack Steiner put the Amvets back in front with a jump goal but "Pickle" Jones and Clevenger tossed in twin-pointers to give Keyser a 22-19 margin. Geatz's lay-up closed the half with the Moose on top, 22-21.

Baskets by Geatz and Boyce opened the second half, then Geatz slipped in a lay-up and added a foul and the Amvets staye on top, 37-36, as the final period began. Clevenger's basket gave Keyser its last lead, then Geatz and Lee put on the pressure and the Amvets pulled ahead to win.

Geatz led the Amvets with 21 points while Clevenger had 17 for the Moose.

Legion Runs Wild

The Fort Cumberland Legion, led by Don Lilya's 23 points and Ronnie Sterne's 20, trounced the South End Merchants, 69-15, to take Junior Unlimited honors. Edgar "Barney" Tucker with seven points and Joe Beck with six paced the losers.

The Ridgeley Brokers became the first team to repeat in the three year tourney as they spilled Sisk's Gulfers, 21-17, to take 135 Pound Class honors. Substitute Bob Starkey tossed in two baskets to open the final period breaking a 13-13 tie and the Brokers went on to win. Mike Lehman led the winners with six points while Glenn Wertz had seven markers for the losers.

Rainbow Kids Score

The Rainbow Kids staved off a belated rally by the Dragons to win a 38-26 game and capture 115 Pound Class honors. Trailing 28-8, the Dragons, led by Jackie Rice, cut the Kids' lead to 30-18 but the drive fizzled and the Kids went on to win.

Phil Gambino led the winners with ten points while Rice had 17 to pace the losers.

Curt Simmons, Phils' Rookie, Beats Yankees

Pirates Top Giants, Bosox Defeat Cards

Curt Simmons, the Phillies' highly touted 18-year-old rookie southpaw, set down the world champion New York Yankees with three hits in four innings today as his team won, 6 to 5.

Ed Lopat and Joe Page, Yankee southpaws, were clipped for 12 hits in the most disappointing Yankee pitching exhibition thus far.

In Sacramento, Cal., the New York Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates staged a tight game with the Buccaneers winning, 4 to 2.

Mickey Livingston, third - string Giant catcher, belted a home run in the fifth frame, the 19th New York homer thus far. It was the ninth consecutive game in which a Giant player has hit for the circuit.

Fred Hutchinson, one of the last Tiger players to sign, showed no ill effects from his tardy spring training start by pitching six scoreless innings against the Boston Braves. The Tigers defeated the Braves, 6 to 3.

The Boston Red Sox made it two consecutive triumphs over the St. Louis Cardinals by trimming the National leaguers, 3 to 2. Rookie Clarence Beers was nicked for the tying and winning runs in the eighth.

The Washington Senators and the Cincinnati Reds each got nine hits in their exhibition contest, but the capitalmen converted their blows into a 9 to 5 triumph.

Scheduled games between the Chicago White Sox and the Oakland Beavers and between the Chicago Cubs and the San Francisco seals were cancelled because of wet grounds.

Pennsy Abandons Plans For Service To Bowie

PHILADELPHIA, March 23 (AP) — The Pennsylvania Railroad today abandoned plans for special train service to Bowie, Md., race track for the spring meeting opening Monday.

An order for such service went out prior to the government's action curtailing coal-burning passenger train service.

PRR is electrified only to Bowie, two miles from the track. A railroad spokesman said company officials had discussed with track authorities the possibility of operating specials to Bowie with passengers completing the trip by bus.

"There was no way of getting them the two miles to the track," he said, "so it was decided not to operate special service to Bowie."

Kentucky Trims Baylor For NCAA Title, 58-42

Holy Cross Defeats Kansas State, 60-54

NEW YORK, March 23—(AP)—Kentucky's classy Wildcats won the NCAA basketball championship tonight by overwhelming Baylor, 58-42, before 16,174 fans at Madison Square Garden.

The smart, sharpshooting boys from the blue grass country succeed Holy Cross' Crusaders, who triumphed over Kansas State, 60-54, in a preliminary consolation game for third place.

Kentucky and Baylor may meet again this season since both are participants in the Olympic tryouts opening at the Garden Saturday.

The Kentuckians won the eastern NCAA title by defeating Holy Cross here Saturday night while Baylor, champion of the Southwest Conference, was annexing the western division at Kansas City with a final win over Kansas State.

Adolph Rupp's southeastern conference champions stepped off to an early 13-1 lead and were never headed, leading 29-16 at the half.

Baylor, scoreless for the first five minutes, pulled up to 44-35 after intermission but the Wildcats staged another spurt and won breezing.

Alex Groza, Kentucky's six-foot-seven center, dumped in 14 points to lead the scoring. Ralph Beard, the Wildcats' All-America star, tallied 12 in addition to contributing a fine floor game.

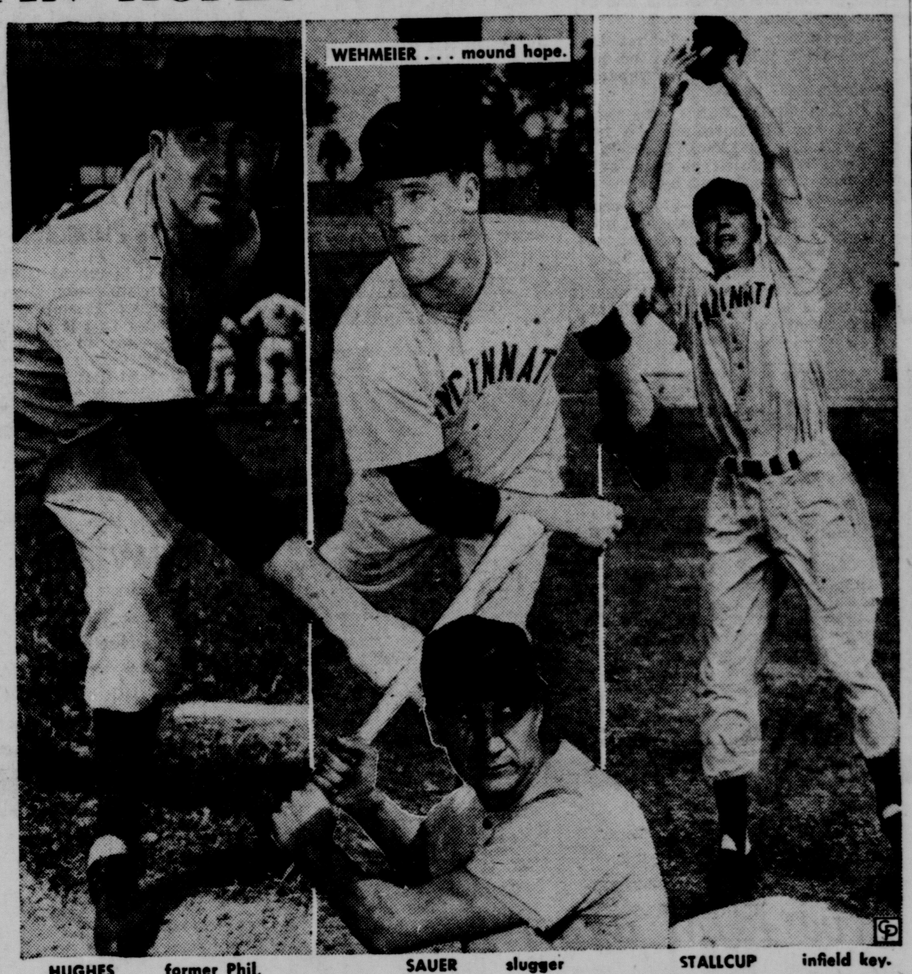
Bill Johnson of Baylor registered ten points but only three field goals, the maximum permitted by the close-guarding Kentuckians.

It was not until seven and a half minutes had gone that Baylor connected from the field—an easy layup by Don Heathington. The first Baylor scratch was a free throw by Jim Owen five and a half minutes after the game's start.

It was Kentucky's 16th straight verdict and 34th win in 36 games this year.

The victory and championship earned Kentucky the right to meet Louisville, NIAB champions in the finale of Saturday night's double header in the Olympic playoffs. Baylor will meet New York University National Invitation runner-up, in the finale of Saturday afternoon's Olympic twin bill.

REDS, MINUS EDDIE MILLER, PIN HOPES ON PRIZE ROOKIE



WEHMEIER . . . mound hope.

HUGHES former Phil. SAUER slugger STALLCUP infield key.

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

TAMPA, Fla.—The old passed out and the new moved in when Johnny Neun took over as manager of the Cincinnati Reds a year ago. Today, the reconstruction period is over and the Reds, who wound up a surprising fifth last year, are going through a transitional phase as their young, husky ball players get set to prove they are here to stay.

"Last year we had to find out a lot of things," said Neun as he rested between two-a-day workouts here at Plant Field. "We compared men for certain spots and this year we believe we have a good idea where each one fits."

Neun, who did a fine job last year despite impressions gained from the pop off of Eddie Miller during the winter months, said that "most work will be pointed toward the opening of the season." He admits, in other words, the Redlegs are just about set.

"Our young players have gained in experience. And so have I," the Red pilot said with a smile. "I say this squad has definitely more ability than our 1947 team and if we don't do better this year it's because other clubs have improved."

The key to the Red's chances for a high rating depend on the occupants of the space between first and third bases.

Miller, who has been the strong boy in the infield for several years, is no more one of the Reds following his outspoken utterances at a Hamilton, O., club meeting where he answered questions thrown at him by his audience, some of which reportedly were misquoted. Observers here state the Miller comments weren't taken too seriously but it was thought the ball club would get along better without him after he had made them.

NEUN, a former newspaperman, made little comment on Miller's remarks although he did say, with a smile: "We have no control over what people say—and print."

Absence of Miller puts the spotlight on a rookie, Thomas Virgil Stallcup, who's been called "the best looking shortstop to come up since Lou Boudreau."

Roger Peckinpaugh is the author of that quote and Bruno Betzel, another canny baseball man, said "he's the best shortstop I've ever looked at."

Stallcup, who hails from Ravenstord, N. C., looks like Marty Marion and with his 6-foot 3-inch height he will be the biggest shortstop the Reds have had in many, many years.

Stallcup played 76 games for Jersey City last year. He pounded the ball for a .338 average in addition to playing a spectacular game. Whether he can stand the gaff in the majors is another thing, but he's one who may make or break the Reds.

At second base Neun has Benny Zientara, a weak hitter, and Bob Adams, who split the assignment with Zientara last year.

Babe Young, who was bought from the Giants last summer, and considerably strengthened the team, is the first sacker and Grady Hatton the third baseman.

Where Ted Kluszewski, the minor league slugger who has had two chances with the Reds, fits is anybody's guess. "Kluszewski has advanced in his hitting but he needs plenty of polish," says Neun.

Last year's experimentation, Neun explained, proved that Kluszewski, who swatted .377 for Memphis, showed that he can't play the outfield. And to watch him play first, it appears he'll go out for more seasoning. He still catches 'em with one hand and sometimes he stops 'em with his bare hands.

Neun will carry three catchers. The two regulars are Ray Lamanno and Ray Mueller. The third will be selected from this trio: Ferrell Anderson, from Fort Worth; Hugh Poland, with Cincy last year, and Dewey Williams, who played at Rochester.

Frankie Maumholtz, the basketball star who became one of the outstanding rookies for the Reds last year, is the right fielder and the only outfielder sure of his job.

"BAUMY," says Neun, "is in better shape this year because he didn't play basketball last winter. He was all tightened up last spring after a tough cage season but he's okay now. He's going to be one of the finest leadoff men we've ever had in Cincinnati." The Reds gave Baumholtz a hunk of dough to make up for the money he would have made as a pro cager.

Augie Galan, a late arrival in camp, is more or less certain to start in an outfield post. The other spot is a fight between Hank Sauer, the home run king of the International league last year; Johnny Wyrostek, who came to the Reds from the Phillies in the Miller deal; Clyde Vollmer, who played in 78 games for the Reds last year; Marvin Rickert, from the Cubs, and Dutch Mele, a rookie from Syracuse, who was injured in a tavern accident just before training opened and is not on hand yet.

Sauer, who has been impressive in drills here, is a greatly improved outfielder, according to Neun. He definitely is in the Red's picture this year.

The Reds have the best pitcher in the National league in Ewell (Blackie) Blackwell, who set the baseball world on its ear last year with 16 straight victories and a 22-8 season record.

Here's what Neun says of Blackwell:

"He's tops. A great pitcher. The best I've seen in many a day."

"All 15 pitchers have a chance to stay on this ball club," says Neun in discussing his hurling staff.

Besides Blackwell the starters will come from among Johnny Vandermeer, who says he has no arm trouble now; Ken Raffensberger, Bucky Walters, shooting for the "200" circle, and perhaps Tommy Hughes, who came over from the Phillies.

Harry Gumbert is listed for relief only.

Among the young pitchers from last year who are expected to help the Reds considerably this season are Eddie Erautt, who appeared in 36 games and won four; Everett Lively, and Kent Peterson, who won six games.

Of the newcomers much is being said about Walker Cress, a 6-foot 5-inch righthander who won 15 games for New Orleans; Howard Fox, who won 19 for Syracuse, and Herman Wehmeier, a 15-game winner with Syracuse.

Detroit Kegler's 1,892 Cops Third Position In ABC

Ohioan's 692 Takes Fourth In Singles

DETROIT, March 23 (AP)—A disabled war veteran from Detroit and an old campaigner from Cleveland fired their way into a share of the spotlight at today's minor events session of the American Bowling Congress.

Robert Briarton, 25, a comparative newcomer to bowling, rolled a 1892 aggregate to move into third place in the all events with a 210 average. Briarton scored a series of 643-610-639 in the team, doubles and singles for his mark.

Little Eddie Koepp, the first of Cleveland's "name" keglers to appear, earned the other half of the day's notice.

The 140-pound Ohioan, who is ranked eighth over a 10-year period among the thousands of individuals competing in the classic, fired a 692 count for fourth place in the singles. He trails Nick Miller of Massillon, Ohio, the leader, by 17 pins.

Koepp added a 607 in the doubles to his 572 effort in team competition for an 1,871 aggregate and a sixth place deadlock in the all-events with an average of 208 over the rough nine-game route.

Rinty Monaghan Stops Paterson To Annex Title

Knocks Out Flyweight Champ In 7th Round

BELFAST, March 23 (AP)—Rinty Monaghan, the fighting Irish crooner, won the undisputed world flyweight championship tonight by knocking out titleholder Jackie Paterson of Scotland in the seventh round of a scheduled 15 - round engagement.

Monaghan weighed 110¾. Paterson registered at four ounces under the 112-pound limit after taking off several pounds.

Loss of the poundage obviously hurt the defending champion. Paterson kept out of range for six dull rounds before Monaghan caught up with him in the seventh.

Monaghan connected with a hard right to the head and Paterson went down for a nine-count. He arose unsteadily and Monaghan resumed the pursuit.

The Irishman opened up a two-fisted attack that sent Paterson slumping to a sitting position on the canvas. There he took the ten-toll.

Paterson won the crown in 1943 with a first round knockout of Peter Kane.

Mower's Club Given Berth By 4-3 Vote

Forfeit Fee Boosted; Split Season Adopted

The City Softball League became an eight-club circuit last night when Mower's Bakery was admitted to membership at a meeting in the Amvets' Home, Baltimore street.

Two new teams sought franchises in the loop and the vote was 4 to 3 in favor of Mower's Bakery over Tole's Confectionery as the eighth club. The seven holdover teams from 1947 cast ballots.

A 42-game split season schedule was adopted with each club engaging in 21 games per half. The first and second half winners will clash in a best-of-five-games championship series in September.

Openers Set For May 3

Opening contests are scheduled for Monday, May 3, as follows:

North End Social and Athletic Club at Lacy's Delicatets.

Reed's Electricians at Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Amvets at Astor Cab.

Joe's Crusaders at Mower's Bakery.

Each club will be limited to 18 players and the forfeit fees, boosted from $20 to $30, must be posted at the league's next meeting on Tuesday, March 30 at 7:30 p. m. at the Amvets' Home. Contracts forms will be issued to teams at this session.

The starting time of all games will be 6 p. m.

Grimes Heads Umpires

Kenneth Grimes was named umpire-in-chief and given the power to select his own arbiters.

In a drastic move to avoid any repetition of what occurred last season when a player struck an umpire, the league adopted a rule whereby any player found guilty of molesting an umpire will be suspended for the remainder of the season and his team fined $10 which must be paid to the league before the team's next regularly scheduled game. In event the team fails to pay the fine it will be dropped from the league.

President Floyd "Sammy" Cozad presided. Other officers present were Robert "Ace" Baker, vice president, and John R. Kelly, Jr., secretary-treasurer.

Pitt Cage Mentor Presented Plaque

NEW YORK, March 23 (AP)—Dr. H. C. Carlson, University of Pittsburgh coach since 1926, was chosen today by the National Association of Basketball coaches as the man who had done the most for the game over a long period.

Dr. H. C. Carlson

Carlson was presented a plaque by Howard Hobson of Yale, outgoing association president, during a basketball dinner.

Hobson remarked that Carlson had been a charter member of the association, and a past president, serving in 1927. He also is a member of the board of directors, and is the author of two books on the sport.

"I am happily surprised," Carlson said. "This compensates for a losing season."

Trail's End Of Glory

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March—There is a story marching the rounds of Florida today that is beyond all telling. Its setting is deep in tragedy, but its outline is as brilliant as any rim of stars.

Babe Ruth

It is the story of Babe Ruth, suffering beyond all comprehension, yet valiantly retracing his path of nearly 30 years ago for the good of baseball, for the good of all kids, and for the good of suffering humanity in general—whatever the cause may be.

It is the story of a man who is much greater nearing the trail's end of glory than he ever was hitting his 714 home runs, and giving a vast nation the greatest thrills that sport has ever known.

Babe Ruth has been my friend for over 30 years . . . a great guy, set in mammoth proportions of build, heart and appetite, especially when he was starring from 1914 through 1935 in the box, in the field and above all, at bat.

Broken, but not beaten, a relic of the king that was, he is an even greater man today. His head may be bloody—but it remains unbowed.

I have watched his drawn face, where anyone could see his inward suffering, as he autographed baseballs and score cards.

Here, in the way of gold and glory, here in the way of continued thrills, is the greatest man sport has ever known. Jack Dempsey? One of the tops. Bobby Jones, Ty Cobb, Tommy Hitchcock, Red Grange, Earl Sande?—all great. But the Babe stood alone. He held the throne room and he wore the purple toga because he appealed to more millions, especially to more kids, than all the others put together.

He was Babe Ruth. Recently I've sat and watched him suffer through ball games. His face is drawn. His old bold voice is gone. Physically you wouldn't know him. But the old spirit of sport's all-time top man still carries him along, almost jauntily at times.

The sheer courage of this man is appalling. It more than matches the power and the skill of his home-run days. For here was something I had never seen before—the story of a great star remarching his old paths in agony, with his aching head still held high among the stars.

Looking Back

As I recall the shifts and drifts of time, it was back in 1919, just 29 years ago, that I traveled north from Florida with the Giants and the Red Sox.

The Babe had just been launched as a home-run hitter. He had been one of the greatest left-handed pitchers of all time, with an average that still keeps its place around the top. But this was the year that Ed Barrow had picked for Babe's debut among the sluggers.

Back in 1919, the Babe was about as robust as two atomic bombs. He was a young man of mighty appetites and unrestrained desires that were beyond all curbing. He was something the world of sport had never seen nor known before. He was something the millions took to their hearts.

Big, rough, gentle, tough, powerful, kindly, generous, natural, profane, he caught the fancy of a world. The United States, Japan, India, England, France, Germany—Oriental and Occidental all knew about Babe Ruth.

Now once again, through Florida's heat, the Babe makes his way. . . St. Petersburg, Tampa, Miami, Clearwater, Sarastoa, Bradenton, West Palm Beach, Orlando. I don't believe anyone knows the suffering he has beaten off as he holds his head in two weary hands and bravely waits for the next ordeal.

It would have been so easy—so simple for the Babe to say "I'm sick and need a rest." For the Babe is sick and he needs a rest. But Ruth won't take a rest. No one today can keep him from visiting a sick kid or a broken or a blind human being. He seems to feel they belong to him—and he belongs to them.

He is taking an incredible physical beating for what the Babe believes to be the general good of the human race. This is true. How many have we like that today in public life, in public office? Just give me one name. Just one.

The Babe knows the "paths of glory lead but to the grave." He has no worry about a grave. His only thought has been that he will travel the few remaining miles for the betterment of the kids, the cripples, the heart-weary and the underprivileged, those who might need help and inspiration, as he once needed such help so badly.

It might be discovered some day that big, rowdy, rough Babe is a much bigger man than a great pitcher or the game's greatest homerun hitter.

If you had only followed him in the gray twilight of his career through Florida, you might have agreed with me that possibly the Babe has done more good in this country today than any dozen men you might mention. Or you might make that ten dozen, starting from the top.

There can never be another Babe Ruth. He sits in the twilight of the gods. . . a human being, far above anyone we have in public life today.

Amvets Upset Keyser Moose In "Y" Senior Final, 52-44

By JOHN L. BORCHERT

Forward Tommy Geatz and Guard Donald "Lefty" Lee sparked a 12 point rally midway in the final period to give the Cumberland Amvets an upset 52 to 44 victory over the Keyser Moose in the final contest on a four game championship card of the YMCA-Jaycee Third Annual Invitational Basketball Tournament last night at the "Y" gymnasium.

The triumph gave the Amvets the Senior Division title and closed the six day tourney. The game was never tied but the score changed hands eight times, the last being when Geatz tossed in a set from the right corner to shove the Amvets into a 39-38 lead, following Jim Clevenger's one-hander which had sent Keyser in front to open the last stanza.

Moose Led 22-21

The Amvets jumped off to a 7-1 lead and held the upper hand, 11-6, at the quarter. The Moose, with sensational foul shooting, fought back to move ahead on Clevenger's one-hander at 18-17 with 2:10 left in the half. Jack Steiner put the Amvets back in front with a jump goal but "Pickle" Jones and Clevenger tossed in twin-pointers to give Keyser a 22-19 margin. Geatz's lay-up closed the half with the Moose on top, 22-21.

Baskets by Geatz and Boyce opened the second half, then Geatz slipped in a lay-up and added a foul and the Amvets staye on top, 37-36, as the final period began. Clevenger's basket gave Keyser its last lead, then Geatz and Lee put on the pressure and the Amvets pulled ahead to win.

Geatz led the Amvets with 21 points while Clevenger had 17 for the Moose.

Legion Runs Wild

The Fort Cumberland Legion, led by Don Lilya's 23 points and Ronnie Sterne's 20, trounced the South End Merchants, 69-15, to take Junior Unlimited honors. Edgar "Barney" Tucker with seven points and Joe Beck with six paced the losers.

The Ridgeley Brokers became the first team to repeat in the three year tourney as they spilled Sisk's Gulfers, 21-17, to take 135 Pound Class honors. Substitute Bob Starkey tossed in two baskets to open the final period breaking a 13-13 tie and the Brokers went on to win. Mike Lehman led the winners with six points while Glenn Wertz had seven markers for the losers.

Rainbow Kids Score

The Rainbow Kids staved off a belated rally by the Dragons to win a 38-26 game and capture 115 Pound Class honors. Trailing 28-8, the Dragons, led by Jackie Rice, cut the Kids' lead to 30-18 but the drive fizzled and the Kids went on to win.

Phil Gambino led the winners with ten points while Rice had 17 to pace the losers.

James E. Kelley, Jr., will referee all matches on the card while the judges will be Dr. Albert Cook and James Jackson.

Tickets may be purchased in advance of the show at Bob Hohing's store and the Majestic alleys, Frostburg, and the Sports Center, Cumberland.

Curt Simmons, Phils' Rookie, Beats Yankees

Pirates Top Giants, Bosox Defeat Cards

Curt Simmons, the Phillies' highly touted 18-year-old rookie southpaw, set down the world champion New York Yankees with three hits in four innings today as his team won, 6 to 5.

Ed Lopat and Joe Page, Yankee southpaws, were clipped for 12 hits in the most disappointing Yankee pitching exhibition thus far.

In Sacramento, Cal., the New York Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates staged a tight game with the Buccaneers winning, 4 to 2.

Mickey Livingston, third - string Giant catcher, belted a home run in the fifth frame, the 19th New York homer thus far. It was the ninth consecutive game in which a Giant player has hit for the circuit.

Fred Hutchinson, one of the last Tiger players to sign, showed no ill effects from his tardy spring training start by pitching six scoreless innings against the Boston Braves. The Tigers defeated the Braves, 6 to 3.

The Boston Red Sox made it two consecutive triumphs over the St. Louis Cardinals by trimming the National leaguers, 3 to 2. Rookie Clarence Beers was nicked for the tying and winning runs in the eighth.

The Washington Senators and the Cincinnati Reds each got nine hits in their exhibition contest, but the capitalmen converted their blows into a 9 to 5 triumph.

Scheduled games between the Chicago White Sox and the Oakland Beavers and between the Chicago Cubs and the San Francisco seals were cancelled because of wet grounds.

Pennsy Abandons Plans For Service To Bowie

PHILADELPHIA, March 23 (AP) — The Pennsylvania Railroad today abandoned plans for special train service to Bowie, Md., race track for the spring meeting opening Monday.

An order for such service went out prior to the government's action curtailing coal-burning passenger train service.

PRR is electrified only to Bowie, two miles from the track. A railroad spokesman said company officials had discussed with track authorities the possibility of operating specials to Bowie with passengers completing the trip by bus.

"There was no way of getting them the two miles to the track," he said, "so it was decided not to operate special service to Bowie."

Kentucky Trims Baylor For NCAA Title, 58-42

Holy Cross Defeats Kansas State, 60-54

NEW YORK, March 23—(AP)—Kentucky's classy Wildcats won the NCAA basketball championship tonight by overwhelming Baylor, 58-42, before 16,174 fans at Madison Square Garden.

The smart, sharpshooting boys from the blue grass country succeed Holy Cross' Crusaders, who triumphed over Kansas State, 60-54, in a preliminary consolation game for third place.

Kentucky and Baylor may meet again this season since both are participants in the Olympic tryouts opening at the Garden Saturday.

The Kentuckians won the eastern NCAA title by defeating Holy Cross here Saturday night while Baylor, champion of the Southwest Conference, was annexing the western division at Kansas City with a final win over Kansas State.

Adolph Rupp's southeastern conference champions stepped off to an early 13-1 lead and were never headed, leading 29-16 at the half.

Baylor, scoreless for the first five minutes, pulled up to 44-35 after intermission but the Wildcats staged another spurt and won breezing.

Alex Groza, Kentucky's six-foot-seven center, dumped in 14 points to lead the scoring. Ralph Beard, the Wildcats' All-America star, tallied 12 in addition to contributing a fine floor game.

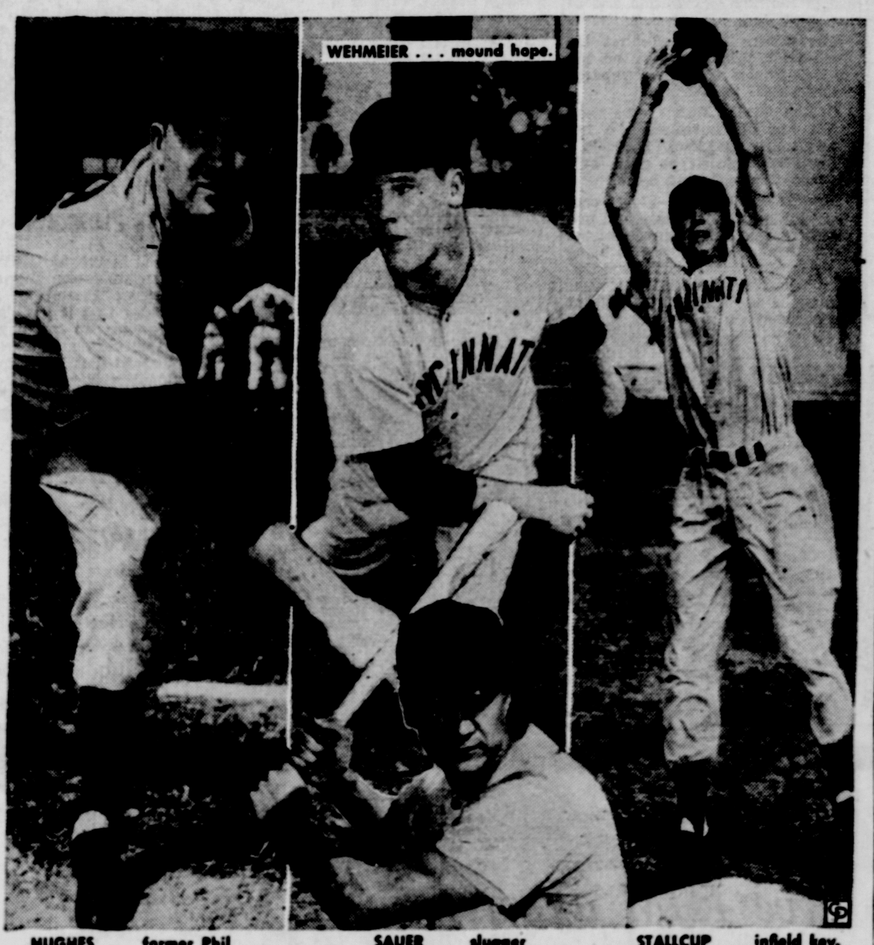
Bill Johnson of Baylor registered ten points but only three field goals, the maximum permitted by the close-guarding Kentuckians.

It was not until seven and a half minutes had gone that Baylor connected from the field—an easy layup by Don Heathington. The first Baylor scratch was a free throw by Jim Owen five and a half minutes after the game's start.

It was Kentucky's 16th straight verdict and 34th win in 36 games this year.

The victory and championship earned Kentucky the right to meet Louisville, NIAB champions in the finale of Saturday night's double header in the Olympic playoffs. Baylor will meet New York University National Invitation runner-up, in the finale of Saturday afternoon's Olympic twin bill.

REDS, MINUS EDDIE MILLER, PIN HOPES ON PRIZE ROOKIE



WEHMEIER . . . mound hope.

HUGHES former Phil. SAUER slugger STALLCUP infield key.

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

TAMPA, Fla.—The old passed out and the new moved in when Johnny Neun took over as manager of the Cincinnati Reds a year ago. Today, the reconstruction period is over and the Reds, who wound up a surprising fifth last year, are going through a transitional phase as their young, husky ball players get set to prove they are here to stay.

"Last year we had to find out a lot of things," said Neun as he rested between two-a-day workouts here at Plant Field. "We compared men for certain spots and this year we believe we have a good idea where each one fits."

Neun, who did a fine job last year despite impressions gained from the pop off of Eddie Miller during the winter months, said that "most work will be pointed toward the opening of the season." He admits, in other words, the Redlegs are just about set.

"Our young players have gained in experience. And so have I," the Red pilot said with a smile. "I say this squad has definitely more ability than our 1947 team and if we don't do better this year it's because other clubs have improved."

The key to the Red's chances for a high rating depend on the occupants of the space between first and third bases.

Miller, who has been the strong boy in the infield for several years, is no more one of the Reds following his outspoken utterances at a Hamilton, O., club meeting where he answered questions thrown at him by his audience, some of which reportedly were misquoted. Observers here state the Miller comments weren't taken too seriously but it was thought the ball club would get along better without him after he had made them.

NEUN, a former newspaperman, made little comment on Miller's remarks although he did say, with a smile: "We have no control over what people say—and print."

Absence of Miller puts the spotlight on a rookie, Thomas Virgil Stallcup, who's been called "the best looking shortstop to come up since Lou Boudreau."

Roger Peckinpaugh is the author of that quote and Bruno Betzel, another canny baseball man, said "he's the best shortstop I've ever looked at."

Stallcup, who hails from Ravenstord, N. C., looks like Marty Marion and with his 6-foot 3-inch height he will be the biggest shortstop the Reds have had in many, many years.

Stallcup played 76 games for Jersey City last year. He pounded the ball for a .338 average in addition to playing a spectacular game. Whether he can stand the gaff in the majors is another thing, but he's one who may make or break the Reds.

At second base Neun has Benny Zientara, a weak hitter, and Bob Adams, who split the assignment with Zientara last year.

Babe Young, who was bought from the Giants last summer, and considerably strengthened the team, is the first sacker and Grady Hatton the third baseman.

Where Ted Kluszewski, the minor league slugger who has had two chances with the Reds, fits is anybody's guess. "Kluszewski has advanced in his hitting but he needs plenty of polish," says Neun.

Last year's experimentation, Neun explained, proved that Kluszewski, who swatted .377 for Memphis, showed that he can't play the outfield. And to watch him play first, it appears he'll go out for more seasoning. He still catches 'em with one hand and sometimes he stops 'em with his bare hands.

Neun will carry three catchers. The two regulars are Ray Lamanno and Ray Mueller. The third will be selected from this trio: Ferrell Anderson, from Fort Worth; Hugh Poland, with Cincy last year, and Dewey Williams, who played at Rochester.

Frankie Maumholtz, the basketball star who became one of the outstanding rookies for the Reds last year, is the right fielder and the only outfielder sure of his job.

"BAUMY," says Neun, "is in better shape this year because he didn't play basketball last winter. He was all tightened up last spring after a tough cage season but he's okay now. He's going to be one of the finest leadoff men we've ever had in Cincinnati." The Reds gave Baumholtz a hunk of dough to make up for the money he would have made as a pro cager.

Augie Galan, a late arrival in camp, is more or less certain to start in an outfield post. The other spot is a fight between Hank Sauer, the home run king of the International league last year; Johnny Wyrostek, who came to the Reds from the Phillies in the Miller deal; Clyde Vollmer, who played in 78 games for the Reds last year; Marvin Rickert, from the Cubs, and Dutch Mele, a rookie from Syracuse, who was injured in a tavern accident just before training opened and is not on hand yet.

Sauer, who has been impressive in drills here, is a greatly improved outfielder, according to Neun. He definitely is in the Red's picture this year.

The Reds have the best pitcher in the National league in Ewell (Blackie) Blackwell, who set the baseball world on its ear last year with 16 straight victories and a 22-8 season record.

Here's what Neun says of Blackwell:

"He's tops. A great pitcher. The best I've seen in many a day."

"All 15 pitchers have a chance to stay on this ball club," says Neun in discussing his hurling staff.

Besides Blackwell the starters will come from among Johnny Vandermeer, who says he has no arm trouble now; Ken Raffensberger, Bucky Walters, shooting for the "200" circle, and perhaps Tommy Hughes, who came over from the Phillies.

Harry Gumbert is listed for relief only.

Among the young pitchers from last year who are expected to help the Reds considerably this season are Eddie Erautt, who appeared in 36 games and won four; Everett Lively, and Kent Peterson, who won six games.

Of the newcomers much is being said about Walker Cress, a 6-foot 5-inch righthander who won 15 games for New Orleans; Howard Fox, who won 19 for Syracuse, and Herman Wehmeier, a 15-game winner with Syracuse.

Detroit Kegler's 1,892 Cops Third Position In ABC

Ohioan's 692 Takes Fourth In Singles

DETROIT, March 23 (AP)—A disabled war veteran from Detroit and an old campaigner from Cleveland fired their way into a share of the spotlight at today's minor events session of the American Bowling Congress.

Robert Briarton, 25, a comparative newcomer to bowling, rolled a 1892 aggregate to move into third place in the all events with a 210 average. Briarton scored a series of 643-610-639 in the team, doubles and singles for his mark.

Little Eddie Koepp, the first of Cleveland's "name" keglers to appear, earned the other half of the day's notice.

The 140-pound Ohioan, who is ranked eighth over a 10-year period among the thousands of individuals competing in the classic, fired a 692 count for fourth place in the singles. He trails Nick Miller of Massillon, Ohio, the leader, by 17 pins.

Koepp added a 607 in the doubles to his 572 effort in team competition for an 1,871 aggregate and a sixth place deadlock in the all-events with an average of 208 over the rough nine-game route.

Rinty Monaghan Stops Paterson To Annex Title

Knocks Out Flyweight Champ In 7th Round

BELFAST, March 23 (AP)—Rinty Monaghan, the fighting Irish crooner, won the undisputed world flyweight championship tonight by knocking out titleholder Jackie Paterson of Scotland in the seventh round of a scheduled 15 - round engagement.

Monaghan weighed 110¾. Paterson registered at four ounces under the 112-pound limit after taking off several pounds.

Loss of the poundage obviously hurt the defending champion. Paterson kept out of range for six dull rounds before Monaghan caught up with him in the seventh.

Monaghan connected with a hard right to the head and Paterson went down for a nine-count. He arose unsteadily and Monaghan resumed the pursuit.

The Irishman opened up a two-fisted attack that sent Paterson slumping to a sitting position on the canvas. There he took the ten-toll.

Paterson won the crown in 1943 with a first round knockout of Peter Kane.

Mower's Club Given Berth By 4-3 Vote

Forfeit Fee Boosted; Split Season Adopted

The City Softball League became an eight-club circuit last night when Mower's Bakery was admitted to membership at a meeting in the Amvets' Home, Baltimore street.

Two new teams sought franchises in the loop and the vote was 4 to 3 in favor of Mower's Bakery over Tole's Confectionery as the eighth club. The seven holdover teams from 1947 cast ballots.

A 42-game split season schedule was adopted with each club engaging in 21 games per half. The first and second half winners will clash in a best-of-five-games championship series in September.

Openers Set For May 3

Opening contests are scheduled for Monday, May 3, as follows:

North End Social and Athletic Club at Lacy's Delicatets.

Reed's Electricians at Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Amvets at Astor Cab.

Joe's Crusaders at Mower's Bakery.

Each club will be limited to 18 players and the forfeit fees, boosted from $20 to $30, must be posted at the league's next meeting on Tuesday, March 30 at 7:30 p. m. at the Amvets' Home. Contracts forms will be issued to teams at this session.

The starting time of all games will be 6 p. m.

Grimes Heads Umpires

Kenneth Grimes was named umpire-in-chief and given the power to select his own arbiters.

In a drastic move to avoid any repetition of what occurred last season when a player struck an umpire, the league adopted a rule whereby any player found guilty of molesting an umpire will be suspended for the remainder of the season and his team fined $10 which must be paid to the league before the team's next regularly scheduled game. In event the team fails to pay the fine it will be dropped from the league.

President Floyd "Sammy" Cozad presided. Other officers present were Robert "Ace" Baker, vice president, and John R. Kelly, Jr., secretary-treasurer.

Pitt Cage Mentor Presented Plaque

NEW YORK, March 23 (AP)—Dr. H. C. Carlson, University of Pittsburgh coach since 1926, was chosen today by the National Association of Basketball coaches as the man who had done the most for the game over a long period.

Hobson remarked that Carlson had been a charter member of the association, and a past president, serving in 1927. He also is a member of the board of directors, and is the author of two books on the sport.

"I am happily surprised," Carlson said. "This compensates for a losing season."

BIG GAME MAKES COMEBACK IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, March 23 (AP) — Big game is making a big comeback in America.

Continuing an upward trend which has existed since the nation became seriously interested in game conservation, the Fish and Wildlife Service said today, the U. S. big game population increased 25 per cent from 1943 to 1946.

Aside from improved game management, experts said, the increase was due in part to a war-time shortage of hunting ammunition and of transportation.

The service estimated that big game—deer, principally—at the end of 1946 totaled 8,240,000, compared with 6,598,422 in 1943.

Of the total, 7,375,200 were deer. These animals have made a recovery from a 1915 low of 3,000,000.

Big game consists of game animals on the hoof—and bears.

Most of the animals—67 per cent—are to be found on state and private lands. National forests harbor 28 per cent, grazing districts 3 per cent, and national parks and Indian reservation, 1 per cent each. Kansas is the only state with no big game at all.

Unselfish Attitude Brings Player $500

NEW YORK, March 23—(AP)—Buddy O'Connor of the New York Rangers, will get a $1,000 prize although he finished second in the National Hockey League's scoring race.

O'Connor, who led the league virtually the entire season, was dethroned by Elmer Lach of Montreal, Saturday night. Lach finished with 61 points, O'Connor with 60.

Lach will get the $1,000 league prize. O'Connor will get $500 from the league and another $500 from the Ranger management "because of his unselfish attitude."

YALE'S NEW COACH NAMES FIVE AIDES

NEW HAVEN, March 23—(AP)—Herman Hickman, Yale's head football coach, named his five aides today among them newcomers Harry A. Jacunski and Henry A. (Bob) Margarita.

Hickman, whose appointment for three weeks as the Eli's gridiron boss was announced less than a week ago, blew into New Haven yesterday for a rapid introduction to some 100 prospective Blue footballers, who greeted him enthusiastically.

In addition to Jacunski and Margarita, who spent the past two seasons at Harvard under Dick Harlow, Hickman's other three hired hands are holdovers from the Howie Odell regime—Harvin (Preacher) Franklin, Jimmy DeAngelis and Stu Clancy.

Niederreiter Named New Jersey Promoter

NEW YORK, March 23 (INS) — A New Jersey Corporation known as the Tournament of Champions, Inc., announced today that it has signed Andy Niederreiter to promote a series of major boxing matches.

It is understood that Niederreiter, an independent who has been operating in Brooklyn, will attempt to stage a title bout between Rocky Graziano, the disqualified middleweight champion of the world, and Tony Zale, former champion. The site of the bout probably would be Atlantic City.

BIG GAME MAKES COMEBACK IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, March 23 (AP) — Big game is making a big comeback in America.

Continuing an upward trend which has existed since the nation became seriously interested in game conservation, the Fish and Wildlife Service said today, the U. S. big game population increased 25 per cent from 1943 to 1946.

Aside from improved game management, experts said, the increase was due in part to a war-time shortage of hunting ammunition and of transportation.

The service estimated that big game—deer, principally—at the end of 1946 totaled 8,240,000, compared with 6,598,422 in 1943.

Of the total, 7,375,200 were deer. These animals have made a recovery from a 1915 low of 3,000,000.

Big game consists of game animals on the hoof—and bears.

Most of the animals—67 per cent—are to be found on state and private lands. National forests harbor 28 per cent, grazing districts 3 per cent, and national parks and Indian reservation, 1 per cent each. Kansas is the only state with no big game at all.

Unselfish Attitude Brings Player $500

NEW YORK, March 23—(AP)—Buddy O'Connor of the New York Rangers, will get a $1,000 prize although he finished second in the National Hockey League's scoring race.

O'Connor, who led the league virtually the entire season, was dethroned by Elmer Lach of Montreal, Saturday night. Lach finished with 61 points, O'Connor with 60.

Lach will get the $1,000 league prize. O'Connor will get $500 from the league and another $500 from the Ranger management "because of his unselfish attitude."

YALE'S NEW COACH NAMES FIVE AIDES

NEW HAVEN, March 23—(AP)—Herman Hickman, Yale's head football coach, named his five aides today among them newcomers Harry A. Jacunski and Henry A. (Bob) Margarita.

Hickman, whose appointment for three weeks as the Eli's gridiron boss was announced less than a week ago, blew into New Haven yesterday for a rapid introduction to some 100 prospective Blue footballers, who greeted him enthusiastically.

In addition to Jacunski and Margarita, who spent the past two seasons at Harvard under Dick Harlow, Hickman's other three hired hands are holdovers from the Howie Odell regime—Harvin (Preacher) Franklin, Jimmy DeAngelis and Stu Clancy.

Niederreiter Named New Jersey Promoter

NEW YORK, March 23 (INS) — A New Jersey Corporation known as the Tournament of Champions, Inc., announced today that it has signed Andy Niederreiter to promote a series of major boxing matches.

It is understood that Niederreiter, an independent who has been operating in Brooklyn, will attempt to stage a title bout between Rocky Graziano, the disqualified middleweight champion of the world, and Tony Zale, former champion. The site of the bout probably would be Atlantic City.

Boy Is Fatally Injured

HINGHAM, Mass., March 23 (INS)—An 18-year-old high school student was killed yesterday when he was struck on the head by a baseball.

The victim, Richard J. Mulcahy, died instantly after a pitched ball hit him below the ear.

The fatality—apparently the first of the 1948 baseball season—came during the second day of spring practice for the Hingham high school team.

Son Of Alsab Will Make Debut Today

MIAMI, Fla., March 23 (AP) — Alsab, the $700 yearling which earned over $350,000 in four years, is the father of a promising crop of young thoroughbreds.

One of his offsprings, Alsab's Day, is scheduled to make its debut tomorrow in the $5,000 Viscaya Stakes for juveniles at Tropical Park.

Al Sabath, owner of the filly and Trainer H. C. Dodson think the filly is a coming champion—and may even exceed her famous father's sensational record.

Come in and Compare With Costly Imported Flannel

Many clothing experts can't tell the difference. See if you can. Come in and make the swatch test.

If you like the casual drape, the comfortable feel, the luxury look of a flannel suit—treat yourself to this fine Goodall Flannel. Very few experts can tell it from costly import. Its 100% virgin wool fabric is so soft, so rich looking—and the cut and tailoring is what you'd expect to find in much more expensive Flannels. Distinctive, is the word for this suit—light and dark colors you'll like.

Americans Express Growing Fear Over Russia's World Intentions

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., March 23 — The concern of the American people over Soviet Russia's policies has risen markedly over the past two years and continues to grow.

Following the fall of Czechoslovakia there has been a substantial drop in the number of people who feel that Russia's actions are intended merely to build protection against military attack.

Over a two year period there has been a considerable shift in sentiment concerning her intentions. The Institute has asked this identical question on several occasions since the Spring of 1946.

"As you hear and read about Russia these days do you believe Russia is trying to build herself up to be the ruling power of the world, or is Russia just building up protection against being attacked in another war?"

The comparative answers:

	Ruling Power	Protection	No Opinion
June, '46	58%	29%	13%
August, '46	60	26	14
Oct., '47	76	18	6
TODAY	77	12	11

The rank and file of American voters have consistently favored a "tougher" policy in Russian relations than the nation's leaders have chosen to follow.

From answers to another question it is apparent that there is today a substantial bloc of people who feel not only that we should be firmer in handling Russia but also that we should be ready to take military steps, if necessary.

This prevailing sentiment points up one of the major obstacles Henry A. Wallace faces in trying to build support for his presidential candidacy. As he starts out to sell his "peace" platform the vast majority of voters apparently reject one of his principle contentions—that Russia's actions are motivated not by ideas of world domination but by a desire to protect herself.

The hardening of American opinion on this matter can be traced over the last two years. Interestingly enough an identical question was asked in March, 1946, when Russia was stripping Manchuria of factories, and also just after the fall of Czechoslovakia several weeks ago.

Whereas two years ago only 14 per cent felt we should either go to war or prepare to fight, 44 per cent hold these views today.

The question and comparative answers follow:

"If Russia continues to follow her present course what should we do if anything?"

	TODAY	March, 1946

President Truman's speech to the joint session of Congress asking for more positive counter steps to Soviet actions mirrored the thinking of seven out of ten American voters who believe the present policy of containment is too lenient.

This is shown by answers to the following question:

"Do you think the United States is being too soft or too tough (firm) in its policy toward Russia?"

Red Cross Tops Midland Quota

MIDLAND—The Red Cross Drive in Midland and vicinity has been concluded, except for some small pledges, William Wilson, drive chairman, announced last night.

The goal of $300 was met and surpassed according to Wilson, who said he has nothing but high praise for the Pythian Sisters organization for their efforts, and also for Nannie Williams and Helen O'Brien, volunteer workers.

Gilmore, which is in the Milland territory, contributed $29.10 that helped to surpass the quota.

Natwick Workers Reject 12 Cent Increase Offer

Moorefield Furniture Union Seeks Contract

By KATHERINE FISHER

MOOREFIELD—The employes of J. Natwick and Co. voted to reject a company offer of 12 cents per hour increase as unsatisfactory at a meeting held at the Moose home this week. The United Furniture Workers (CIO) also voted to request a federal conciliator to come in in an attempt to settle the dispute before the April 11 deadline.

Negotiations have been going on since the latter part of January and the chances of settlement are good as only three cents an hour stands between the workers and the company. The workers asked for 25 cents per hour increase, three more paid holidays bringing the total to six, and other improvements in the contract. The company's offer of 10 cents per hour increase made last month was rejected by the men then.

The negotiations are for a new contract to replace an agreement which expires April 11. An additional eight cents per hour was asked January 1 to meet a rise in the cost of living.

The union was represented at the conference by Michael Tyson, UFW International representative. The local union was represented by Price Riggleman, Raymond Yankee, Brooke Riggleman, Sylvanus Carr, C. C. Crites and Noah Fitzwater. The Natwick Company was represented by J. M. Martin, local manager, Fred C. Cook and J. A. Cochrane, Baltimore.

The federal conciliator who was requested to attempt to settle the dispute is W. F. Gantz, Washington.

Drive Is Planned

An immediate drive to fill all fire extinguishers in the community was inaugurated by the Moorefield Volunteer Fire Company after action taken at the meeting this week. It was pointed out that many fires could be extinguished at the start with the use of fire extinguishers.

A plan to assist chicken farmers in combatting blazes in brooder houses is being considered. Automatic extinguishers in the brooder houses have been successful in test areas in preventing fires. A meeting of the chicken growers will be held in the near future to explain the use of these extinguishers.

C. H. Friddle, Jr., captain of the drill team, reports progress on the organization of that unit.

Members of the entertainment committee announce that a chicken supper will be held instead of an oyster supper soon and that a monthly smoker would be held honoring members whose birthdays fall in the month.

Firefighters Meet

The Potomac Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association met in Moorefield this week as guests of the Moorefield Volunteer Fire Company. A fire school of instruction will be held in May for training of new firemen and refresher training for others.

Fire Breaks Out In Basement Of Keyser School

Elementary Students Leave Building Safely

KEYSER—The Keyser Elementary School building on South Mineral Street was endangered by fire yesterday morning shortly after 11 o'clock when flames broke out in the furnace room.

The fire, which is believer to have started in a basket of waste paper in the furnace room, could have been one of Keyser's most serious, a spokesman for the Keyser Vigilant Reel and Hose Company said.

The blaze was quickly brought under control by the volunteer group.

Flames shot out of the windows of the furnace rooms on the east side of the building and the building was quickly filled with smoke but the fire was confined to the furnace room and one class room which was directly above the blaze. The fire burned through the floor of the room and damaged the wall.

S. T. McGee, principal of the elementary school, said the building was cleared of about 400 students within two minutes after the sounding of the school fire alarm. The children responded to the fire alarm as in the usual drill procedure, McGee said, leaving their wraps in the building.

Classes were not held in the building yesterday afternoon in order to allow the smoke to escape but the normal schedule will be resumed this morning, McGee said.

Fire Chief E. Wade Thomas could not make an estimate of the loss but said he did not think it was as high as first expected.

LONDON GOES FOR FRILLY EASTER HATS

By SYLVIA HACK

LONDON—British women will be wearing the most decorative hats this season since Mid-Victorian days. All the veils, chin bows, net visors and velvet ribbons that trimmed Grandma's "bits of nonsense" are in favor again.

The new hats are essentially feminine and come in all kinds of straw and felt decked with numerous flowers — roses, hyacinths, camellias, violets and tulips; and pearls, bird-wings and fruit assist in completing these charming whims.

In Austin O'Connor's collection many pastel shades are used — beige, pinks, blues and sun gold. Black is popular too, with gay trimmings.

O'Connor introduces a black creation called the "Beefeater" — a small sit-on-the-head boater with narrow brim and high front crown adorned with a length of veiling and lace that could be worn either collar style ar tied in front giving a jabot effect.

Flat little sailors are in the front line, with lace overlay, many with multiple edges. Saucer-rimmed bretons, Watteau berets with fluted fronts, muffin shapes consisting entirely of flowers and numerous bonnets are all popular. This year they are being worn straight with a forward tilt in contrast to the recent back-of-the-head styles. Large hats are still in the news, mainly the cartwheel and coolie versions, with the bowler and boater type alongside.

A deep pink muffin - shaped baku has attracted much attention. It is adorned with clusters of pearls with an overlay of black veiling and velvet ribbons which tie under the chin. Another eye catcher ils on off-white Watteau beret cheerfully decked with the new "donkey brown" ribbon bows. Flirting alongside is a sophisticated black coolie model, stiff brimmed and decorated with yellow wheatsheafs and natural straw bows.

The new styles call for elaborately curled hair and a front roll of fringe gives that extra something to complete the effect.

Surviving are Andy Arhar, Davis; Seaman 1/c Tony Arhar, Pensacola, Fla., Joseph and Ernest Arhar, both of Washington, Edward Arhar, Cleveland, O., Mrs. Julia Whitehair, Horseshoe Run, and one sister, Mrs. Mary Vicic, Lloyddell, Pa.

How to keep front door drafts and chance visitors out of the living area without creating cramped and dingy vestibules is frequently a problem. It's solved in this modern home with an eight-foot-square panel of glass block. The front door is directly behind the partition but dining privacy is assured because of the translucent quality of the glass block. Daylight from the dining room is transmitted through the block to brighten the hall. Modern appearance and an air of spaciousness are dividends.

A funeral service was conducted in St. Veronica Catholic Church, Davis, for Mrs. Frances Arhar, 60, widow of Andy Arhar, who died in Tucker County Hospital, Parsons, where she had been a patient for three days.

She was born in Yugoslavia February 13, 1888, a daughter of the late John and Helen Mevic. Surviving are Andy Arhar, Davis; Seaman 1/c Tony Arhar, Pensacola, Fla., Joseph and Ernest Arhar, both of Washington, Edward Arhar, Cleveland, O., Mrs. Julia Whitehair, Horseshoe Run, and one sister, Mrs. Mary Vicic, Lloyddell, Pa.

Rev. Julius Renier, C. P., celebrated the mass and interment was in Davis Cemetery.

How to keep front door drafts and chance visitors out of the living area without creating cramped and dingy vestibules is frequently a problem. It's solved in this modern home with an eight-foot-square panel of glass block. The front door is directly behind the partition but dining privacy is assured because of the translucent quality of the glass block. Daylight from the dining room is transmitted through the block to brighten the hall. Modern appearance and an air of spaciousness are dividends.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 23—(INS)—The many friends of Marcia Davenport, who has been in such a nervous state in London following the death of her close friend, Jan Masaryk, are trying to urge her to come to Hollywood to work with MGM on her best seller, "East Side, West Side."

Simone Simon

Edmund Goulding has turned out a beautiful script and will direct it, while Voldemar Vetluguin, former head of the story department, is the producer.

Rosemary De Camp, herself only 30, who has played more theatrical mothers than any other actress, is an excellent choice for Ma Miller, Marilyn Miller's mother, in "Silver Lining."

This is Rosemary's third time at Warners as a theatrical mother. She played Jimmy Cagney's ma in "Yankee Doodle Dandy." and Robert Alda's ma in "Rhapsody In Blue."

In private life Miss De Camp is the wife of Judge John Shidler, and the mother of three children.

The day after the Academy laurels were passed out, all the Academy winners were still in a beautiful dream. Loretta Young, who was the dark horse, and had no idea she was going to win, was so happy, that it did my heart good to see her.

Ronald Colman forgot his English reserve and made no secret of his delight. The first person to telephone him was his old friend, Bill Powell, from Palm Springs, and that pleased Ronnie, for Bill, too, was a contender for Academy honors.

Celeste Holm was celebrating her wedding anniversary as well as winning the award for the best supporting role by an actress. She said she made a mental vow not to be disappointed if she didn't win. "But," said Celeste, "you know I would have been disappointed."

As for Edmund Gwenn—Mr. Santa Claus, himself—everyone in town is happy over his winning the award for the best supporting male role. He, too, was in our little party, as was Darryl Zanuck, still receiving tons of congratulations for making the best picture of the year, and for carting off seven awards in all. Everyone was sure that "Gentleman's Agreement" would win—everyone but Darryl, who was as nervous as the rest of the stars.

Jean Hersholt was also with us, and he, too, is in line for congratulations for a very successful 1948 Academy presentation.

Stranded in the South Pacific on an island, is Julien Duvivier and several technicians from 20th Century-Fox. Duvivier flew to Tahiti to shoot scenes for "The Marriage Of Loti" for Alexander Korda.

They landed on a small island for fuel, and while there, a terrific storm came up and completely destroyed the plane. Now they'll have to wait until a boat picks them up, and it may be several weeks. There are only natives on the island.

Whether or not all the cameras were destroyed, no one knows, since communication from the island is not too good.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Karin Booth, the MGM honey, is in Palm Beach, a guest on the yacht of William Carlisle. She'll marry him before she returns to Hollywood.

Lana Turner and Bob Topping at Ciro's with Beverly Tyler and David May. And don't take that romance between David and Beverly too lightly.

Ran into George Raft at Le Papillon. He was with Iris Bynum, Clark Gable's steady date of two weeks ago. George has a mustache and he is terribly thin.

The Irwin Shaws expect a baby in September. He's the famous playwright who wrote "Bury the Dead" and "Gentle People."

After 19 years of marriage, the Jerry Fairbanks have decided to call it a day. He is the well-known producer of film shorts.

Simone Simon, the French actress, who worked in a number of Hollywood movies, will marry one of the youngest members of the Rothschild clan. Simone is currently a hit in a Paris play.

The William Perlbergs celebrated the awards for 'Miracle On 34th Street" with a small supper party at the Beachcombers.

Joan McCracken, musical comedy star, and her husband, Jack Dumphy, have parted. She is the gal who was a sensation in "Oklahoma!" and was more recently seen in the movies in "Good News."

That's all today.

Tired, "All-In"—Listless Feeling Brought To Halt
As Vibrant Energy is Released To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell
Do you get up in the mornings still tired, feel down-and-out all day? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Overwork, undue worry, cold, flu or other illness often wears down the red-blood-cells.
Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.
To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.
Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.
Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Tired, "All-In"—Listless Feeling Brought To Halt
As Vibrant Energy is Released To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell
Do you get up in the mornings still tired, feel down-and-out all day? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Overwork, undue worry, cold, flu or other illness often wears down the red-blood-cells.
Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.
To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.
Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.
Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

School System To Be Dramatized On Columbia Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, March 23.—A special documentary dramatization dealing with the American Educational system will be distributed by the CBS network Wednesday night. Title at 10 is "Report Card."

The program is based on several months of research and is a postponement from the original date. Because of this broadcast Open Hearing will take a one-time vacation.

In announcing the program CBS had this to say: "The broadcast will dramatize the need for new dynamic concepts which will enable the schools to 'Teach For a Living'."

Gordon MacRae, who took over the CBS series when the Tony Martin show was moved to ABC, again is replacing Tony. His CBS series concluded, MacRae will do the singing in the ABC Star Theater at 10:30 in cooperation with the comedy of Alan Young.

After a couple of weeks or so on Encore Theater, which was put in temporarily until the revived Special Agent crime series could be readied, the 8 o'clock spot on MBS is to have Special Agent after all.

Opinionaire, in its second MBS broadcast at 10, is slated to ask "Shall We Support the Marshall Plan?". . . An extra Land of the Lost program is listed for ABC at 4:30 p. m.

The Vox Pop team, stopping at Beacon, N. Y., his home team, plan to interview Sec. of Defense James V. Forrestal. Other residents of the community will be questioned on NBC at 8:30.

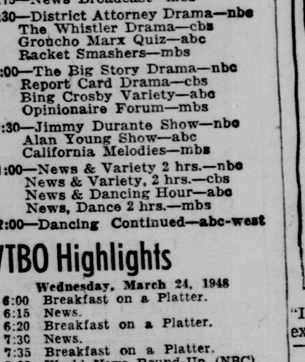
SALLY'S SALLIES



"They said to put it anywhere in here and they'd call for it later,"

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

Conversation After Midnight

John Crosby

People, says Art Ford, an all-night-disk jockey on WNEW in New York, are closer to and more candid with disk Jockeys than with, say, Bob Hope or Mary Margaret M-Bride. Listeners, according to Mr. Ford, may call Bob Hope and tell him they like the program (or do not) but they don't open their hearts to him as they do to disk jockeys. I bring all this up because Mr. Ford has just released an important official statement which bears discussion.

Mr. Ford, confirming the well intrenched but not nearly so authoritative opinions of Walter Lippmann, Walter Winchell and other pessimistic columnists, says that people are nervous. "I can sense an electric tension in the 150-odd telephone calls I get every night," he declares in this communique. "I've conducted all-night record programs for ten years and at no time—not even during the war—were people more excitable."

Plunging ahead, not withholding any of the unhappy details, Mr. Ford goes on to say that more and more people are staying up late, worrying. Probably smoking too many cigarettes, drinking too much coffee. They call him up to request "Memphis Blues," then, metaphorically speaking, shuffle their feet a moment and blurt out: "The international situation is certainly all loused up, ain't it, Artie?" Artie agrees it certainly is and hangs up. Minute goes by and there's another call. Man from Pete's Bar & Grill over on Lexington Avenue. This man wants "Always," hangs on the phone diffidently a moment and then says substantially the same thing. No matter how you look at it, reports Mr. Ford, people are tense. Tense.

Well, I dunno, Artie. I follow you so far and then. . .well, look at it this way. I admit these guys are speaking their plain, honest minds. I'll even go along to the extent of admitting maybe more people are staying up later than is good for them. But let's consider it from another angle, Artie. Maybe these folk are nervous because they are up so late. Y'know, about 3 o'clock in the morning a man gets pretty tense under any circumstances. He should of been to bed hours ago and he knows it. Whether he's drinking coffee or whisky, he's had too much of it and he knows that too. Also, at the back of his mind, he's got a suspicion he's going to catch it when he gets home.

What I'm saying, Artie, is that all these things contribute to the way a guy feels about things. Don't get me wrong, Artie. I'm not saying the situation isn't pretty grim. I'd be the last guy to say anything like that. What I'm trying to get across here is that things look a lot worse at 3 a. m. than they did at 11 o'clock, and naturally around 5 a. m. everything looks downright hopeless. That's when a man gets to crying in his beer and saying his wife don't love him any more. You know. That's why I say let's not fish in these troubled waters any more than is strictly necessary.

Sorry I kept you on the phone so long running off at the mouth this way. What I really called about would you mind playing that old Bing Crosby number "Please"? The guy could really sing back in those days.

"The Clock," according to a press release, is attempting to prove that "the moving finger writes and, having writ, moves on." (What sort of talk is that? Must be a new press agent over at the American Broadcasting Company. "Moving finger writes," for heaven's sakes.) The press release goes on to say that "The Clock" will dramatize the role of fate in the life of the individual, to demonstrate, in short, how we all get pushed around by destiny.

I am impressed by this dramatic philosophy, which hasn't been so boldly stated since Aeschylus, but I find that the program doesn't carry it out to any great extent. "The Clock"—to get this discussion down to earth—is horror stuff of a variety that is a little too strong for me, though I'm not exactly squeamish. The other night, for example, a werewolf elbowed Fate out of the way and did all the pushing around, unassisted. This hysterical and thoroughly frightening drama ended with a double twist which is much too complicated to explain even if I understood it, and I don't. The dialogue and narration abounded with such expressions as "an overwhelming sense of terrible foreboding," "these dark and terrible events," "nameless horrors" and similar ejaculations calculated to put the hair on the back of your neck in an interesting condition. If you like that sort of thing, this is the program for you. It's too much for me.

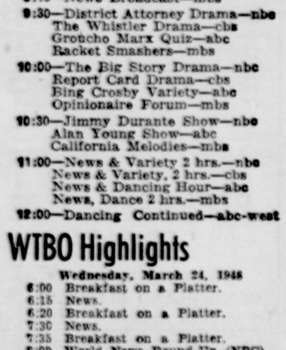
SALLY'S SALLIES



"They said to put it anywhere in here and they'd call for it later,"

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

Conversation After Midnight

People, says Art Ford, an all-night-disk jockey on WNEW in New York, are closer to and more candid with disk Jockeys than with, say, Bob Hope or Mary Margaret M'Bride. Listeners, according to Mr. Ford, may call Bob Hope and tell him they like the program (or do not) but they don't open their hearts to him as they do to disk jockeys. I bring all this up because Mr. Ford has just released an important official statement which bears discussion.

John Crosby

Mr. Ford, confirming the well intrenched but not nearly so authoritative opinions of Walter Lippmann, Walter Winchell and other pessimistic columnists, says that people are nervous. "I can sense an electric tension in the 150-odd telephone calls I get every night," he declares in this communique. "I've conducted all-night record programs for ten years and at no time—not even during the war—were people more excitable."

Plunging ahead, not withholding any of the unhappy details, Mr. Ford goes on to say that more and more people are staying up late, worrying. Probably smoking too many cigarettes, drinking too much coffee. They call him up to request "Memphis Blues," then, metaphorically speaking, shuffle their feet a moment and blurt out: "The international situation is certainly all loused up, ain't it, Artie?" Artie agrees it certainly is and hangs up. Minute goes by and there's another call. Man from Pete's Bar & Grill over on Lexington Avenue. This man wants "Always," hangs on the phone diffidently a moment and then says substantially the same thing. No matter how you look at it, reports Mr. Ford, people are tense. Tense.

Well, I dunno, Artie. I follow you so far and then. . .well, look at it this way. I admit these guys are speaking their plain, honest minds. I'll even go along to the extent of admitting maybe more people are staying up later than is good for them. But let's consider it from another angle, Artie. Maybe these folk are nervous because they are up so late. Y'know, about 3 o'clock in the morning a man gets pretty tense under any circumstances. He should of been to bed hours ago and he knows it. Whether he's drinking coffee or whisky, he's had too much of it and he knows that too. Also, at the back of his mind, he's got a suspicion he's going to catch it when he gets home.

What I'm saying, Artie, is that all these things contribute to the way a guy feels about things. Don't get me wrong, Artie. I'm not saying the situation isn't pretty grim. I'd be the last guy to say anything like that. What I'm trying to get across here is that things look a lot worse at 3 a. m. than they did at 11 o'clock, and naturally around 5 a. m. everything looks downright hopeless. That's when a man gets to crying in his beer and saying his wife don't love him any more. You know. That's why I say let's not fish in these troubled waters any more than is strictly necessary.

Sorry I kept you on the phone so long running off at the mouth this way. What I really called about would you mind playing that old Bing Crosby number "Please"? The guy could really sing back in those days.

"The Clock," according to a press release, is attempting to prove that "the moving finger writes and, having writ, moves on." (What sort of talk is that? Must be a new press agent over at the American Broadcasting Company. "Moving finger writes," for heaven's sakes.) The press release goes on to say that "The Clock" will dramatize the role of fate in the life of the individual, to demonstrate, in short, how we all get pushed around by destiny.

I am impressed by this dramatic philosophy, which hasn't been so boldly stated since Aeschylus, but I find that the program doesn't carry it out to any great extent. "The Clock"—to get this discussion down to earth—is horror stuff of a variety that is a little too strong for me, though I'm not exactly squeamish. The other night, for example, a werewolf elbowed Fate out of the way and did all the pushing around, unassisted. This hysterical and thoroughly frightening drama ended with a double twist which is much too complicated to explain even if I understood it, and I don't. The dialogue and narration abounded with such expressions as "an overwhelming sense of terrible foreboding," "these dark and terrible events," "nameless horrors" and similar ejaculations calculated to put the hair on the back of your neck in an interesting condition. If you like that sort of thing, this is the program for you. It's too much for me.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this means to publicly express sincere thanks to those of our friends and neighbors who were so sympathetic and helpful during the illness and following the death of our beloved husband and Father, William F. Griffith. We are grateful for the floral tributes, the use of cars for the funeral and to all persons who in any way assisted us.
His wife, MRS. AGNES GRIFFITH and DAUGHTER.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Mary Elizabeth Muir, who died one year ago, March 24, 1947.
Not dead to us who loved her,
Not lost; but gone before,
She lives with us in memory
And will forever more.
Sadly missed by her Grandmother & Aunt.

In loving memory of Pfc. Cecil D. Dawson, who was killed in Germany three years ago, March 24, 1945.

March brings sad memories
Of our son gone to rest,
Who will never be forgotten
By the ones who loved him best.
The call was sudden the shock severe,
We little thought such grief so near;
Only the ones who loved can tell
The pain of parting without farewell,
And while you sleep the peaceful sleep
Your memory we shall always keep.

Sadly missed by: Dad & Mother, Brothers & Sister, The Alex Dawson family.

In loving memory of our darling Daughter, Teresa C. Flynn, who died on March 24, 1944.
Every day brings sad memories,
Every memory a tear,
But within our hearts we cherish
Thoughts of you we loved so dear.
No one knows our longing,
None have seen us weep;
We shed our tears with aching heart
While others are asleep.
Sadly missed by all her family.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this means to publicly express sincere thanks to those of our friends and neighbors who were so sympathetic and helpful during the illness and following the death of our beloved husband and Father, William F. Griffith. We are grateful for the floral tributes, the use of cars for the funeral and to all persons who in any way assisted us.

His wife, MRS. AGNES GRIFFITH and DAUGHTER.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Mary Elizabeth Muir, who died one year ago, March 24, 1947.

Not dead to us who loved her,
Not lost; but gone before,
She lives with us in memory
And will forever more.
Sadly missed by her Grandmother & Aunt.

In loving memory of Pfc. Cecil D. Dawson, who was killed in Germany three years ago, March 24, 1945.

March brings sad memories
Of our son gone to rest,
Who will never be forgotten
By the ones who loved him best.
The call was sudden the shock severe,
We little thought such grief so near;
Only the ones who loved can tell
The pain of parting without farewell,
And while you sleep the peaceful sleep
Your memory we shall always keep.

Sadly missed by: Dad & Mother, Brothers & Sister, The Alex Dawson family.

In loving memory of our darling Daughter, Teresa C. Flynn, who died on March 24, 1944.

Every day brings sad memories,
Every memory a tear,
But within our hearts we cherish
Thoughts of you we loved so dear.
No one knows our longing,
None have seen us weep;
We shed our tears with aching heart
While others are asleep.
Sadly missed by all her family.

Selected Stocks Extend Recovery But Many Market Leaders Retreat

NEW YORK, March 23 (AP) — Stocks extended their recovery on a selective basis today although many market leaders retreated.

While gains of fractions to around two points were well distributed at the close, numerous minus signs persisted. Transfers for the full stretch tapered to 1,160,000 shares compared with Monday's top for almost a year of 2,040,000. It was the fourth straight session in which the million-mark was exceeded.

The Associated Press 60 - stock composite was unchanged at 63.7 of 1,015 issues registering, 431 rose, 356 fell and 228 were unchanged.

Touching 1948 highs were Denver Rio Grande Western which finished up two points at 22, Warren Petroleum 1¼ at 26 and Kennecott ½ at 50.

Advancing fractions to a point or so were Santa Fe at 97½, Phelps Dodge 47⅞, Pacific Western Oil 52, American Smelting 55¼, United States Gypsum 99½, Montgomery Ward 53 and Cerro De Pasco 26⅜.

Allied Chemical yielded two points at 179. Moderate casualties included Chrysler, General Motors, Bethlehem Steel, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Electric Power and Light, General Electric, American Tobacco "B," Twentieth Century-Fox, Loew's, Mission Corporation and Chesapeake and Ohio.

Among forward Curb movers were Elliott Company, Aluminum of America, Solar Aircraft and Cities Service. Backward were Kaiser-Frazer, Electric Bond and Share and Todd Shipyards. Turnover here was 300,000 shares versus 400,000 yesterday.

Prices pushed ahead in the bond market, sparked by point or more advances in selected rails.

Bartender Censured For His Conduct

A bartender who received stern warning about rough treatment of unruly customers Monday was fined $5 in Police Court on a disorderly conduct charge after police said he "threw a patron into the street Saturday night."

The patron, Floyd Yost, Karns Avenue, also charged with disorderly conduct, was committed to jail for five days in default of a $5 fine.

Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., told the bartender, George W. Keller, owner of Anchor Bar, he would have to stop treating his trade in such a rough manner.

A third participant in the fracas, E. L. Kimberlin, Centerville, Pa., was also fined $5 on a disorderly conduct charge.

Robert Rahn, 18, accused of making police officers, who were quelling a disturbance, the target of profane remarks, was fined $5 on a disorderly conduct charge.

Four youths involved in the disturbance will be given hearings in Juvenile Court next Saturday.

Quarry Owner Offers To Help Erect Bridge

An offer was received yesterday by the Board of Allegany County Commissioners from Edward Hayman, operator of a stone quarry near Corriganville, to assist with the construction of a new Bailey-type bridge across Wills Creek to replace an old foot bridge washed out last month by ice flows.

Hayman said he understood the bridge is planned for foot traffic only, but if permitted, he will pay the cost of strengthening it so his trucks can haul material across it.

The county board took the proposal under advisement until their next meeting Thursday.

The Board will meet Thursday instead of Friday due to the holiday March 26.

City Policemen Sign For Army Service

Seven men, including two members of the Cumberland Police Department, were sent to Baltimore yesterday for processing into the armed forces, according to Capt. Laurence M. Bairstow, commanding officer of the local Army and Air Force recruiting station.

Paul Millard Crabtree, 120 Columbia Street, and William John McGraw, 306 Helen Street, signed for three years with the Air Force. Both are veterans.

Other enlistees are Huber Wendell Yommer, Route 2, Grantsville; Richard Alexander Trenum, Route 1, Westernport; and Donald Thomas Clark, Kenneth Samuel Clark and William Stewart Michael, also of Westernport.

Vote Registration Set For April 27

If you have just moved to Maryland and stated your intentions to vote, or if you have failed to cast a ballot in the last five years, you must register on April 27, if you expect to vote in the May 3 primaries or the general election in November.

Patrick F. King, clerk of the Board of Election Supervisors, announced the lone date and said that as yet no additional dates had been set.

Under the Maryland law, voters lose their voting franchise, if they have not voted in a five-year period.

Attic Fire Damages Owen Stowell Residence Tuesday

The Corriganville residence of Owen Stowell was damaged by fire early Tuesday morning.

The fire originated in the attic where, it is reported, a bird's nest near the chimney caught fire and flames spread throughout the attic of the two-story frame house.

The Corriganville Volunteer Firemen, using booster pumps, extinguished the blaze. No estimate of the damage was ventured.

Uniforms Available For Firing Squads

The Quartermaster General, Department of the Army, has made provisions to provide uniforms for veterans organizations to properly attire firing squads for use in reburial services of World War II dead.

Thomas F. Conlon, local veterans' service officer, has been informed that each post or unit can purchase up to 10 uniforms including wool field jackets, wool trousers, and wool garrison caps.

Legion, VFW, Amvet or other military organizations desiring to purchase uniforms for their firing squads and military escorts should contact Conlon for further information, he said.

Baltimore And Ohio Shows Decrease In Carloadings

Carloads handled by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for the week ended March 20, 1948, totaled 59,979, consisting of 36,214 loaded on line and 23,765 received from connections, showing a decrease of 8,541 over the same week of last year when the total was 68,520, with 43,262 loaded on line and 25,258 received from connections. The sharp drop in total loads handled is the result of the slowing up of coal production on the system.

For the previous week, the week ending March 13, the total was 66,111 cars handled, made up of 41,737 loaded on line and 24,374 received from connections.

County Board Hears Complaints On Roads

County Commissioners William H. Lemmert and James Holmes heard several complaints regarding conditions of roads in various parts of the county. Commissioner Wilkinson attended only a part of the regular session, as he was called by Army Engineers to attend a conference on flood control with the Mayor and City Council at City Hall.

Among the complaints on roads was a petition signed by 72 residents of the Piney Plains and Little Orleans sections asking for a hard surfaced road from their neighborhood to U. S. Route 40. Russell Messersmith, A. R. Shaffer, D. T. Puffinburger, and C. A. Fletcher presented the petition. No action was taken by the board.

William G. Gordon, Valley Road, asked for grading of a road which branches off near Wilson's kennels on Valley Road.

Rev. Wayne J. Shellenbarger, Wood Street, Cresaptown, asked that a ditch along the street be repaired.

SUSIE Q. SMITH — By Linda and Jerry Walter

"They're track shoes, Mrs. Smith . . . so I won't fall and damage your furniture!"

Selected Stocks Extend Recovery But Many Market Leaders Retreat

NEW YORK, March 23 (AP) — Stocks extended their recovery on a selective basis today although many market leaders retreated.

While gains of fractions to around two points were well distributed at the close, numerous minus signs persisted. Transfers for the full stretch tapered to 1,160,000 shares compared with Monday's top for almost a year of 2,040,000. It was the fourth straight session in which the million-mark was exceeded.

The Associated Press 60 - stock composite was unchanged at 63.7 of 1,015 issues registering, 431 rose, 356 fell and 228 were unchanged.

Touching 1948 highs were Denver Rio Grande Western which finished up two points at 22, Warren Petroleum 1¼ at 26 and Kennecott ½ at 50.

Advancing fractions to a point or so were Santa Fe at 97½, Phelps Dodge 47⅞, Pacific Western Oil 52, American Smelting 55¼, United States Gypsum 99½, Montgomery Ward 53 and Cerro De Pasco 26⅜.

Allied Chemical yielded two points at 179. Moderate casualties included Chrysler, General Motors, Bethlehem Steel, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Electric Power and Light, General Electric, American Tobacco "B," Twentieth Century-Fox, Loew's, Mission Corporation and Chesapeake and Ohio.

Among forward Curb movers were Elliott Company, Aluminum of America, Solar Aircraft and Cities Service. Backward were Kaiser-Frazer, Electric Bond and Share and Todd Shipyards. Turnover here was 300,000 shares versus 400,000 yesterday.

Prices pushed ahead in the bond market, sparked by point or more advances in selected rails.

Quarry Owner Offers To Help Erect Bridge

An offer was received yesterday by the Board of Allegany County Commissioners from Edward Hayman, operator of a stone quarry near Corriganville, to assist with the construction of a new Bailey-type bridge across Wills Creek to replace an old foot bridge washed out last month by ice flows.

Hayman said he understood the bridge is planned for foot traffic only, but if permitted, he will pay the cost of strengthening it so his trucks can haul material across it.

The county board took the proposal under advisement until their next meeting Thursday.

The Board will meet Thursday instead of Friday due to the holiday March 26.

Baltimore And Ohio Shows Decrease In Carloadings

Carloads handled by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for the week ended March 20, 1948, totaled 59,979, consisting of 36,214 loaded on line and 23,765 received from connections, showing a decrease of 8,541 over the same week of last year when the total was 68,520, with 43,262 loaded on line and 25,258 received from connections. The sharp drop in total loads handled is the result of the slowing up of coal production on the system.

For the previous week, the week ending March 13, the total was 66,111 cars handled, made up of 41,737 loaded on line and 24,374 received from connections.

Baltimore Firm Low Bidder On Route 40 Job

Relocation Work May Start Soon

Bids were opened yesterday on the relocation of U. S. Route 40 west of Cumberland with C. J. Langenfelder and Son, Inc., Baltimore contractors, low bidders, according to the State Roads Commission.

The firm bid $1,583,698 to relocate, grade and hard surface four and one-half miles of the National Highway from a point near Allegany Grove to Frostburg.

The only other bidder was Cumberland Contracting Company, which quoted $1,599,996 for the job.

Regarded as the top state road project for 1948, the relocation will eliminate a steep, winding, twisting road which has plagued motorists for many years.

The new highway, according to G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for the Maryland State Roads Commission, will begin at Crystal Park and continue to within 100 feet of the Carl Storm Garage on Eckhart Flat.

The dangerous stone bridge at Six Mile House will be eliminated with the highway running to the right of the present location of Route 40.

Bypasses Toll House

The new road will pass approximately 100 feet to the right of the Toll House near Winchester Road and will proceed in a straight line from the hazardous curve at the bottom of Red Hill.

The highway will then follow the ravine to the right of the present road and pass in the rear of the service station at Lions Spring.

From there the road will follow the right-of-way of Route 40 to a point near Clarysville when it will veer again to the right, passing in the rear of the McMurdo Garage.

The new road bed from Clarysville to Eckhart will be laid in the ravine connecting the two communities, eliminating the curve at Clarysville and the curve near the Frog Hollow Road intersection.

Several Houses Moved

Right-of-way have been secured and several houses have been moved to make way for the new location in Eckhart. The proposed highway will cross Parkersburg Road and pass in front of the entrance of the Eckhart School and then up Barn Hill to Eckhart Flat.

The road will be graded to a width of 44 feet, and at the eastern end where it leaves the present highway this width will be paved with concrete for a distance of about 1,000 feet.

At the western end, where it returns to the present roadway near

Cumberland Natural Gas Supply Must Travel 1,200 Miles To User

Have you ever thought just what goes on behind the scenes of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company in regard to providing natural gas for its manufacturing and domestic users?

An interview with C. C. Robbins, local manager of the company, reveals that Cumberland is fortunate in getting sufficient gas for domestic use, inasmuch as the bulk of it comes through about 1,200 miles of 24-inch pipe.

The line, better known as the Big Inch line, comes from Texas and is called the Tennessee Transmission. Booster stations have been built at various intervals en route, said Robbins, but the line isn't sufficient to take care of all the needs in Cumberland or neighboring cities or states.

According to Robbins, the company receives a telephone call daily, telling them of the amount they can expect in the next 24-hour period. If it isn't sufficient, the gas company immediately notifies local industries they must curtail operations to a given percentage.

"They have been very co-operative," said Robbins, "and we are grateful, since it helps us out during certain periods."

Most of the plants have standby fuel and are not hampered too much unless the cold weather remains for many days.

There is one bright outlook on the natural gas situation: another Big Inch line is being laid parallel to the one already in operation. After this is completed, it will ease conditions. But time will tell, as only about 600 miles has been built and materials are still hard to obtain and good weather must hold out.

In the spring the gas men begin to breathe easier, but they know, come winter time, the same routine must be followed. But everyone has his fingers crossed in hope that the new line will be completed soon.

Turnpike Mishap Claims Two Lives As Driver Sleeps

Washington Taxi Cab Collides With Truck

Two persons were killed and one escaped serious injury at 1:45 p. m. Tuesday, as an Eastern Taxi Cab of Washington, D. C., collided with a Pennsylvania Turnpike truck about one-fourth of a mile west of the Bedford Interchange on the Turnpike.

According to Pennsylvania State Police, Barton Clark Rippy, 24, Nashville, Tenn., was instantly killed, while his companion, a 26-year-old sailor from Pennsylvania, whose name is being withheld for military reasons until next of kin are notified, died later in Timmons Hospital, Bedford.

The taxi was in charge of Roslye Schollenberger, 35, Washington, who was asleep in the back seat of the cab at the time of the accident. He was treated at Timmons Hospital for lacerations and abrasions, but was later released.

As far as could be learned, Schollenberger had taken a party of five to Pittsburgh and was making his return trip when the accident occurred.

Apparently the driver had picked the two riders up along the way and had gotten sleepy and crawled in the back seat, permitting the unknown sailor to drive. As far as can be determined, both boys in the front sea fell asleep and crashed against the rear of the truck, which was on a routine trip, State Police reported.

The taxi was completely demolished, according to the police officers, and traffic was at a standstill until the wreckage was removed from the scene.

The body of Rippy, ex-Merchant Marine, was taken to the Pate Funeral Home in Bedford and, according to the owners, will probably be shipped to Nashville for burial.

The sailor's body was moved to the Geisel Funeral Home, Bedford, and will be sent to his home as soon as arrangements can be made.

Trooper Calvin Richwine of the Pennsylvania State Police investigated.

Western Union Will Move Office Soon

The Cumberland office of the Western Union Telegraph Company will be moved from 7 North Liberty Street to 59 North Centre Street next month, E. Frank Phillips, manager, reported last night.

He said the change in location is necessitated by the installation of additional equipment resulting from technological changes in transmission and from the transfer of the testing and regulating office in the Queen City Hotel building to the new location.

The technological changes, he said, result from the installation of radio beam systems which will replace pole lines in this area.

When the system is installed, Phillips added, Western Union here will have sufficient capacity not only for its own needs but for additional television and radio broadcast systems and other uses.

Two of the radio beam towers were installed on Sideling Hill and Little Savage Mountains. In general, the stations are about 50 miles apart.

Present plans call for the move to the new location to be made between April 15 and the last of the month.

County To Adopt 15-Month Budget In New Levy

Must Change Fiscal Year To End June 30

Allegany County Commissioners agreed yesterday that the next county levy must cover a 15-month period instead of a 12-month fiscal year in order to bring the county's fiscal year in line with that of the State of Maryland and the county school board.

Under a uniform accounts program, adopted for all counties and incorporated towns and cities in Maryland, fiscal years of sub-divisions must be established to run either with the calendar year or from July 1 to June 30.

The county board members heard Leon Bozman, who audits the county's books, explain the situation. Bozman said it will be better for the county to go on a fiscal period beginning July 1 and ending June 30, and this will necessitate a 15-month levy instead of a 12-month period.

Officials explain that assuming the tax rate remains the same, the county tax bills will be 25 per cent higher than the current year, because a year and a quarter will be covered. Actually, the amount of taxes on a monthly basis, or annual basis would be the same, but the bills will be larger because the tax period is longer. Thereafter, of course, 12-month levies will be the practice.

The county has no choice but to bring its fiscal year in line with one or the other of the two proposed periods. Failure to do so will waive the county's rights to state funds from numerous sources such as income tax, race track tax, gasoline tax and other state funds now distributed to counties, and in which Allegany shares.

Tax bills will be printed for a 15-month period and the levy will be set up on that basis, Charles N. Wilkinson, president of the Board said last night.

Mrs. Wilbur D. Sills, county auditor, made preliminary plans yesterday afternoon for beginning work on the new levy.

Wilkinson said the new levy must be completed, approved and signed by the third Tuesday in April which is April 20, this year.

Gunplay Flares As Pickets And Operator Clash

Strip Mine Owner Beaten

KINGWOOD, W. Va., March 23 (AP)—Roving pickets and a strip mine operator clashed in fighting that included some gunplay in Preston County today, Prosecutor R. Doyne Halbritter reported.

Halbritter said about 200 pickets visited the Hartman Mine near Kingwood and that six of them entered the mine office and attacked the owner, Raymond Hartman, and an employe, Dick Titchenall. The men were beaten "rather badly," Halbritter added.

The prosecutor said also that a shot had been fired at Hartman's son.

Halbritter said the pickets also stole a shotgun from Hartman's automobile and did other damage to the property, and that he expected that charges will be filed "within a few hours."

Expected To Continue

He said he expected that the situation will be "under control tomorrow." Asked if he expected the stripping operations to continue to operate, he said that "in my opinion, they will continue."

Asked if arrangements were being made to protect those operations that continue to work, the prosecutor said only:

"Every effort will be made to enforce the law."

He did not elaborate. He said the authorities had no objection to peaceful picketing, but that violence would not be tolerated.

The pickets, Halbritter said, had visited the Hartman Mine, which employs about 30 men, yesterday, and that the fighting occurred when they returned this morning. He said that the majority of the men in the picket motorcade were not from Preston County.

Traveling bands of pickets have closed a number of mines in the Clarksburg area since the mine walkout began last week, as they have in previous stoppages.

Earlier, Deputy Sheriff C. O. Kisner, who investigated the incident, said pickets had reported that one of their number was fired upon by someone at the mine, but a check of hospitals at Morgantown and Grafton failed to disclose any person being treated for gunshot wounds.

Regrets Outbreak

Halbritter said he had talked to Cecil Urbaniak, president of District 31 of the United Mine Workers at Fairmont, and that Urbaniak had

More Than Inch Of Rainfall Is Recorded In City

Temperatures Drop; River Rises Slowly

More than an inch of rainfall here yesterday and last night added more than a foot to the depth of the Potomac River, and broke the three-day period of high temperatures.

From 8 a. m. until 11 o'clock last night a total of 1.09 inches of rain fell in the city, and rain was reported generally throughout this area. At 11 p. m. the river registered 6.13 feet and still rising. At 8 a. m. it stood steady at 5.10 feet.

Last night between the hours of 9 and 10:30 p. m. a total of .39 of an inch of rainfall was registered. Weather observers said the river is expected to rise further, since the ground is wet and has absorbed about all the water it can. This means a rapid run-off of additional rainfall, they explain.

Declining to venture a prediction on flood danger, Robert R. Golden, local weather observer, merely said, "If it rains a couple of more inches, the river won't be able to carry it. But it looks as if the worst might be over."

Steady rains all day broke the "March heat wave" with maximum temperature reported at 57 above. Low was 46 recorded at 11 p. m. At 8 a. m. mercury was 54 yesterday.

The Weather Bureau predicts little change in temperature today but also predicts more rain. However, it is forecast that rainfall would be limited to scattered showers with cloudy weather general.

Local Pathologist Addresses Rotarians

Dr. Benedict Skitarelic, pathologist at Memorial and Allegany Hospitals, discussed natural and traumatic causes of sudden death as guest speaker yesterday at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Cumberland Rotary Club.

A graduate of the University of Maryland School of Medicine and a lecturer on the staff of that medical school, Dr. Skitarelic has been serving as a pathologist here for the past two years.

He pointed out that study of the causes of death aids medical science in preserving life, adding that thorough physical examination is valuable in placing industrial employes in jobs suited to their capacities.

Natural causes of sudden death, Dr. Skitarelic said, include heart conditions such as clogged blood vessels or failure of the heart muscles; blood clots or tumors of the brain; infectious diseases; hernia, or even acute alcoholism.

Traumatic deaths, or those resulting from injury or shock of some nature, may be caused by head or brain injuries, toxic poisoning and the like.

Gordon Moser, a member of the Bedford, Pa., Rotary Club committee which is arranging for the 178th District Rotary conference to be held in Bedford April 11, 12 and 13, outlined the program and urged Cumberland Rotarians to attend.

B & O Closes Operations At Keyser Yards

Furloughs In Area Reach Total Of 1,242

Baltimore and Ohio Railroad employes at Keyser, W. Va., felt the brunt of the coal stoppage yesterday a little harder than employes in Cumberland, when it was decided by railroad officials to close down terminal operations at Keyser and move all operations to Cumberland.

H. F. Wyatt, superintendent of the Cumberland Division, said 148 transportation and mechanical employes at Keyser are slated for furlough beginning Friday, along with 249 car yards employes. This makes a total Keyser furlough of 397 men. The furlough will continue through the balance of March with the men to return to work April 1, unless the lay-off is extended, it was indicated.

At the same time, about 400 men in the back shops here, in what the railroad refers to as Maintenance of Equipment, are also slated for the five-day layoff. About 175 men will remain at the back shops, which is all that is needed to keep work moving, officials said.

No furlough in the round house is anticipated immediately but is possible, officials said, if the coal stoppage continues any length of time.

Wyatt said last night some coal is being mined in West Virginia. Several strip operations are producing and about 150 cars are being moved daily. Normally the number of cars of coal to come into the Keyser yards would be around 1,200 daily, but with the number down to around 150 per day, officials said it was more economical and feasible to close out operations at Keyser and move everything into the Cumberland terminal.

It was announced yesterday that 345 men would be furloughed at the Bolt and Forge plant here, effective Friday.

This 345, the 400 at the back shops, 249 in the yards at Keyser and the 148 in the mechanical and transportation departments there, makes a total of 1,242 area B. and O. men to be furloughed, with a possibility that more will be affected later.

Coal train crews are working shorter hours on the Western Maryland, said G. R. Haworth, vice president in charge of operations.

"We have not laid off any crews," he said, but train schedules have been cut two-thirds. The trainmen, paid by the hour, are making about one-third of their regular salaries, the Western Maryland said.

"We'll have to curb the number of crews in a few days if there isn't some break" in the coal walkout, Haworth said. "It can only go on so long, then the men will have to be furloughed."

Lost time is running at 700 man-days each calendar day for transportation employes, he said.

The coal stoppage "hasn't hit our shops" at Baltimore, Union Bridge, Cumberland and Hagerstown, Md., and Elkins, W. Va., he said, but added that these shops may be affected within a few days.

BALTIMORE, March 23 (AP) — Approximately 6,000 Baltimore and Ohio Railroad workers will be furloughed by the end of this month because of the soft coal walkout, the B. and O. announced today.

It posted notices that 1,204 men would be furloughed the last five working days of this month and 2,518 more the last four working days.

Approximately 1,500 maintenance of way forces already have been furloughed.

Shopmen affected by the furloughs are located at Brunswick, Md., Glenwood and Keyser, W. Va., Chillicothe, Lorain, Painesville, and Willard, O.

Many Old Age Customs Have Come To Be Linked With Easter Season

The Christian Church Sunday will observe Easter, commemorating the Resurrection of Christ.

In its commemoration, it draws upon the customs of the ages, some of them antedating the Christian era.

While the principal observance is in the churches, with services that begin at sunrise in many cases, Easter also is a home celebration in the churches, decorated with early spring flowers, the great classics of music dedicated to the day will be heard.

Easter is a season that mingles the old with the new. The very name, Easter had its origin in a remote time before the Christian era. Eastre or Eostre was the name for the Saxon pagan goddess of spring. Pagan festivals celebrated the season in honor of Eastre. Christians adapted part of the old springtime festivals to their own festival of worship.

Many age-old customs have come down through the ages since man began to celebrate with special rites the welcome to spring—customs still celebrated by many people in many ways.

In these celebrations outside the religious rites, Easter is the day when a rabbit hides colored eggs for children; when new clothes are supposed to prevent bad luck; when the sun dances in the heaven, and when a dash of water chases illness for the year.

An old Italian custom at Eastertide is to present a live lamb to a neighbor—the small animal representing the highest gift of friendship and symbolizing piety, sobriety, calmness and humility. The custom still observed among Italian families here.

The Easter rabbit is a legendary animal of the season, for the hare from remote times has been the symbol of the moon—supposedly because the eye of the nocturnal hare, like the moon, never sleeps. The great white rabbit which is supposed to leave eggs for children to find is a legend of German folklore.

The egg, too, is a special token and symbol of Eastertime. It is symbolic of birth. The Easter rabbit and the Easter egg are a natural combination of two fables and so have given rise to the industry of candy eggs and chocolate rabbits.

The Easter lily, together with the hyacinth and other popular blooms that grow from bulbs, are symbolic of the life that came forth from the Tomb. There is an old legend that where Christ trod in Palestine, lilies grew.

Baltimore Firm Low Bidder On Route 40 Job

Relocation Work May Start Soon

Bids were opened yesterday on the relocation of U. S. Route 40 west of Cumberland with C. J. Langenfelder and Son, Inc., Baltimore contractors, low bidders, according to the State Roads Commission.

The firm bid $1,583,698 to relocate, grade and hard surface four and one-half miles of the National Highway from a point near Allegany Grove to Frostburg.

The only other bidder was Cumberland Contracting Company, which quoted $1,599,996 for the job.

Regarded as the top state road project for 1948, the relocation will eliminate a steep, winding, twisting road which has plagued motorists for many years.

The new highway, according to G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for the Maryland State Roads Commission, will begin at Crystal Park and continue to within 100 feet of the Carl Storm Garage on Eckhart Flat.

The dangerous stone bridge at Six Mile House will be eliminated with the highway running to the right of the present location of Route 40.

Bypasses Toll House

The new road will pass approximately 100 feet to the right of the Toll House near Winchester Road and will proceed in a straight line from the hazardous curve at the bottom of Red Hill.

The highway will then follow the ravine to the right of the present road and pass in the rear of the service station at Lions Spring.

From there the road will follow the right-of-way of Route 40 to a point near Clarysville when it will veer again to the right, passing in the rear of the McMurdo Garage.

The new road bed from Clarysville to Eckhart will be laid in the ravine connecting the two communities, eliminating the curve at Clarysville and the curve near the Frog Hollow Road intersection.

Several Houses Moved

Right-of-way have been secured and several houses have been moved to make way for the new location in Eckhart. The proposed highway will cross Parkersburg Road and pass in front of the entrance of the Eckhart School and then up Barn Hill to Eckhart Flat.

The road will be graded to a width of 44 feet, and at the eastern end where it leaves the present highway this width will be paved with concrete for a distance of about 1,000 feet.

At the western end, where it returns to the present roadway near

Turnpike Mishap Claims Two Lives As Driver Sleeps

Washington Taxi Cab Collides With Truck

Two persons were killed and one escaped serious injury at 1:45 p. m. Tuesday, as an Eastern Taxi Cab of Washington, D. C., collided with a Pennsylvania Turnpike truck about one-fourth of a mile west of the Bedford Interchange on the Turnpike.

According to Pennsylvania State Police, Barton Clark Rippy, 24, Nashville, Tenn., was instantly killed, while his companion, a 26-year-old sailor from Pennsylvania, whose name is being withheld for military reasons until next of kin are notified, died later in Timmons Hospital, Bedford.

The taxi was in charge of Roslye Schollenberger, 35, Washington, who was asleep in the back seat of the cab at the time of the accident. He was treated at Timmons Hospital for lacerations and abrasions, but was later released.

As far as could be learned, Schollenberger had taken a party of five to Pittsburgh and was making his return trip when the accident occurred.

Apparently the driver had picked the two riders up along the way and had gotten sleepy and crawled in the back seat, permitting the unknown sailor to drive. As far as can be determined, both boys in the front sea fell asleep and crashed against the rear of the truck, which was on a routine trip, State Police reported.

The taxi was completely demolished, according to the police officers, and traffic was at a standstill until the wreckage was removed from the scene.

The body of Rippy, ex-Merchant Marine, was taken to the Pate Funeral Home in Bedford and, according to the owners, will probably be shipped to Nashville for burial.

The sailor's body was moved to the Geisel Funeral Home, Bedford, and will be sent to his home as soon as arrangements can be made.

Trooper Calvin Richwine of the Pennsylvania State Police investigated.

Western Union Will Move Office Soon

The Cumberland office of the Western Union Telegraph Company will be moved from 7 North Liberty Street to 59 North Centre Street next month, E. Frank Phillips, manager, reported last night.

He said the change in location is necessitated by the installation of additional equipment resulting from technological changes in transmission and from the transfer of the testing and regulating office in the Queen City Hotel building to the new location.

The technological changes, he said, result from the installation of radio beam systems which will replace pole lines in this area.

When the system is installed, Phillips added, Western Union here will have sufficient capacity not only for its own needs but for additional television and radio broadcast systems and other uses.

Two of the radio beam towers were installed on Sideling Hill and Little Savage Mountains. In general, the stations are about 50 miles apart.

Present plans call for the move to the new location to be made between April 15 and the last of the month.

Cumberland Natural Gas Supply Must Travel 1,200 Miles To User

Have you ever thought just what goes on behind the scenes of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company in regard to providing natural gas for its manufacturing and domestic users?

An interview with C. C. Robbins, local manager of the company, reveals that Cumberland is fortunate in getting sufficient gas for domestic use, inasmuch as the bulk of it comes through about 1,200 miles of 24-inch pipe.

The line, better known as the Big Inch line, comes from Texas and is called the Tennessee Transmission. Booster stations have been built at various intervals en route, said Robbins, but the line isn't sufficient to take care of all the needs in Cumberland or neighboring cities or states.

According to Robbins, the company receives a telephone call daily, telling them of the amount they can expect in the next 24-hour period. If it isn't sufficient, the gas company immediately notifies local industries they must curtail operations to a given percentage.

"They have been very co-operative," said Robbins, "and we are grateful, since it helps us out during certain periods."

Most of the plants have standby fuel and are not hampered too much unless the cold weather remains for many days.

There is one bright outlook on the natural gas situation: another Big Inch line is being laid parallel to the one already in operation. After this is completed, it will ease conditions. But time will tell, as only about 600 miles has been built and materials are still hard to obtain and good weather must hold out.

In the spring the gas men begin to breathe easier, but they know, come winter time, the same routine must be followed. But everyone has his fingers crossed in hope that the new line will be completed soon.

Tax Collector's Office Closed All Day Friday

The office of the County Tax Collector, Court House, will be closed Friday in observance of Good Friday, but will be open Thursday as usual from 9 a. m. until 4 p. m. according to W. A. Strother, collector for Tax District No. 1. The office will also observe regular Saturday hours from 9 until noon, he explained.

Morrison (seated at right), president of Local 1110, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes, AFL, are seen yesterday afternoon as they signed a new contract for the 87 PE drivers and maintenance men. The agreement calling for a 12-cent pay increase, retroactive to March 1 and effective for one year, was ratified by the union membership at a meeting early Saturday morning. Also signing for the firm was Walter T. Kline (seated at left), PE transportation manager. Waiting their turn to sign the agreement are the four other members of the union negotiating committee (standing left to right) Nelson Rosenmerkle, shop steward; John Shober, Burr Powell, union vice president, and Lawrence Grimm, financial secretary of the union.

County To Adopt 15-Month Budget In New Levy

Must Change Fiscal Year To End June 30

Allegany County Commissioners agreed yesterday that the next county levy must cover a 15-month period instead of a 12-month fiscal year in order to bring the county's fiscal year in line with that of the State of Maryland and the county school board.

Under a uniform accounts program, adopted for all counties and incorporated towns and cities in Maryland, fiscal years of sub-divisions must be established to run either with the calendar year or from July 1 to June 30.

The county board members heard Leon Bozman, who audits the county's books, explain the situation. Bozman said it will be better for the county to go on a fiscal period beginning July 1 and ending June 30, and this will necessitate a 15-month levy instead of a 12-month period.

Officials explain that assuming the tax rate remains the same, the county tax bills will be 25 per cent higher than the current year, because a year and a quarter will be covered. Actually, the amount of taxes on a monthly basis, or annual basis would be the same, but the bills will be larger because the tax period is longer. Thereafter, of course, 12-month levies will be the practice.

The county has no choice but to bring its fiscal year in line with one or the other of the two proposed periods. Failure to do so will waive the county's rights to state funds from numerous sources such as income tax, race track tax, gasoline tax and other state funds now distributed to counties, and in which Allegany shares.

Tax bills will be printed for a 15-month period and the levy will be set up on that basis, Charles N. Wilkinson, president of the Board said last night.

Mrs. Wilbur D. Sills, county auditor, made preliminary plans yesterday afternoon for beginning work on the new levy.

Wilkinson said the new levy must be completed, approved and signed by the third Tuesday in April which is April 20, this year.

Moran Files In Mayoralty Race

WESTERNPORT — Edward S. Moran, 215 Hammond Street, a former local justice of the peace and a well-known coal operator, yesterday filed as a candidate for mayor in the town election next Monday.

His petition, signed by 32 registered voters, was submitted to City Clerk J. Carr Getty by Harry V. Reeves. Moran has been a patient in Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, for the past month following a major operation, but expects to return home this week.

Also filing yesterday was Adam F. Zais, former commissioner and a conductor of the Western Maryland Railway yard engine at Luke, who is seeking another term as city commissioner.

At the primary held March 8, Dr. Lewis F. Engle was nominated for mayor and George P. Kight, William C. Ravenscroft, John Matthews and Clarence McBee were nominated for commissioners. Kight and Ravenscroft are incumbents.

Since the primary, other candidates who have filed for commissioner are Charles J. Welsh and Paul E. Michaels.

A mayor and four commissioners will be elected Monday for a two-year term. Mayor J. Milton McIntyre and Commissioner George C. Cleaver are not seeking re-election.

Mayor McIntyre and the City Council will meet today at 8:30 a. m. to approve the petitions of Moran, Zais and Michaels. The petitions of other candidates were approved earlier.

Temperature Reading

Rainfall generally throughout the area broke the unusually high March temperatures yesterday with mercury dropping overnight from 72 above on Monday to a maximum of 57 yesterday afternoon and a minimum of 46 at 11 p. m. The temperature at 8 a. m. yesterday was 54. Measurement of rainfall here totalled 1.09 inches with a third of that falling in a short period between 9 p. m. and 10:30 p. m. when .39 of an inch was recorded. The river was rising slowly.

Gunplay Flares As Pickets And Operator Clash

Strip Mine Owner Beaten

KINGWOOD, W. Va., March 23 (AP)—Roving pickets and a strip mine operator clashed in fighting that included some gunplay in Preston County today, Prosecutor R. Doyne Halbritter reported.

Halbritter said about 200 pickets visited the Hartman Mine near Kingwood and that six of them entered the mine office and attacked the owner, Raymond Hartman, and an employe, Dick Titchenall. The men were beaten "rather badly," Halbritter added.

The prosecutor said also that a shot had been fired at Hartman's son.

Halbritter said the pickets also stole a shotgun from Hartman's automobile and did other damage to the property, and that he expected that charges will be filed "within a few hours."

Expected To Continue

He said he expected that the situation will be "under control tomorrow." Asked if he expected the stripping operations to continue to operate, he said that "in my opinion, they will continue."

Asked if arrangements were being made to protect those operations that continue to work, the prosecutor said only:

"Every effort will be made to enforce the law."

He did not elaborate. He said the authorities had no objection to peaceful picketing, but that violence would not be tolerated.

The pickets, Halbritter said, had visited the Hartman Mine, which employs about 30 men, yesterday, and that the fighting occurred when they returned this morning. He said that the majority of the men in the picket motorcade were not from Preston County.

Traveling bands of pickets have closed a number of mines in the Clarksburg area since the mine walkout began last week, as they have in previous stoppages.

Earlier, Deputy Sheriff C. O. Kisner, who investigated the incident, said pickets had reported that one of their number was fired upon by someone at the mine, but a check of hospitals at Morgantown and Grafton failed to disclose any person being treated for gunshot wounds.

Regrets Outbreak

Halbritter said he had talked to Cecil Urbaniak, president of District 31 of the United Mine Workers at Fairmont, and that Urbaniak had

More Than Inch Of Rainfall Is Recorded In City

Temperatures Drop; River Rises Slowly

More than an inch of rainfall here yesterday and last night added more than a foot to the depth of the Potomac River, and broke the three-day period of high temperatures.

From 8 a. m. until 11 o'clock last night a total of 1.09 inches of rain fell in the city, and rain was reported generally throughout this area. At 11 p. m. the river registered 6.13 feet and still rising. At 8 a. m. it stood steady at 5.10 feet.

Last night between the hours of 9 and 10:30 p. m. a total of .39 of an inch of rainfall was registered. Weather observers said the river is expected to rise further, since the ground is wet and has absorbed about all the water it can. This means a rapid run-off of additional rainfall, they explain.

Declining to venture a prediction on flood danger, Robert R. Golden, local weather observer, merely said, "If it rains a couple of more inches, the river won't be able to carry it. But it looks as if the worst might be over."

Steady rains all day broke the "March heat wave" with maximum temperature reported at 57 above. Low was 46 recorded at 11 p. m. At 8 a. m. mercury was 54 yesterday.

The Weather Bureau predicts little change in temperature today but also predicts more rain. However, it is forecast that rainfall would be limited to scattered showers with cloudy weather general.

19 Applicants File For Liquor Board Position

Vacancy To Be Filled Next Week

Nineteen applications have been received by the Allegany County Liquor Control Board for appointment to fill the vacancy created by the death of Henry Sweene, Mt. Savage.

Fred Crowe, Frostburg, secretary of the board, said yesterday a number of other persons have indicated they will be applicants.

The other board member, former Judge Walter C. Capper, board chairman, also said there has been considerable interest in the vacancy and he, too, believes the list of applicants will ultimately include more than the 19 on file at the office.

The list of applicants includes eight from Cumberland, two each from Midland, Westernport and Mt. Savage, and one each from Frostburg, Lonaconing, Barton, Eckhart and Clifton Forge, Va. The latter is Glenn W. Rizer, formerly deputy sheriff and state police clerk here, who has maintained his residence in the county with temporary residence in Clifton Forge. He says he plans to return here in a few weeks.

Cumberland applicants include, Charles G. Smith, 600 Baltimore Avenue; Albert A. Doub, Jr., 748 Washington Street; Edwin T. Dixon, 659 Fayette Street; Myron S. Berkley, 411 Pulaski Street; Jesse E. Hopcraft, 219 Maryland Avenue; Rawland J. Shepherd, 529 Cumberland Street; Odith M. Brotemarkle, 114 Arch Street; and John M. Robb, 18 Washington Street.

Other applicants include, Verl A. Ash, and Walter E. Ross, Midland; Robert C. Pollock and Wesley Sleeman, Mt. Savage; J. William Beck, 170 Church Street, and J. Grant Hayden, both Westernport.

Joseph P. Montana, Eckhart; Joseph Shuhart, Sr., High Street, Barton; William Henry, Douglas Avenue, Lonaconing; and Evan Sigler, 131 Washington Street, Frostburg.

The appointment is made by members of the board to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Sweene. He was appointed for four years and with the appointment to be made effective about April 1, there will be three years left to serve. The position pays $2,000 per year, and duties do not interfere normally with other work or professions, officials explain.

Capper is the six-year member of the Board and Crowe was appointed for two years. After the terms as set up in the county liquor law establishing the board are completed, a six-year appointment in each case will be made. Members of the board cannot succeed themselves to appointment to successive terms.

Judge Capper said last night the appointment will probably be made next week.

Local Pathologist Addresses Rotarians

Dr. Benedict Skitarelic, pathologist at Memorial and Allegany Hospitals, discussed natural and traumatic causes of sudden death as guest speaker yesterday at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Cumberland Rotary Club.

A graduate of the University of Maryland School of Medicine and a lecturer on the staff of that medical school, Dr. Skitarelic has been serving as a pathologist here for the past two years.

He pointed out that study of the causes of death aids medical science in preserving life, adding that thorough physical examination is valuable in placing industrial employes in jobs suited to their capacities.

Natural causes of sudden death, Dr. Skitarelic said, include heart conditions such as clogged blood vessels or failure of the heart muscles; blood clots or tumors of the brain; infectious diseases; hernia, or even acute alcoholism.

Traumatic deaths, or those resulting from injury or shock of some nature, may be caused by head or brain injuries, toxic poisoning and the like.

Gordon Moser, a member of the Bedford, Pa., Rotary Club committee which is arranging for the 178th District Rotary conference to be held in Bedford April 11, 12 and 13, outlined the program and urged Cumberland Rotarians to attend.

B & O Closes Operations At Keyser Yards

Furloughs In Area Reach Total Of 1,242

Baltimore and Ohio Railroad employes at Keyser, W. Va., felt the brunt of the coal stoppage yesterday a little harder than employes in Cumberland, when it was decided by railroad officials to close down terminal operations at Keyser and move all operations to Cumberland.

H. P. Wyatt, superintendent of the Cumberland Division, said 148 transportation and mechanical employes at Keyser are slated for furlough beginning Friday, along with 249 car yards employes. This makes a total Keyser furlough of 397 men. The furlough will continue through the balance of March with the men to return to work April 1, unless the lay-off is extended, it was indicated.

At the same time, about 400 men in the back shops here, in what the railroad refers to as Maintenance of Equipment, are also slated for the five-day layoff. About 175 men will remain at the back shops, which is all that is needed to keep work moving, officials said.

No furlough in the round house is anticipated immediately but is possible, officials said, if the coal stoppage continues any length of time.

Wyatt said last night some coal is being mined in West Virginia. Several strip operations are producing and about 150 cars are being moved daily. Normally the number of cars of coal to come into the Keyser yards would be around 1,200 daily, but with the number down to around 150 per day, officials said it was more economical and feasible to close out operations at Keyser and move everything into the Cumberland terminal.

It was announced yesterday that 345 men would be furloughed at the Bolt and Forge plant here, effective Friday.

This 345, the 400 at the back shops, 249 in the yards at Keyser and the 148 in the mechanical and transportation departments there, makes a total of 1,242 area B. and O. men to be furloughed, with a possibility that more will be affected later.

Coal train crews are working shorter hours on the Western Maryland, said G. R. Haworth, vice president in charge of operations.

"We have not laid off any crews," he said, but train schedules have been cut two-thirds. The trainmen, paid by the hour, are making about one-third of their regular salaries, the Western Maryland said.

"We'll have to curb the number of crews in a few days if there isn't some break" in the coal walkout, Haworth said. "It can only go on so long, then the men will have to be furloughed."

Lost time is running at 700 man-days each calendar day for transportation employes, he said.

The coal stoppage "hasn't hit our shops" at Baltimore, Union Bridge, Cumberland and Hagerstown, Md., and Elkins, W. Va., he said, but added that these shops may be affected within a few days.

BALTIMORE, March 23 (AP) — Approximately 6,000 Baltimore and Ohio Railroad workers will be furloughed by the end of this month because of the soft coal walkout, the B. and O. announced today.

It posted notices that 1,204 men would be furloughed the last five working days of this month and 2,518 more the last four working days.

Approximately 1,500 maintenance of way forces already have been furloughed.

Shopmen affected by the furloughs are located at Brunswick, Md., Glenwood and Keyser, W. Va., Chillicothe, Lorain, Painesville, and Willard, O.

Many Old Age Customs Have Come To Be Linked With Easter Season

The Christian Church Sunday will observe Easter, commemorating the Resurrection of Christ.

In its commemoration, it draws upon the customs of the ages, some of them antedating the Christian era.

While the principal observance is in the churches, with services that begin at sunrise in many cases. Easter also is a home celebration in the churches, decorated with early spring flowers, the great classics of music dedicated to the day will be heard.

Easter is a season that mingles the old with the new. The very name, Easter had its origin in a remote time before the Christian era. Eastre or Eostre was the name for the Saxon pagan goddess of spring. Pagan festivals celebrated the season in honor of Eastre. Christians adapted part of the old springtime festivals to their own festival of worship.

Many age-old customs have come down through the ages since man began to celebrate with special rites the welcome to spring—customs still celebrated by many people in many ways.

In these celebrations outside the religious rites, Easter is the day when a rabbit hides colored eggs for children; when new clothes are supposed to prevent bad luck; when the sun dances in the heaven, and when a dash of water chases illness for the year.

An old Italian custom at Eastertide is to present a live lamb to a neighbor—the small animal representing the highest gift of friendship and symbolizing piety, sobriety, calmness and humility. The custom still observed among Italian families here.

The Easter rabbit is a legendary animal of the season, for the hare from remote times has been the symbol of the moon—supposedly because the eye of the nocturnal hare, like the moon, never sleeps. The great white rabbit which is supposed to leave eggs for children to find is a legend of German folklore.

The egg, too, is a special token and symbol of Eastertime. It is symbolic of birth. The Easter rabbit and the Easter egg are a natural combination of two fables and so have given rise to the industry of candy eggs and chocolate rabbits.

The Easter lily, together with the hyacinth and other popular blooms that grow from bulbs, are symbolic of the life that came forth from the Tomb. There is an old legend that where Christ trod in Palestine, lilies grew.
